"O. J. Rollis, the hustling general merchant from the town of Rollis, was in the city last week. 'The greatest need of the settlers up the Thief river just at present,' said Mr. Rollis to the NEWS, 'is better transportation facilities. Of course we will have a railroad before many years, but until that time comes, we want some enterprising person to build a steamboat. It would be a good paying proposition and all the settlers and store keepers up the river would patronize it liberally.'"

HARVEST
Commenced the First of the Week.

"The harvest of wheat in favored sections around here commenced the first of the week, but it will not be in full blast until next week. Taken as a whole the crops will not be up to the average around here, but they will be a great deal better than was anticipated this spring. On the ridges the yield will be the best it has been for years, but in the low lands a great deal of damage has been done by the heavy rains."

CRUEL JOKE
Meanest People in the World Live at St. Hilaire.

"Word came from St. Hilaire Monday to the effect that 'Dad' Clark, who was the pitcher for the baseball club here Sunday, had been arrested and place in jail at St. Hilaire. This sad news cast a gloom over Thief River Falls baseball cranks, at that time not in the best of spirits, but it was finally decided to send W. C. Smiley, who had acted as chaperon for 'Dad' during his brief sojourn here, to the rescue. Mr. Smiley went to that village of sin, which sails under a Christian name, only to find it was a joke, a practical one they called it."

Statistical report provides some interesting surprises

Agriculture is "where it's at" in MN

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

Anyone who believes that farming is "Nowheresville" had better think again.

Rather, according to a publication recently issued cooperatively by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, statistics show that ag is "where it's at" in Minnesota.

Despite stories of doom and gloom and even with low prices for many commodities, agriculture and its related industries account for 17 percent of the state's gross product.

Agriculture is also the second largest employer in Minnesota, providing more that 468,000 jobs which account for 20 percent of the state total. The fact that two thirds of those jobs are off the farms in processing, distribution, supply and service sectors means that the state's approximate 155,850 farmers and farm workers share a piece of the farm pie with about 312,150 others.

The National Scene

So, where does Minnesota rank in the national scene? Published data provided the numbers from which the following "Top 10" statistics were derived:

In 1999, Minnesota ranked seventh for total cash receipts under California, Texas, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Florida and ahead of Illinois, North Carolina and Wisconsin. In that total, the state ranked eighth in livestock and livestock products and sixth in crops.

As for agricultural exports for the fiscal year 1999, Minnesota ranked seventh under California, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Illinois and Texas and ahead of Washington, Indiana and Wisconsin.

As for crop production, Minnesota ranked first for oats, sugar beets and green peas for processing; second for spring wheat, canola, sweet corn for processing and cultivated wild rice; third for soybeans and flaxseed; fourth for corn, dry edible beans and all hay; fifth for barley and all sunflowers; seventh for all potatoes; and eighth for all wheat.

With regard to livestock, dairy and poultry, the state ranked first in Concrete was poured Monday for the footings which will support the grandstand and its roof. Cement truck after cement truck pulled up to the site, pouring over one million pounds of concrete for the footings. Inmates in the Sentenced To Serve program assisted the contractors, working through the summer heat.

Building a grandstand from the ground Up

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

Over one million pounds of concrete went into the base supports for Thief River Falls' new grandstand which was poured Monday.

The supports are footings for the roof, as well as the building itself, which will seat 2,549 people. Concrete used to make the footings was also poured into test cylinders, which will be tested over the next couple of weeks. The first cylinders will be placed under enormous pressure 14 days from the day they were poured. The contractors do this in order to determine how much weight the concrete can hold after it has settled and dried in a given amount of time. The next set of cylinders will be tested 28 days from the pour dates.

CBS Constructors, the contractors building the grandstand, had to pour even more concrete than was in the blueprints because of the softness of the ground. A 200 foot-long front wall, using around 180,000 pounds of concrete, will be the next thing to go into the project. Mel Fritsch, one of the owners of CBS Constructors and the Thief River Falls project supervisor, said that erection of the bleachers should begin around August 20 and completed four weeks after that.

CBS Constructors have not been enlisted to do any work on the space under the grandstand; however, Fritsch said there will be plenty of room for bathrooms, offices, or concession areas if the City wishes to build those types of facilities under the grandstand.

Sentenced To Serve

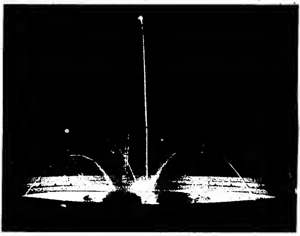
Fritsch said this was the one of the first times the company didn't furnish their own crew for a project. As part of the Pennington County's donation to the undertaking, inmates participating in the Northwest Sentenced To Serve program, or STS, were committed to the grandstand project, helping pour concrete and build. Counties involved in the Northwest STS program include Pennington County, Marshall County, and Kittson County.

After admitting he was a little skeptical about working with the inmates, Fritsch said he has been impressed with their skills and behavior.

"They're amazing me," Fritsch said of the inmates. "Everybody's got a different trade. They've been just great to work with."

Pennington County Sheriff Mike Hruby said that the STS program has saved taxpayers a lot of money by building, cleaning, painting, and doing a variety of other work in the community. STS workers have also helped many elderly citizens by shoveling snow, raking leaves, and installing handicap ramps.

Flowing Centerpiece in Elks Park



A new water fountain located in Elks Park next to the Riverwalk is a beautiful site at night, as well as during the day. The fountain is the last phase of the Riverwalk project and a result of funds left over from the Hertz Park Bridge project. The fountain is not yet complete, according to Joan Strong. Strong said she would like to see the center column of water go much higher.

Wolds chosen as Emerging Leaders in Pennington Co.

The Agassiz Leaders and Emerging Leadership Program developed out of the former King Agassiz award.

The 2001 Pennington County Emerging Leaders are Tom and Kaylynn Wold of rural Thief River Falls. The announcement was made during the 2001 Pennington County Fair. The Wolds will now participate in an emerging leadership program designed to provide them with improved leadership skills that will benefit all of northwestern Minnesota.

With their son Matthew, age 13, the Wolds farm southwest of Thief River Falls in Sanders township. This year the Wolds are raising wheat and soybeans on the 1,000-acre farm. In past years they have grown sunflowers, barley and oats.

As a farmer and emerging leader, Tom says the most important challenge facing farmers today is low commodity prices compared to the high input cost. Another concern for Tom is the skyrocketing cost of health insurance.

In addition to farming, Kaylynn is the purchasing agent for School District 564 in Thief River Falls. Kaylynn believes the most important challenge facing her rural community is keeping the family farms operating for future generations.

The Agassiz Leaders and Emerging Leadership Program developed out of the former King Agassiz award. A leadership program that included couples began in 1985. It formally became a couples program in 1991. Participants in the program are selected by their peers. These participants go through leadership training that develops specific leadership skills in four sessions. The first session begins with

Student teaching takes student to England

■ Jamie Kalsnes spends two-months student teaching in Reigate, England

by Becky Mattson
Reporter

Becoming an elementary school teacher has been a dream of Jamie Kalsnes since she was four years old. The now 21-year-old Thief River Falls native and Moorhead State University graduate, however, had no idea that her love for teaching would lead to an overseas adventure in England.

Jamie Kalsnes

Jamie, daughter of Ken and Janeen Kalsnes of Thief River Falls, recently completed her two months of student teaching at Reigate Priory Primary School in Reigate, England.

Her interest in the two-month experience, which began February 19, was sparked by an intriguing poster that hinted at opportunities for "Teaching Abroad." Acting on this intriguing prospect, she applied last August and was accepted as a student teacher. She soon learned she had been assigned to a fourth grade class where she would work with Sarah Neill, the students' usual classroom teacher.

This intriguing opportunity turned out to be just the beginning of an experience that would only reinforce her desire to be a teacher.

Living arrangements worked out nicely for Jamie as she was able to stay with another girl who was student teaching at Reigate Priory Primary School as well. Both girls stayed with a woman only a mile and a half from the school.

By choosing to teach in England, Jamie thought she could avoid language differences. Although the residents of Reigate did speak English, language differences did exist.

"Sometimes their meanings for identical English words would be different from mine," said Jamie.

Curiosity of how schools in England compared to schools in the United States was also a factor for Jamie in deciding to student teach abroad. Students in England are required to wear uniforms, attend school year around, and conform to specific learning objectives.

"The country of England sets national learning objectives each week for students of all ages. Along with national learning objectives, each state (county) in England also sets certain learning objectives for the students. Each student is required to write down these specific objectives in a notebook everyday," said Jamie.

Another unique difference included a one-week activity planned every five weeks focusing on a particular theme. The students would spend one week learning only important issues relating to that week's theme. While Jamie was student teaching, themes included Easter and books.

Traveling Abroad

While in England, Jamie wanted to venture farther and visit other countries on her own. After researching on the Internet, she bought a 15-day unlimited Eurail train pass and set off alone.

"My parents were very hesitant about me traveling in different countries all by myself, but I felt safe the entire time," said Jamie.

Janeen, Jamie's mother, and a friend flew to London to spend a week sightseeing with Jamie before she began her journey. Jamie enjoyed Westminster Abbey and the numerous clubs while in London.

Jamie had decided before she left on her adventure to visit an art gallery, a church, and a museum in every country. She also saved money by staying in hostels, places to stay which resemble large dormitories, instead of hotels while on her journey.

"An art class I took at Northland Community College taught by John Leopold piqued my interest in art. That

During her 21 days of travel overseas, Jamie Kalsnes visited the British Museum in London, England, where this picture was taken. Her 21-day adventure was in addition to her student teaching experience she had for two months at Reigate Priory Primary School in Reigate, England.

Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Positive parenting begins with balanced approach

Positive parenting starts with a balance of nurturing, discipline and respect. But how parents balance these elements varies, says Ron Pitzer, family sociologist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

"Some parents are demanding and expect a great deal of their child, while others are permissive and demand very little," Pitzer says. There are also parents who limit their youngster's behavior and allow little or no freedom of thought and expression.

At least four distinct parenting styles are created, depending on the balance:

--Parents who nurture, discipline and respect their children are positive.

--Parents who nurture and respect their children but don't discipline them much or well are permissive.

--Parents who discipline their children but are not very nurturing or respectful of them are dominating.

--Parents who don't nurture, discipline or respect their children are unengaged.

A research study shows how children raised with these differing parenting styles are affected. The study examined self-esteem, confidence, respect, responsibility, academics, social competence, anxiety, depression and problem behavior.

The study showed that children raised by positive parents tend to do well overall, Pitzer says. They have self-esteem and confidence, are respectful and responsible, and show good academic performance. These children are socially competent as defined by having empathy, emotional control, good communication and ability to manage conflict. Such children have little anxiety or depression and don't have much problem behavior.

Children and teens raised by permissive parents tend to have good self-esteem, are socially competent in most areas and have little depression. However, Pitzer says they scored low on respect and responsibility, underachieve academically and have a lot of problem behavior.

Children raised by dominating parents are somewhat the opposite. They tend to have low self-esteem and confidence and a lot of anxiety and depression. These children are not very socially competent, rate in the middle on being respectful and responsible and have average academic performance. They have very little problem behavior.

Children and teens of unengaged parents tend to do the worst in all of the areas studied. They have low self-esteem and confidence, a lot of anxiety and depression, and little social competence. They are not respectful or responsible, have poor academic performance and show a lot of problem behavior.

"As this study clearly shows, the balanced approach of nurturing, disciplining and respecting children is where positive parenting begins," Pitzer says. More information on positive parenting is available at www.extension.umn.edu, or at a county office of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Rydell Refuge Open House Sunday, August 12

Live critters, horse drawn wagon tours, wildlife displays, interpretive hikes, ice cream social and stories of fond memories of the "good old days" are just some of the attractions to be featured at the 6th Annual Rydell Refuge Open House on Sunday, August 12. All are welcome to visit the Refuge during the Open House from noon to 5 p.m.

A special feature will be an appearance by Lena, a pioneer woman who will tell tales of travel and settlement of the upper Midwest. What conditions did settlers put up with as they moved into these parts? What was the landscape like and how did people make a living from it? Lena will relate humorous accounts of survival and adaptation as neighbors helped neighbors raise families and build communities.

Another popular attraction will be Ted Hoberg's display of reptiles and amphibians. Ted will have his "critters" on hand for people to view, touch and handle throughout the afternoon and will present a program at 3 p.m. featuring the lifestyles of some of these fascinating creatures. Some of Ted's featured guests include turtles and lizards, a variety of snakes, and "miscellaneous" amphibians and reptiles. In a fun and informative way Ted helps bring a better understanding to the cool world of these cold-blooded creatures. Touching and handling is encouraged as you warm up to these cold-blooded critters.

Ever popular horse drawn wagon rides will provide a glimpse of some of the beautiful natural areas and wildlife of the Refuge. Rides will begin at 1 p.m. and continue throughout the afternoon. Self-guided interpretive hiking trails feature natural history highlights of the Refuge. Volunteers will provide tours of some of the trails with electric golf carts for those not able to walk the routes. Following the programs will be a social with ice cream and other refreshments served. Door prizes will be drawn for hourly. New and expanded displays will be featured in the Visitors Center.

These activities are all free and open to the public. To get to the Rydell Refuge go three miles east of Mentor or three miles west of Erskine on U.S. Highway 2 and turn south on Polk County 210. Follow 210 about two-and-a-half miles south to the large entrance sign and main gate of the Refuge. If arriving from the south, turn north off of Polk County 41 onto Polk County 210 and go about three-and-a-half miles north and turn left at the Refuge entrance sign. If you have any questions contact the Rydell Refuge at (218) 687-2229.

Agriculture education changing to meet needs

Changes in legislative funding mechanisms, rural and urban demographics, and farm numbers have all combined to drive changes in how Minnesota will deliver its agricultural education programming in the future according to Executive Director of the Minnesota Agricultural Education Leadership Council (MAELC) Patrick Plonski.

The MAELC Council met on July 11th in Willmar, Minnesota, to plan strategy and develop budgets for the continued implementation of agricultural education programs in the future. Meetings were held in conjunction with the annual summer conference of the Minnesota Association of Agricultural Educators (MAAE).

Key to the changes facing agricultural educators and their supporters are public policy changes enacted in the 2001 Legislative Session altering the funding mechanism for high school agricultural education programs. MAELC heard updates from key legislators updating the status of funding programs adopted this past session in the Omnibus K-12 Finance Bill. This legislation eliminated the Vocational Secondary Categorical Funding Block, which has provided incentive funding for high school agricultural education programs since the early 1900s. In its place was substituted a new local levy authority to provide increased local control for funding high school agricultural education programs.

"This is a dramatic change in the way in which high school agricultural education programs, and other career and technical programs, are funded," said MAAE President John Hobert of Cannon Falls. "We need to ensure that whatever mechanism is utilized in Minnesota over the long haul meets the needs of providing a well-trained work force for Minnesota's high-tech agricultural economy."

Other key changes in agricultural education programs discussed by the MAELC Council included the following:

- Mentorship Programs for Agricultural Educators - MAELC voted to provide $10,000 for teacher mentorship programs to assist new Instructors of Farm Business Management and new high school agricultural educators. This new program is designed to keep well-trained personnel in agricultural education professions.
- The Agriculture and Food Sciences Academy - The academy will open in September of this year under the support and leadership of MAELC. The academy is Minnesota's first urban agricultural high school and is part of a strategic effort to expand agricultural education into the Twin Cities Metropolitan urban core.
- MAELC's Biotechnology Initiative - In a major new initiative, MAELC will be seeking private funds to supplement its public funding to deliver 25 biotechnology laboratories for high schools throughout Minnesota and provide biotechnology training for instructors.
- MAELC's Scholarship Program - MAELC discussed ideas for better targeting its scholarship program to attract high quality students into agricultural education at the college level. MAELC has already provided $40,000 in scholarships over the past two years.
- Agricultural Literacy Upgrades - MAELC discussed options for how to provide more and better agricultural education for students at the K-8 level. MAELC initiatives have included developmental support for the Agricultural Literacy Institute (located at South Central Technical College in Mankato), the Farm City Adventures Day Camp (at the University of Minnesota), and the establishment of an Education Specialist Position with the Minnesota Ag in the Classroom Program.
- MAELC Grants - MAELC voted to establish the following parameters for its 2001-2002 Grants Program: $52,000 will be available under the MAELC General Grants Program and $32,000 will be available under the MAELC Targeted Grants Program. Funding for MAELC's Biotech-nology Grant Program is still being secured. The deadline for all grant applications to be received in MAELC offices is November 30, 2001. Applications for MAELC's grant programs will be available in the coming weeks. For more information, call (612) 624-6256 or visit the MAELC Web site at www.maelc.state.mn.us. MAELC has provided over $738,000 in grants since 1997.

"In the decades ahead, agricultural systems will be more important than ever as we seek to feed a planet with a population of well over six billion," Plonski said. "Global food security will hinge on critical issues such as food processing systems, better food transportation systems, and increased food identity preservation. Minnesota, a great agricultural state, has a competitive advantage in addressing all of these issues, and in being part of the solution to these problems."

MAELC is a 16-00000member Council representing all of the major institutions and groups in Minnesota with an interest in agricultural education and serves as a focal point for initiatives to improve agricultural education.

The 16 members include: Senator Dallas Sams, co-chair; Representative Elaine Harder, co-chair; Senator Steve Dille; Representative Bob Ness; Senator LeRoy Stumpf; Representative Steve Wenzel; Charles Funk, Governor's appointment; John Hobert, Minnesota Association of Agricultural Educators; Amy Janke-Sobieski, Minnesota Depart-ment of Agriculture; Al Krysan, Minnesota FFA Foundation; John Murray, Minnesota State Colleges and Universities; Dr. Charles Muscoplat, University of Minnesota - College of Agriculture; Mike Pagel, Minnesota Association of Agricultural Educators; Dr. Roland Peterson, Division of Ag, Food, and Environmental Education; Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom, Governor's appointment; and Dan Smith, Minnesota Department of Children, Families, and Learning.

Senate approves over $70 million to improve Minnesota highways

Senator Mark Dayton said today that the U.S. Senate has approved more than $70 million to help communities across Minnesota make much-needed improvements in the state's highway and mass-transit systems.

Dayton, who pressed for the money, said that it passed the Senate Wednesday as part of the annual appropriations bill funding the nation's transportation projects. He said that the $70.025 million would support projects among the cities of Gilbert, Grand Rapids, Duluth, Moorhead, Rochester, St. Cloud, and the Twin Cities.

"As the population of Minnesota continues to grow, meeting our state's expanding transportation needs becomes more important to our economy and to the safety of travelers," Dayton said. "These funds will help communities throughout Minnesota provide safer and more efficient transportation for residents and visitors alike, relieve congestion, and help spur economic development."

Dayton said the Senate approved $7.525 million for the Greater Minnesota Transit Authorities for improvements in bus facilities, including purchasing advanced maintenance equipment, technology, and transit signal devices. This money will be divided among the Arrowhead Economic Opportunity Authority in Gilbert and Grand Rapids, the Duluth Transit Authority, the City of Moorhead, the City of Rochester, and the St. Cloud Metropolitan Transit Commission.

Additionally, Dayton said that the Senate approved $1 million for Moorhead to construct two urgently needed rail underpasses along Southeast Main, where it is projected that the Burlington Northern-Santa Fe rail line will double rail traffic. Dayton said that there are currently 600 rail crossings daily by buses transporting students to and from both Moorhead State University and Moorhead High School.

Also, Dayton said that the Senate approved $6 million for Metro Transit in the Twin Cities to purchase replacement buses, expansion buses, fare collection systems and to acquire land for bus garages. The funding was requested in response to a tremendous growth in bus ridership, with Metro Transit providing approximately 74 million rides last year alone.

Dayton said that the Senate also approved $50 million for construction of the Hiawatha Light Rail Corridor, which would link downtown Minneapolis with the Minneapolis-St. Paul Airport and the Mall of America. Due to rising population levels in the Twin Cities, the number of congested freeways has tripled in the last decade and congestion continues to increase.

The Senate has also approved $1.6 million for St. Paul to construct the Phalen Boulevard Project, a two-mile, four-lane roadway connecting a redeveloping inner-city neighborhood and an industrial area set for renewal, Dayton said. This project is a key component of a larger economic development program called the Phalen Corridor Initiative, which includes the creation of jobs, cleaning up polluted lands, workforce training and housing rehabilitation.

In addition, the Senate approved $1.6 million for the North Metro Crossing Coalition to relieve a highly-trafficked segment of I-94 by constructing an interchange at I-94 and Trunk Highway (T.H.) 610/10. When completed, T.H. 610/10 will connect I-94 in Maple Grove to Interstate Highway 35-West in Mounds View.

Dayton also said that the Senate approved $2.3 million for the Minnesota Valley Regional Rail Authority (MVRRA) to begin work on reopening the rail line for service. In order to do so, multiple improvements must be made along the line, including new cross ties, 6.7 miles of replaced rails, the rebuilding of 60 road crossings and other miscellaneous work.

Finally, Dayton said that the appropriations bill directs the Minnesota Department of Transportation to give priority consideration to two important Minnesota transportation projects during its funding process: the Southeast Main and Rail Relocation Project in Moorhead, for which the Senate approved $1 million; and a project to improve access to and from I-35W at Lake Street, which would help to revitalize the Phillips neighborhood in south Minneapolis.

The funding bill approved today by the Senate will now move to a House-Senate conference committee, where negotiators will work out differences in bills passed in the two chambers. After final legislation is approved, it will be sent to the President to be signed into law.

Local youth member of Minnesota Conservation Corps

Joy Schirle of Viking is about to finish her eight weeks of service as a corps member with Minnesota Conservation Corps (MCC) Summer Youth Residential Program.

Joy is serving in an eight-week residential work program which provides Minnesota youth, ages 15 to 18, with opportunities to learn and earn money while carrying out natural resource and conservation projects around the state. When not working out in the field, Joy and 80 other MCC youth are stationed at a base camp in St. Croix State Park near Hinckley.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the MCC Summer Youth Residential Program that was created by the State of Minnesota's Department of Natural Resources (DNR) in 1981. Recruiting from every corner of the state, the program currently employs youth from a broad spectrum of communities and cultures. Past work projects have included erosion control, building and maintaining hiking trails, historical restoration, timber stand improvement, bridge and boardwalk construction and wildlife habitat restoration projects.

A unique element to the program is the inclusion of deaf or hard-of-hearing corps members. This element crosses cultural boundaries and allows participants to learn how to overcome communications barriers. MCC provides an ideal environment for corps members to learn through experiences the skills it takes to get along with other people in the working world as well as the community.

MCC corps members spend the summer living in rustic accommodations that do not have electricity or running water. While in base camp at St. John's Landing in St. Croix State Park, the youth and staff live in cabins which were built by the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) in the 1930s. The crews, however, spend the majority of the summer at "spike camps," living out of tents and preparing their own meals at the work sites.

Project locations for this season's spike camps include many sites along the north shore of Lake Superior, including The Superior Hiking Trail, Tettegouche, Gooseberry Falls and Split Rock Lighthouse State Parks. Other spike camp locations include St. Croix National Scenic Riverway, Deep Portage Conservation Reserve, Menogyn YMCA, Grand Portage National Monument, Wildlife Science Center and many other publicly owned natural resource areas.

The MCC Summer Youth Residential Program is a service-learning program where the development of leadership skills and a strong work ethic are stressed. Each evening, youth participate in a educational activities. Activities include plant and animal identification, leadership and teamwork skills, school and career exploration, American Sign Language (ASL) instruction and presentations by individuals working in the conservation field or by deaf or hard-of-hearing professionals. Weekends are a time for relaxation and include free time for camping, hiking, canoeing, reading, playing ultimate frisbee and participating in many other group games and activities.

While with the program, corps members gain valuable skills in career planning, job searching and resume building. In fact, after eight weeks, every corps member will have successfully completed a resume that will aid him or her in any future professional endeavors.

MCC is proud to have provided Minnesota's youth with 20 years of quality outdoor corps programming that has enabled numerous youth to learn, through experience, skills and ethics that will long outlast the summer's end.

For more information and an application for next year's program, write DNR/MCC Summer Work Program, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4004 or check out its web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us/forestry/mcc.

Joy Schirle of Viking is among the state's youth who have participated this summer in the Minnesota Conservation Corps Summer Youth Residential Program. This is the 20th year of the Department of Natural Resources program that provides Minnesota youth with opportunities to learn and earn money while carrying out various natural resource and conservation projects around the state. Al's Girl

When you're a little girl
And someone asks you,
"Who's girl are you?"

The answer is usually,
"Daddy's girl."
Or "Mommy's girl."
Or even "Grandpa's girl."

When I was a little girl
And someone asked me,
"Who's girl are you?"
I would answer with great enthusiasm,
"Al's girl."

I had a very special Uncle growing up and his name was Al...Many of you would know him as "the guy from the Post Office." This poem is written in memory of Al Rux who passed away on May 5, 2001.
His birthday is August 9...
Happy Birthday, Uncle Al!

End Dependence Day August 10

End Dependence Day, a celebration and memory of Jay Johnson's life and accomplishments, will be held on Friday, August 10, from noon to 4 p.m. at LaFave Park in East Grand Forks.

T.H.E. Bus driver wins 'roadeo' competition

Alan Altepeter

On Saturday, July 28, Alan Altepeter, a public transit driver from Tri-Valley Heartland Express, claimed first place in the small bus division during the Minnesota Department of Transportation's 14th annual bus "roadeo."

The competition involves personal appearance, driving skills, safety habits, smoothness of operations, bloodborne pathogen training and a written quiz.

The roadeo gives drivers the opportunity to test their skills on an obstacle course that simulates the daily driving challenges they face while transporting passengers. Drivers run through a series of obstacles that represent actual circumstances encountered on their daily routes. The event also provides a forum for drivers and transit managers to share information and expertise related to transit system operations.

Transit system managers and staff from Mn/DOT conduct the judging. Forty-seven drivers from 24 transit systems participated.

The Tri-Valley Heartland Express provides public transportation for Polk, Marshall, Norman, Red Lake and Pennington counties. About the competition, Michael S. Frisch, transportation program manager, says, "We are proud to have drivers of this caliber driving for us."

PARENTING TIPS

When Your Toddler Hits!

As the title, "When Your Toddler Hits," implies, all children hit other children and will be hit. The question, then, is: how should a parent handle hitting? According to some experts aggressive urges are really a sign of positive development. In other words your toddler is trying to stand up for himself and to protect himself and is actively pursuing what he wants. However this does not mean that you should allow this behavior to continue. Your child's behavior must be shaped to the rules and expectations of society.

There is a big difference, however, between teaching a child to suppress his aggressive urges and teaching him to channel them. You want your child to know that his behavior is unacceptable to you. You also want him to know that, while you are unhappy about his hitting, you do not disapprove of his standing up for himself. Therefore you will need to offer your child alternatives to hitting.

Parents Magazine offers these alternatives:

- Set limits
- Expect appropriate behavior from your child
- Don't use hitting to discipline
- Be a good role model
- Don't shame your child
- When a child is hit, step in and offer protection
- Keep your message brief
- Redirect behavior.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Help your child to use words instead of blows. Even a toddler can say "Don't!" and "Mine!" Also teach your child to ask for things rather than to grab for them.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Fruit Salad

I'm sure I'm starting my days smelling like a fruit salad. But what can I do?

Every morning a lot of smelly stuff gets spread on and rinsed off, sprayed, squirted, spritzed and daubed onto me, and all of it seems to be fruit-, spice-, flower- or herb-scented. No matter whether it is rinsed off or not, the scents are going to stay with me throughout the day. And that doesn't even take into account the ever-present scent of my laundry detergent and fabric softener.

First of all, I get into the shower and wash my hair. Have you ever noticed how they seem to have just a little different amounts in those same-sized bottles of sweet-smelling shampoo or conditioner? It's just enough so that a person never seems to finish using up both bottles at the same time, no matter how hard she tries to use exactly the same amount from each. So, usually what happens is that I use up one or the other and then head off to the store to buy more of whatever it is that I used up. Get to the store and what has happened? They quit making it. Now I have to find something else - another scent.

Then it's time to lather up with another scented product. I'm sure you've noticed the many different scents those body washes come in. First of all, I have a terrible time picking out just one. I want to buy six or seven different ones, at least, because they all smell so good. Trouble is, my nose clogs up after smelling three or four, so I have no idea of what I am buying after that. But, nonetheless, it's lather up with something smelly every morning, and it always smells so wonderful! I sometimes think of taking a little taste. Do you?

After the lather, it's time to towel off and then, lest we turn into a 'gator, slather on the body lotion. It's scented, of course, and naturally it's a different scent than the body wash we just used. But yummy-smelling too.

Now it is time to brush the teeth with peppermint-scented paste and swish the mouth with a different minty mouthwash. (Why don't they make toothpaste in cherry or almond flavors?) Don't forget to glop a little mousse on the hair, just to keep it in place, and maybe use a little cream to make it shine or take out the frizz. Of course neither of these products smells like the other, so we can add a couple more smells to ourselves. Wash the little cheekies now - another scent - and then be sure to tone up the old pores - with another scent.

Once you get out of the bathroom and back to the bedroom, the smells don't stop. My face moisturizer has a scent, my foundation has another scent, and that little daub of powder to keep the nose from shining has another scent. I don't have any idea if the brush of blush I put on has a scent, but it probably does, as does the lip gloss. After drying and curling the hair, it is time to give it a squirt or two of hair spray to keep it from falling flat in the humidity - another scent.

Just in case all of this squirting and spritzing has, perchance, caused me to work up a bit of a glow (you know - women don't sweat - they glow), it's a good idea to dust on some body powder before rolling or spraying on the daily deodorant. None of these items smells vaguely like the other things we've used today either. Are we done? Maybe not - put a little extra lotion on those dry heels, knees and elbows too. I think my extra lotion for these areas smells a little like spearmint or wintergreen. Whatever.

When I'm finished, there I am - fruit salad. These days I smell of watermelon, raspberry, vanilla, peppermint, wintergreen, spearmint, almond, cherry, sunflowers, cinnamon, and probably more. If you put me in a bowl, I'd be very appetizing, wouldn't I?

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

Everything has a purpose, or so I have heard. So, let us search for a purpose behind this recent wave of heat and humidity.

If the heating and cooling people were short of business before, they aren't now. I have put off installing air conditioning for the past three cool summers. I figured I would only use it five days per year.

No longer. Something has to happen here. This is ridiculous. It is nearly 11 p.m. and I am pouring with sweat. The prospects for sleep tonight are not good. Money is no object. What are credit cards for? I am calling tomorrow.

The air is wet and stagnant, heavy with the rich smell of weed pollen. My glasses fog up when I open the fridge. Condensation pours from the toilet tank. Central Air, How I Long to Feel Thy Breezes Blow!

It is clear that the sultry weather is good for the heating and cooling sector. But what good does this late summer sauna do for the rest of us?

The heat makes us forget how bad winter is, that's what it does. With my bare back stuck to the back of this vinyl chair and my glasses slid to the end of my nose for the fortieth time today, I can actually hear the thought of 20 below zero.

This afternoon I heard a well respected and reputedly sane person utter out loud in public the following phrase: "Boy, I sure wouldn't mind seeing some snow."

Six months ago, those words would have ruined the gentleman's good standing in the community. Today, his sentiments were seconded at once and immediately approved by a unanimously voiced vote of all three present.

About this time of year, we start to think, what's so bad about winter anyway?

Cold weather can invigorate. Head outside for a little bit, shovel the walk, trudge up for the mail, brush off the car, pop back in the house, stomp off the snow, peel off the layers, heat up some hot chocolate, toss another log on the fire. Sounds like fun.

Light a candle, wrap up in a quilt, read a book, throw on an extra afghan, go to bed early. That's what winter's all about.

Remember how the snow pack crunches when you back your vehicle out of the garage? What a cozy, nostalgic, relaxing sound. Maybe next winter I will record it.

What fun to punch through a fresh drift with my four wheel drive. I can't wait to risk my life running to town for milk in a blizzard. Storm warnings, cancellations, sunsets before supper, lost gloves, Christmas shopping on icy streets, none of it sounds too bad.

The heat has a purpose. It takes the edge off the memory of winter's worst.

But at the same time, the heat threatens to make us forget that the corn on the cob is ripe, the garden is full of tomatoes, the flowers are in full bloom, the Twins are in first place, the Vikings look tough again, and harvest is underway.

Hot or cold, August is a good month.

New guidelines will help doctors treat children with elevated blood lead

New state guidelines are now available to help Minnesota doctors treat children with elevated blood lead levels.

The guidelines were developed by a special Blood Lead Clinical Treatment Work Group, which was convened last year by the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH).

Work on the guidelines began in May of last year and concluded in September. The guidelines were developed partly as a response to concerns that had been expressed by physicians regarding the care provided to children with high blood lead levels.

"Many physicians have little or no experience when it comes to treating this condition," Myron Falken of the MDH Childhood Lead Poison Prevention Program (CLPPP) said. "There was a very real concern about whether physicians had access to the most current information on treating elevated blood lead cases, and whether children were getting consistent treatment throughout Minnesota."

The new guidelines are designed to take physicians through the treatment process step-by-step, and help them make informed decisions about what needs to be done, Falken said.

"This isn't intended to be a rigid set of prescriptions," Falken said. "It's a tool that physicians can use in making decisions about treatment."

The new guidelines focus specifically on the medical treatment of elevated blood lead. They will supplement two other sets of guidelines, developed earlier, dealing with lead issues. Those guidelines focused on the screening of children for elevated blood lead levels, and the coordination of medical, social and public health services for children diagnosed with this condition.

The guidelines offer chelation therapy–a treatment that helps the body rid itself of lead–as an option for treatment if a child's blood lead level is between 20 and 44.9 micrograms per deciliter of blood. The guidelines say that use of chelation is definitely indicated if a child's blood lead levels are 45 micrograms per deciliter or above.

The treatment guidelines are already being distributed to physicians throughout the state. The guidelines have been reviewed and endorsed by the Minnesota Medical Association, the Minnesota Nurses Association, the Minnesota Association of Family Physicians and the Minnesota Chapter of American Academy of Family Physicians.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. My disability letter said I need to tell the Social Security Administration about changes in my resources. What is a resource?

A. Resource limits are, in addition to household income, one of the areas looked at when determining if a person is eligible for need-based Supplemental Security Income (SSI). In short, a resource is something you own that has value such as cash or bank accounts, your home, a vehicle or life insurance policy. Overall, an individual can have a total of $2,000 in countable resources and continue to be eligible for SSI.

Many resources do not count toward this goal. The home you live in, most household goods and one vehicle are not usually included, and some advance burial funds do not count.

This explanation is very general. For more information, see the booklet, "What You Need to Know When You Get SSI," Social Security publication 05-11011. The booklet is available at any Social Security office and by calling the national toll free number at 1-800-772-1213.

Note that resource limits pertain only to SSI benefits and not to Social Security benefits.

Q. I just found out that either my birth certificate is wrong or else I have always used the incorrect birth date. According to my birth certificate, I was born on July 15, and I have always used July 16 as my date of birth. Also, the first name on the birth certificate has a different spelling than the name I use. Is this going to be a problem when I retire? Do I need to get the certificate changed?

A. Based on the information you have provided, this is not a problem. You do not need to get the birth record changed. If you said you were born on their the first or second day of the month, the birth date would be very material, but once past those days, only the month and year are important for Social Security purposes.

the misspelling of your name should not be a problem as long as the birth record is readily identifiable as being the same name. Multiple variations of some names exist as do commonplace nicknames, and we work with them all of the time. A problem would exist if your name were very different from the one shown on your birth certificate. In that case, you would need to show secondary evidence that you are the person referred to.

Q. Why did by Supplemental Security Income (SSI) go down when my Social Security started?

A. SSI is a federal need-based program administered by the Social Security Administration. It is a separate and very different program from Social Security and is paid for by general tax revenues, not Social Security money.

Benefit amounts for SSI are based on living arrangements, such as household composition and income. Household income from most sources, including someone paying your bills, your wages or those of your spouse or other income such as from the VA or Social Security, lowers the basic SSI amount payable. It is worth noting that although your Social Security benefits caused your SSI to go down, you are still receiving more between both programs than you were from SSI alone.

Q. Does receiving SSI give you any medical coverage?

A. Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits do not carry any specific medical coverage by themselves. However, most people who qualify for this federal need-based program also meet the eligibility requirements for Medicaid (medical assistance). Your county Social Services, not the Social Security Administration, makes decisions about who receives Medicaid.

Board of Water and Soil Resources approves grant projects

The Minnesota Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR) has awarded $2 million in grants to local governments for 65 conservation and natural resources projects and activities.

The grants are competitive challenge grants provided through the state's Local Water Resources Protection and Management Program, which helps counties, watershed districts, and watershed management organizations carry out priorities identified in a county or watershed comprehensive local water plan. Local governments provide matching dollars for the projects, ranging from a one-to-one to a two-to-one match.

Nearly $1.4 million of the total grant funding came from the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR). John Velin, LCMR executive director, notes that part of the program's strength comes by leveraging state money in partnership with local sponsors and private landowners. "These projects are defined by local authorities and result in solid, beneficial environmental effects across the state," he added. "This grant program engages local governments and rewards them with implementation money for priorities in their plans. It's an incentive to keep local governments moving forward on good planning efforts."

About half of the funding will go to apply conservation practices to the land, such as stabilizing shorelands, restoring native vegetation, or constructing runoff or stormwater treatment measures. The remaining money will be used to help local governments develop plans, complete feasibility studies, cover the cost of design and engineering, or develop environmental controls such as zoning ordinances.

"These grant dollars build capacity of local governments and help them address water management priorities listed in their local water plans," said Ron Harnack, executive director of BWSR. "It results in programs on the ground and is driven by local priorities." Additionally, the grants can help build coalitions among local governments, he said.

Paula West, executive director of the Minnesota Lakes Association, said that the $350,000 dedicated for lake management planning is an important first step in empowering citizens to be the managers of Minnesota lakes. "The fact that Minnesota's lake management authority is fragmented and spread throughout a number of state and local agencies necessitates that lake associations take on the critical role of promoting and coordinating management of lakes," she said. "By working through the local government, the grants encourage a strong public/private partnership that will ensure that the resources, expertise, and motivated manpower is in place to make each project a success."

Local governments submitted 101 applications for a total of $3.8 million in challenge grant funding requests. The following is a list of successful grant applications in this area with a short description of the project, project type, resource, and program manager (contact).

Minnesota Planning releases report

"Growing Rural Economic Success," the latest report in a series of publications examining issues facing rural Minnesota, was released recently by Minnesota Planning. The report outlines potential rural development options using analysis of changes in rural Minnesota's economy and demographics from Census 2000.

Not all regions of Minnesota shared equally in the economic growth of the 1990s. The report emphasizes regional differences and notes that such diversity requires unique community development plans. The report contains suggested strategies in six areas, including leveraging financial capital, energizing the business spirit, enhancing the work force, providing a solid infrastructure, protecting natural resources and creating a community vision. Examples from around the country are also provided.

Dean Barkley, director of Minnesota Planning, said, "All levels of government and the private sector must continue to find ways to work together to sustain and bring economic success to the four corners of the state."

"Growing Rural Economic Success" is available on the Internet at www.mnplan.state.mn.us and by calling Minnesota Planning at (651) 296-3985.

Minnesota Planning is an agency that develops long-range plans for the state, stimulates public participation in Minnesota's future and coordinates activities among all levels of government.

Conservation programs may pay more than crops on marginal land

Trying to clear a profit growing crops in lowland areas next to streams and ditches can be a formidable task. It's especially tough when there's a wet spring. There has been a lot of crop loss in such areas this year, notes Blue Earth County educator Kent Thiesse of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Thiesse says it may be easier to generate income from lowland areas and other marginal cropland by enrolling the land in a federal conservation program. Two options are the Continuous Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) and the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP).

"The annual rent payment per acre for land in Continuous CRP is usually comparable to the average cash rent rate on the land," says Thiesse. "The Continuous CRP annual rent payment continues for the 10 to 15-year period the land is enrolled in the program. In addition, the landowner gets a CRP signing incentive payment of $100-$140 per acre as an up-front bonus."

Among the conservation practices that qualify for Continuous CRP are filter strips, riparian buffers and grass waterways. Most of the installation costs are covered through additional incentive payments.

Land anywhere in the Minnesota River watershed is eligible for enrollment in CREP, says Thiesse. This program provides for development of riparian buffers and wetland restoration in frequently flooded cropland in the floodplain of the Minnesota River and its tributaries.

"CREP is a combination of the federal CRP and state Re-Invest in Minnesota (RIM) programs," says Thiesse. "Participants receive annual CRP payments for 15 years, plus an up-front 40 percent RIM signing bonus. Many of the enrollment contracts may also be eligible for the continuous CRP bonus."

The CREP program was fully funded during the recently completed session of the Minnesota Legislation, says Thiesse. The goal is to enroll 100,000 acres in CREP by 2002, and so far, about half of the goal has been reached.

Landowners interested in the Continuous CRP program should contact either their county Natural Resources Conservation Service or Farm Service Agency office. Information on the CREP program is available from county Soil and Water Conservation District offices.

Thiesse has written an information sheet entitled "Financial Opportunities through Government Conservation Programs." It's available from the Blue Earth County Extension Office at (507) 389-8325, or on the Extension Service web site at http://www3.extension.umn.edu/county/blueearth/.

Affordable Housing, Economic Development Efforts Get Mixed Results in 2001

by Sen. Roger Moe

After nearly a decade of robust economic expansion in much of Minnesota, we are gaining more awareness that the growth cycle is finally slowing. We don't know yet if the state economy is merely leveling off, or possibly headed into a recessionary cycle.

In either event, it is now safe to say that predictions of a "new economy" featuring continuously strong economic growth were not very realistic. Those of us living in communities where the "new economy" never really arrived understand that the potential for an economic downturn is never too far off.

From this perspective, legislators and the Governor entered into a policy debate this year regarding jobs, economic development and affordable housing. For the most part, the Senate position prevailed favoring preparedness for any economic challenges ahead.

Governor Ventura and House Republicans proposed major changes and a much-reduced state commitment to programs that help laid-off workers make the transition into new employment. In fact, the Governor had proposed eliminating the displaced homemaker program and House Republicans want to cut the dislocated workers program by more than half.

Laid-off workers turn to the dislocated workers program for help in their job search through career counseling, training for new skills and job placement. Additionally, they often receive child care and transportation assistance, or other supportive services while looking for a job.

Beyond a doubt, these employ*ment services provided* by the state are needed in our rapidly changing economy. Many new jobs created utilize new skills. At the same time, other occupations calling for outdated skills no longer fit in. In order to keep the economy strong, we must respond to the realities of a changing work environment.

The recent state job statistics clearly highlight the need. Minnesota unemployment claims increased by more than 80 percent in the Spring 2001 quarter compared with the same three-month period one year earlier. We recently reached a new level of joblessness not seen since the last economic downturn in the early 1990s.

In the final analysis, the Senate managed to preserve previous funding levels for the dislocated worker program and achieve full funding of the displaced homemaker program. This wasn't easily accomplished in the face of demands from Governor Ventura and the House Republicans to use every available dollar for tax restructuring and relief.

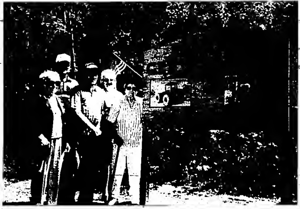
In the effort to meet the statewide need for affordable housing, the Senate was far less successful than in the recent years.

An important aspect of economic development, especially in our rural communities, is the availability of affordable housing. Most renters can verify that the cost of rental housing has far outstripped the rate of inflation over the past several years. At the same time, the cost of modest homes in most communities has grown faster than the average increase in household income for the families who hope to buy them.

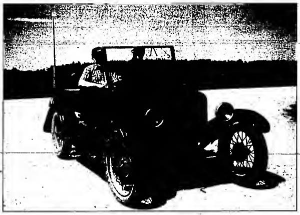
From the perspective of major employers hoping to locate or expand in our rural centers, the availability of nearby affordable housing for workers is almost always a major factor in the decision. Too often, these businesses find that the lack of affordable housing presents a significant obstacle to their plans for growth.

In the past two years, the Legislature allocated more than $120 million in new funding for affordable housing. But this year, we managed only $24 million in new funding for affordable housing. While these dollars surely will make a difference, they won't begin to solve the substantial housing-cost problem facing employers and modest-income working families.

Given the overwhelming emphasis on immediate tax cuts and costly restructuring of the tax system as sought by Governor Ventura and the Republicans, there was limited success in setting aside a portion of the budget surplus for economic development and affordable housing needs. However, we were able to maintain our position to assist qualified workers in need of jobs. With economic uncertainty apparent in the state's future, our investments in these areas should put Minnesota in a better position to respond to a potential economic downturn.



Pearson relatives and friends gathered to observe the 100th anniversary of the Pearson's farming in Thief Lake Township on Saturday, July 7. The event was postponed from the actual date a year ago due to health reasons. The late John Pearson homesteaded the land, a $150 investment, in the yet unnamed Thief Lake Township in 1900. He and his wife Stene raised five children of whom Bertha, born in 1906, and Sam, born in 1916, survive. Pictured [front, left] are Bertha Folden of Minneapolis; Sam and Inge Pearson of Middle River, who lived on the farm until October 1996; [back, left] Gary Pearson of Middle River; and Marion Deuner of Bloomington. Gary and Marion are both children of Sam and Inge. Gary and his wife Arlette currently live on the Pearson farm, and Marion lives in Bloomington. Of the third generation, all nine were present to celebrate the anniversary.



Gary Pearson [right] takes his father Sam Pearson (left) for a ride in their 1926 Model T Ford. The Pearsons recently enjoyed their 100th farm anniversary in Thief Lake Township on Saturday, July 7. This Model T was converted to a pickup and used on the Pearson farm. In the 1970s Sam brought it back to life after it had been parked outside by the fuel tanks for 30 years. Gary is now in charge of maintaining the antique. Many enjoyed rides around the farm as part of the centennial anniversary events.

POW/MIA Recognition Day slated for Sept. 21

The Department of Veterans Affairs Medical and Regional Office Center in Fargo, N.D. will join the POW/MIA Public Awareness Project on Friday, September 21, at 3 p.m. for POW/MIA Recognition Day.

The program will be held at the Center for Arts Building at Minnesota State University Moorhead. Former POW and renowned artist Ben Steele will be the guest speaker. Steele's art exhibit will also be on display for public viewing.

The program is in recognition of the special sacrifices of POWs, MIAs and their families. The bravery, suffering and profound devotion to duty of POWs and MIAs have earned them a preeminent place in the hearts of all Americans.

Former prisoners of war, families of MIAs, veterans and the public are invited to attend the recognition service.

NightCAP officers combat underage drinking and impaired driving

Safe and Sober Nighttime Concentrated Alcohol Patrol (NightCAP) officers from the Minnesota State Patrol, Red Lake County Sheriff's Office, Red Lake Falls Police Department and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will work overtime shifts Saturday, August 4 in an effort to apprehend underage drinkers and impaired drivers.

Troopers, deputies, and police officers involved in the cooperative enforcement effort will stop drivers for any vehicle offense. The State Patrol will continue to work NightCAP saturations with county and local law enforcement across the state in an effort to reduce alcohol-related crashes and deaths.

Last year, there were 625 traffic deaths in Minnesota and 245 of these deaths were attributed to alcohol. The message is clear and simple, don't drink and get behind the wheel.

A report on the number of NightCAP traffic stops, DWI arrests and other violations resulting from the weekend's activity will be available on the State Patrol media information line at (320) 255-4234 by 8 a.m. Monday August 6.

Sen. Roger Moe Named Legislator of the Year

Senate Majority Leader Roger Moe was named Legislator of the Year Thursday by the Coalition of Greater Minnesota Cities.

Moe, a DFLer from Erskine, was singled out for his efforts to protect Greater Minnesota interests in the House-Senate tax negotiations last session. He was presented the coalition's top award at its annual summer conference after he, House Speaker Steve Sviggum, R-Kenyon, and Deputy Revenue Commissioner Dennis Erno reviewed the implications of property tax reform.

Tim Flaherty, executive director of the coalition, said Moe demonstrated throughout the long tax negotiations his capacity to compromise, as well as his ability to say "no" when it was required.

Moe stood firm for equity in education funding, Flaherty said, and held fast to bringing more metro-rural balance to the property tax relief plan. He made sure that the concerns of Greater Minnesota were not overlooked in the debate, Flaherty said.

"Moe has spent his career pursuing a philosophy that is based on the notion that a strong state is the product of a robust metropolitan area and a vigorous Greater Minnesota," he said. "Moe believes that for Minnesota to be strong, wealth must be shared throughout the state."

Rochester Mayor Chuck Canfield, outgoing president of the coalition, said other legislators and cities must also stand up for Greater Minnesota.

"Tax reform is not finished," Canfield said. "It is vitally important that our city officials and legislators take an active role in the legislative process to ensure that the interests of Greater Minnesota are not ignored."

Moe, Sviggum and Erno offered the coalition sharply different views of proper tax policy when the three men reviewed the property tax changes the Legislature enacted in June.

While Moe conceded that some of the changes made by the Legislature were important reforms, he made it clear that he was worried about the long-term impact of deep property tax cuts for businesses, cabins, and high-valued homes.

"The basic tenent of a fair tax policy is fairness," Moe said, maintaining that the tax changes proposed by Gov. Jesse Ventura and the House did not meet the test. "The new property tax plan shifts tax burden from people who own two homes to people who own one. It shifts the tax burden off high-valued homes and onto low- and middle valued homes."

If the state finds itself unable to adequately fund several property tax relief programs, Moe said, a substantial shift in property tax burden will occur.

Sviggum defended the tax reforms, saying the changes do a better job of connecting people who request government services with the costs of providing the services. He said some property taxpayers could see tax reductions of up to 30 percent.

"Not everybody gets everything they want – not even the CGMC and schools," he said.

Sviggum insisted that the property tax changes passed by the Legislature would prove to be durable. Local levy limits were imposed on local governments for two years, he said, to ensure that the tax relief passed by the Legislature reached local taxpayers. At the same time, he said, flexibility was built into tax reforms to allow local officials to continue to run their cities.

"I hope you feel there is a balance," Sviggum said.

Erno said governors and their staffs have known for some time that the tax gap between various classes of property had to be narrowed. Governors have repeatedly tried to make the property tax a more local tax that has "more accountability and more understandability."

"We wanted a more direct connection between local citizens and local governments," he said.

In spite of assurances from Erno and Sviggum, Detroit Lakes Mayor Larry Buboltz, chairman of the coalition's tax committee, said city officials remained concerned about the long-term impacts of the tax changes. City officials in Greater Minnesota were disappointed that property tax reform would actually increase the tax disparities that already exist between cities and townships.

"We are frustrated with levy limits," he said. "It is a trust issue."

The CGMC is a nonprofit advocacy organization that represents 64 cities outside of the Twin Cities metropolitan area. The coalition educates legislators about issues important to greater Minnesota.

Frequently Asked Questions about the 2001 advance tax payments

The Treasury Department is currently mailing 2001 advance payment checks to eligible taxpayers throughout the nation. This mass mailing project is expected to continue until the end of September.

The IRS emphasized that taxpayers don't need to call, fill out special forms or do anything else to receive the check. The tax agency will automatically initiate any check due once it has processed the person's 2000 tax return.

The IRS has handled large volumes of calls on its toll-free hotlines since mailing notices about the advance payments to taxpayers who filed returns earlier this year. The IRS noted that much of the information taxpayers are looking for may be found in the notices or on the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov.

To help taxpayers with questions about the advance payments, the IRS has these answers to some of the most common questions being asked.

1. Who doesn't qualify for an advance payment check this year? If you did not pay any income tax for 2000, you are not eligible for the advance payment. Your 2000 return will show if you did not pay income tax. If line 51 on form 1040 is zero, there was no income tax and you will not receive an advance payment check. Form 1040A filers should look at line 33; 1040EZ filers, line 10.

If you could be claimed as a dependent on another person's 2000 return, you are also ineligible for an advance payment. Look at box 6a on form 1040 or 1040A. If you used form 1040EZ, look at which box you checked on line 5. If you left box 6a blank, or you checked "yes" on form 1040EZ's line 5, you will not get an advance payment.

2. I moved after I filed my taxes–how will my check get to me? If you've moved since filing your tax return, you should file a change of address form with the U.S. Postal Service. Unlike some government checks, these can be forwarded to a new address.

3. I paid taxes last year, and I wasn't anyone's dependent–how come I'm not getting an advance payment check? You may have paid Social Security taxes or self-employment tax, but you must have paid income tax for 2000 to get an advance payment check. For this information, look at your form 1040, line 51–if it's zero, then you did not pay any income tax. For form 1040A, see line 33; form 1040EZ, see line 10. Line 56 of form 1040 or line 35 of form 1040A are not the correct lines to check–they include other taxes and advance earned income credit amounts.

4. I had income tax withheld from my pay all year–why does the IRS say I didn't pay any tax? You may have had income taxes withheld from your paychecks, but then you got all of that withholding back through a refund. This would happen if your exemptions and deductions reduced your taxable income to zero, or if certain credits, such as the child tax credit or education credits, reduced your tax to zero. In such cases, you did not pay any income tax and you do not qualify for an advance payment check. But if you had a tax liability before subtracting the Earned Income Tax Credit, you would be able to get a check.

5. I think my advance payment check is the wrong amount–what can I do? Your check may have been reduced–even to zero–by taxes you owed or by non-tax federal debts, such as certain child support obligations or student loans. In such a case, you should receive a letter explaining the reduction. The advance payment amount is based on the information shown on your 2000 tax return or as adjusted by the IRS during processing. The IRS cannot re-figure the amount because of later adjustments or an amended return.

6. I heard that the advance payments were for $300, but mine is only $100–is there any way I can get the rest? The advance payment is based on your 2000 taxes, but your situation may be different this year. If your advance payment–before any reduction for taxes or other debts–is less than maximum permitted for your filing status, you may be able to claim an additional credit when you file your 2001 tax return. The maximum amounts are $300 for single or married filing separately; $500 for head of household; and $600 for married filing jointly or qualifying widow(er). A worksheet in the tax instructions will help you to figure any credit you qualify for, based on your 2001 tax data.

7. My spouse and I made more than $12,000 last year–how come we're not getting a $600 advance payment check? The advance payment is based on your taxable income, not your gross income. Your taxable income is what's left after you subtract your standard or itemized deductions and your personal exemption amounts. For example, a couple with two children would have four personal exemptions, worth $11,200, and a standard deduction of $7,350, for a total subtraction of $18,550. This couple would need gross income of at least $30,550 to have taxable income of $12,000 and get the maximum $600 advance payment.

8. I filed my return by mid-April and I know the IRS received it because my tax payment check was cashed. Why haven't I gotten a notice about my advance payment? Some taxpayers who filed their returns by the April deadline and sent a payment with the return may not yet have received a notice about their advance payment check. If you are getting a check, you will receive a notice, but it may not arrive until a week or two before the check does. If you are not eligible for a check, you will receive a notice to that effect after your return is processed. When the IRS prepared the names in June for the initial notice mailout, it had not finished processing all the returns filed in April. This is because it first processes the payment checks, then the refund returns, and finally the returns that came with the payments. The IRS usually completes this third stage of processing sometime in July.

Pesticide Applicator Ed. Board seeks private applicator to fill vacant position

The Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) encourages private pesticide applicators to apply for an open position on Minnesota's Pesticide Applicator Education and Examination Review Board (PAEERB).

This 15-member board is established by Minnesota Statute 18B.305, Subd. 3 and was reauthorized until June 30, 2003 by the Legislature this spring. It reviews and evaluates pesticide applicator training and examinations to increase effectiveness and discuss topics of concern that can be incorporated into training and examinations.

One of the primary upcoming topics to be discussed by the board will be the decline in the number of private applicators and its implications for the certification program.

Members of the board represent agriculture, turf, aerial, aquatic structural and private pesticide applicators, and other governmental agencies, including the University of Minnesota, the Pollution Control Agency, Department of Health, Department of Natural Resources, and the Department of Transportation. Membership on the board must include representatives from environmental protection organizations. Meetings are held at the MDA for four hours on a quarterly basis.

Applications will be taken by the Secretary of State's Office from August 6 through August 28, 2001. Applicants are encouraged to provide a résumé and must fill out the "Open Appointments Application for Services" form which can be obtained on the Secretary of State's website at www.sos.state.mn.us/openapp/index.html, by calling Katy Vanderpoel at 651-215-1436 or by e-mail at open.appointments@state.mn.us.

Dayton disappointed by passage of smaller emergency ag package

Senator Mark Dayton said today that the Senate passage of $5.5 billion in emergency agriculture assistance falls far short of the amount needed to provide real assistance for farmers, and railed against Senate Republicans and President Bush for using stalling tactics which made it impossible to pass a more complete package that included relief for producers in Minnesota and across the country, who continue to be battered by low farm prices.

Dayton, a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said that the combination of a Republican filibuster and Presidential veto-threat of the Senate's $7.5 billion emergency agriculture relief package forced the Senate to instead pass the smaller House-passed package, in order to get at least some of the payments out to farmers before the September 30 deadline. As a result, he said, Minnesota farmers lost $82.7 million in desperately-needed payments, including $18 million to help sugar beet farmers in 16 Central Minnesota counties who suffered losses last October when an early frost destroyed their sugar beets.

"Because of the delay tactics employed by the Republicans, the Senate had no choice but to pass the smaller emergency assistance package, so that we could guarantee that our farmers will get at least some relief, and I am glad this money will get to where it's needed," Dayton said. "But it is inexcusable for the Republican Party and President Bush to claim that this smaller relief package was all that is possible within the budget constraints."

Dayton noted that just yesterday, the House passed an energy plan that included $30 billion in tax credits for the energy industry, fully three times the amount the President had requested. Despite the fact that budget analysts question the ability to afford such giveaways, particularly for an industry that is enjoying record profits, the President raised no objections to the inflated cost of the plan passed by the House, and in fact said he was "pleased" with the plan.

"The clear message being sent here is that if you're a big energy company enjoying record profits, you get special dispensation from the White House in terms of tax giveaways and a release from the budget restrictions passed by Congress," Dayton said. "But if you're a family farmer in Minnesota or elsewhere in the country, going bankrupt because of low prices, that is when the White House decides there is not even an ounce of leeway in the budget, and threatens to veto the funding you need. This is not about what we can afford it is about how the President prioritizes what we can afford."

Dayton said that he has won a commitment from Senator Herb Kohl (D-WI), chairman of the Agricultural Appropriations Subcommittee, that as the committee considers funding for Agricultural programs for next year, he will make every effort to ensure that the sugar beet farmers in Southern Minnesota are provided with the assistance they were denied in the House emergency relief package that passed today. In addition, Dayton said that Senate Democrats will continue to fight for the additional $1.9 billion that was included in the Senate emergency relief package, when the Senate returns from recess in September.

class taught me to appreciate the meaning of art," said Jamie.

This new adventure began with a direct flight from London, England to Milan, Italy. From Milan she took the train to Florence, Rome, and Venice while in Italy.

"Rome was definitely my favorite city. It was absolutely phenomenal," said Jamie.

"David," a sculpture by Michelangelo, was an unforgettable site while in Florence. While in Rome, she visited the Sistine Chapel, the Vatican, and St. Peter's Cathedral.

From Rome Jamie took a ferry to Athens, Greece where she visited the Acropolis.

"Greece is the sixth most polluted city in the world. This city was my least favorite of all," said Jamie.

Her travels then brought her to the country of Norway. While in Norway, Jamie visited the cities of Lillehammer and Oslo.

Jamie stayed with Eeva Young, a high school classmate and close friend, when she was in Lillehammer.

"The natural beauty of Lillehammer was breathtaking. Eeva and I were also able to visit the Olympic Ski Jump on my visit," said Jamie.

Oslo was a special city for Jamie because her grandfather always spoke of visiting Oslo with her before he passed away. Jamie visited Veigland's Park in remembrance of her grandfather. It was also special because she has relatives living in Oslo, whom she was able to visit with on the telephone while in the city.

The next city Jamie visited was Berlin, Germany. She visited the concentration camps of World War II and the Berlin Wall while she was there.

"The concentration camps in Berlin were something I will never forget. I didn't take many pictures of this because I would rather remember it in my mind," said Jamie.

The Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame, and the Louvre, where the original painting of the "Mona Lisa" is kept, were significant sites of interest to Jamie while in Paris, France.

"Pictures do not do justice to any of the sites I visited. Words can't describe how I felt when I was there. I just had to stop and take in the moment," said Jamie.

The next city Jamie toured was Madrid, Spain where she visited the Prado Museum before returning to Reigate.

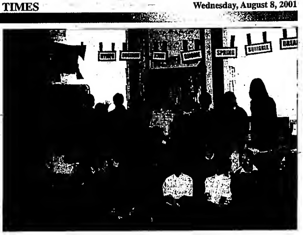
The last city Jamie visited during her 21 days of travel was Edinburgh, Scotland. She explored the Edinburgh castle and Sir Walter Scott's memorial before returning home.

"Traveling alone was special to me because I could visit and see whatever I wanted to. I took full advantage of the 24-hour days while I was there. And even though I was far away, things still reminded me of home," said Jamie. "I can't wait to go back someday. I absolutely loved it."

Jamie is a 1998 graduate of Lincoln High School. After graduation she attended Northland Community and Technical College for one year and then completed two years at Minnesota State University Moorhead where she attained her degree in elementary education. Jamie graduated in three years instead of the traditional four by taking two semesters of 26 credits.

After an interview on Monday, August 6, Jamie was offered and accepted the media specialist position at Challenger Elementary Preschool for the 2001-2002 school year.

Reigate Priory Primary School was the site of Jamie Kalsnes's two-month student teaching experience in Reigate, England. A dream of hers since the age of four, Jamie taught a class of fourth graders while at the Reigate school.



Jamie Kalsnes (back, right) recently completed her two-month student teaching experience in Reigate, England. She worked with Sarah Neill (back, left), the students' usual classroom teacher, at Reigate Priory Primary School teaching a fourth grade class.

Dayton Will Fight To Stop Passage of Dairy Policy

Senator Mark Dayton said today that he will use every tool at his disposal to fight efforts to expand the Northeast Dairy Compact, saying an expansion would only worsen unfair dairy policies that have cut income for Minnesota producers and contributed to the loss of thousands of dairy operations in the state.

Dayton said he will fight an expected amendment from Senators Mary Landrieu (D-LA) and Arlen Specter (R-PA) to make the Northeast Dairy Compact, which lets Northeast states set wholesale milk prices above federal levels – a permanent part of the nation's farm policy, and to allow the Southern and Western regions of the country to create their own dairy compacts.

Dayton, a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he will work with other Midwest Senators to stop the effort, which would artificially and unfairly raise dairy prices for producers in the Northeast, South and West at the expense of producers in Minnesota and the Upper Midwest.

"Dairy farms in Minnesota are being forced to shut down at an alarming rate. That has devastated the economic well-being of communities across the state," Dayton said. "I will strongly oppose any effort to expand unfair policies that have caused so many problems in the Upper Midwest. I will do everything in my power, even if that means participating in a filibuster to stop this attempt to unfairly raise prices for producers in some regions of the country at the expense of our dairy farmers in Minnesota."

Dayton noted that as the Senate begins work on a new federal farm bill, he would push for a national dairy policy that is fair to all producers in all regions. He said that attaching the controversial dairy compact legislation to the supplemental agriculture bill could jeopardize important emergency payments that farmers in Minnesota and throughout the country need to stay in business.

"There is no doubt that we need to take action to help raise prices for dairy farmers across the country," Dayton said. "But dairy issues should be addressed in the farm bill, not in this bill, which provides emergency and needed support for farmers in Minnesota and across the country who have been devastated by years of low prices."

Dayton has authored legislation to stop importers of foreign dairy products from circumventing U.S. trade law and flooding the U.S. market with products that have been slightly altered to get around U.S. tariff quotas. The practice pushes down already low prices that U.S. producers get for their products.

"The bottom line is, dairy farmers in all regions of the country deserve a fair price for their milk," Dayton said. "We must not create new policies which provide an unfair advantage to producers in certain regions, while others suffer from ever-lower prices and I will do everything I can to make sure we don't."

Dayton, along with Senator Paul Wellstone, will hold official U.S. Senate Agriculture Committee hearings in both Worthington and Stewartville next month to get input from Minnesotans on a new federal farm bill.

Wolds chosen as Emerging Leaders individual leadership and personality skills. Other sessions help participants develop leadership skills within their communities and help lobby for important legislation. The fourth and final session involves bringing all of the things the participants learned in the sessions together in a plan, which the participants take back to their county.

The Agassiz Leaders program has continued to grow. Two years ago, the program expanded to include the counties of Douglas, Pope, Traverse, Grant and Stevens. In all, there are 19 couples from 17 counties enrolled in the program.

The Agassiz Leaders program is supported through tuition and sponsorships from many organizations. The program itself is sponsored by the University of Minnesota Extension Service, and Northwest Minnesota Foundation.

This year's leaders from Pennington county have their roots in northwestern Minnesota. Tom graduated from East Grand Forks High School and has a degree from Moorhead State University in business administration. Kaylynn graduated from Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls and has an associate of arts degree from Northland Community College.

They strongly believe in supporting their community. Tom is the chairman of the Sanders township board, the Pennington County Township Association, a member of the board of directors for Bray-Gentilly Mutual Insurance Company, a church council representative at Zion Lutheran Church, a member of the board of evangelism, a member of the Minnesota Wheat Growers Association, and a member of the Minnesota Barley Growers Association.

Kaylynn is a member of the youth board at Zion Lutheran Church, teaches Sunday school, is a board member of Friends of the Library, volunteers for school activities, and assists with confirmation classes.

This year's Emerging Leaders for Pennington County are Tom and Kaylynn Wold of rural Thief River Falls. They were formally introduced as this year's Emerging Leaders prior to the Williams and Ree performance at the 2001 Pennington County Fair. Agriculture is "where it's at" in MN turkeys raised in 2000; third for hogs as of December 1, 2000, the pig crop for 2000 and hogs marketed in 2000; fifth for milk cows as of January 1, 2001 and dairy production for 2000; seventh in red meat production for 2000; ninth for eggs produced between December, 1999 and November 2000; and tenth for all chickens as of December 1, 2000.

It was also noted that Minnesota ranked 11th for cattle and calves as of January 1, 2001 and 12th for cattle and calves marketed in 2000 and its 2000 lamb crop.

In dairy products manufactured in 2000, Minnesota ranked second for American cheese, fourth for total cheese and butter, fifth for ice cream and sixth for Italian cheese.

Minnesota also ranked fourth for the number of mink pelts produced in 1999 and sixth for the amount of honey produced in 2000.

Statewide Statistics

The state is divided into nine Agricultural Statistics Districts with Pennington county being in Northwest District 10 along with Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Red Lake, Polk, Norman, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Clay and Becker counties.

Of Minnesota's counties, Polk county ranked fourth in cash farm receipts for 1999 under Stearns, Renville and Otter Tail counties and ahead of Kandiyohi, Martin, Redwood, Blue Earth, Brown and Morrison counties.

Polk county ranked first for 1999 crop receipts and Norman county ranked 10th with Renville, Clay, Redwood, Wilkin, Faribault, Chippewa, Martin and Blue Earth counties between them.

While none of the District 10 counties were among the top 10 for livestock receipts, Polk and Marshall counties topped the state for government payments in 1999 followed by Renville, Redwood, Martin, Faribault, Freeborn, Blue Earth, Stearns and Nobles counties.

When it comes to 2000 crop production in Minnesota, counties from Northwest District 10 occupied nearly 44 percent of the top ten spots.

Polk county ranked seventh in soybean production and first in all wheat productions followed by the following District 10 counties and rankings: Marshall, second; Kittson, third; Norman, fourth; Clay, fifth; Roseau, seventh; Pennington, eighth; and Otter Tail, tenth.

Otter Tail county ranked second in oats production with Roseau county ranking third, Kittson county ranking fifth and Pennington county tying Winona county for the ninth place spot.

Marshall county topped the state for barley production for 1999 followed by second place Roseau county, third place Polk county, fifth place Norman county, sixth place Pennington county, seventh place Kittson county, eighth place Clay county and ninth place Red Lake county.

With exception of the seventh ranking Wilken county, District 10 counties also dominated 1999 sunflower production in the following order: Roseau, Marshall, Norman, Polk, Kittson, Clay, Pennington, Otter Tail and Mahnomen counties.

Half of the state's top sugar beet production took place in District 10 in 1999 with Polk county in the top spot, Clay second, Norman fourth, Marshall fifth and Kittson county seventh.

Nine counties were listed among the state's top 1999 canola producers. Only fifth ranked Lake of the Woods county is not in District 10. Top rankings are as follows: Roseau, first; Marshall, second; Kittson, third; Pennington, fourth; Red Lake, sixth; Polk, seventh; Clay, eighth; and Clearwater county, ninth.

Kittson, Roseau and Marshall were the state's three top ranking counties for flaxseed production in 1999.

Five District 10 counties were ranked among the state's top 10 dry edible bean producers in 1999 and included Polk county, first; Marshall county, second; Otter Tail county, third; Mahnomen county, eighth; and Kittson county, ninth.

Otter Tail county, ranking second, and Becker county, ranking tenth, were among Minnesota's top all hay producers in 1999.

In 1999 potato production, District 10 counties filled five of the state's top nine spots and included Polk, second; Marshall, fifth; Clay, sixth; Kittson, eighth; and Red Lake county, ninth.

In livestock production, Otter Tail county was the most frequently ranked District 10 county as second for cattle and calves, beef cows and milk cows as of January 1, 2001, second for milk production in 2000 and third for breeding sheep and lambs as of January 1, 2001. The only other District 10 counties to be ranked for livestock were Clearwater and Roseau counties which ranked sixth and ninth respectively for beef cattle as of January 1, 2001.

Farm numbers

The 2000 total number of farms in Minnesota was estimated at 79,000, down 1,000 farms from 1999. A farm is defined as any establishment from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold or would normally be sold during the year. Government payments are included as sales. The farm definition also included places with five or more horses as a farm, except horses in boarding stables and race tracks.

The Minnesota number of farms in the $1,000 to $9,999 economic sales class decreased 500 to 30,000 in 2000, and those with sales in the $10,000 to $99,999 sales class decreased 500 from 1999 to 29,000 farms.

Minnesota commercial farms in the $100,000 and over sales class remained unchanged from 1999 at 20,000 in 2000.

From 1989 to 2000, the number of Minnesota farms decreased from 90,000 to 79,000.

Right Here at Home

In Pennington county it's wise to remember the previous farm definition when considering its number of farms which increased from 480 in 1992 to 528 in 1997.

Between 1992 and 1997, the total amount of land in farms increased from 280,089 acres to 312,752 acres, and the size of the average farm increased from 584 aces to 592 acres. The total number of cropland acres increased also from 243,524 acres in 1992 to 263,999 acres in 1997.

During those years the average age of a Pennington county farmer increased from 51 to 54 years old.

Numbers Tell a Story

While this article touches on how Minnesota ranks among agricultural producers nationally and how the counties in northwestern Minnesota play into those numbers, the publication by the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service tells a much bigger, more detailed story.

The truth is, we don't think much about where our food comes from as we stroll up and down the aisles of the supermarket. When we see the FritoLay truck, we don't ponder the fact that the corn and potatoes used to make those products were raised by farmers.

We also don't think about the fact that, although the agricultural news reported is often grim, Americans are among the healthiest and most well-fed people in history and that the farmers who provide our food are providing the world's growing population with safer, healthier food.

The bottom line is, agriculture and its significance in the "big picture" is very much worth our consideration.

The Thief River Falls Times

EGF ends season for TRF

■ Ninth District American Legion tournament

A five-run third inning propelled East Grand Forks to an 11-3 win over Thief River Falls in a Saturday afternoon match-up that eliminated Post 117 from the 2001 Ninth District Division I American Legion baseball tournament.

The winners, retired with ease by Thief River Falls pitcher John Marben the first two innings, sent nine batters to the plate in the third when five hits, a hit bats-man, and two errors put Post 117 in major trouble.

It was a tough-luck inning for Thief River Falls, starting with singles by No. 8 and 9 hitters Shawn O'Neil, who put a soft liner down the left field line, and Brad Beiswenger, whose bouncer took a high hop over third baseman Ben Weigelt. Jamie Kaiser tried to move the runners up with a sacrifice bunt, but instead got a bases-loading infield single out of it when Marben slipped on the turf while trying to field the ball.

Aaron Eckhoff then hit an infield grounder that produced an out at the plate. In an attempt to come up with a double play, catcher Steve Wiseth went back to first with a throw, but the ball was wide of the mark, allowing the initial run to score.

Thief River Falls coaches argued the runner was inside the base line as he headed to first, affecting the throw. There was, however, no change in the call, and when Matt Marek was hit by a pitch, the bases were loaded again.

Jon Johnson followed with a ground ball single just inside the bag at first, scoring two runs.

An error scored the fourth run and put runners at second and third for Eric Gast, whose fly ball to short left field fell in for an RBI single.

In the sweltering heat, the early game deficit against the tournament favorite created too big of a obstacle to overcome. Thief River Falls trailed 11-0 through 4 1/2 innings, but managed to score three times in the fifth to avoid a quick-ending 10-run rule decision.

"We had a couple of things that didn't fall our way early in the game, and it seemed to snowball on us," explained Thief River Falls coach Mike Wienen.

What hopes Thief River Falls had of coming back all but evaporated in the fourth when East Grand Forks added two more runs on a one-out base hit to center field by Beiswenger, and run-scoring singles to left by Kaiser and Marek for a 7-0 spread.

It became a double-digit deficit in the fifth as Matt Simonson singled, Danny Scheving doubled for a run; Beiswenger walked and later scored on a passed ball; Kaiser had an RBI single to right and wound up scoring on an error.

"I thought John Marben pitched well," offered Wienen. "They maybe had four or five hard-hit balls. The rest of them were bloopers that fell in."

East Grand Forks' Kyle Novacek cruised through four innings of two-hit shutout pitching, but couldn't finish it, walking four and allowing three runs to cross the plate in the bottom of the fifth before leaving the mound in frustration.

Thief River Falls scored on a ground-out by Jeremy Lian; a wild pitch; and an infield single by Wiseth.

"We got down on ourselves when we fell behind," admitted Wienen, "but the kids show a lot of heart by coming back, picking up a couple of runs and making it a complete game instead of getting beat by the 10-run rule. I was proud of them."

It was the seventh meeting of the year between the two rivals, with East Grand Forks winning five of them. Thief River Falls' season ended at 20-14.

Ninth District baseball title won by EGF team

East Grand Forks carried the tag of favorite going into the tournament and champion when it was done with a 5-0 title-winning performance in the eight-team, double-elimination 2001 Ninth District American Legion Division I baseball playoffs completed Saturday at the Multi-Events Center.

Final-day play included a 7-3 Detroit Lakes loser-out win over Perham and a pair of East Grand Forks victories – an 11-3 decision that eliminated host Thief River Falls and a 2-1 tournament-ending conquest of Detroit Lakes. A Detroit Lakes win over East Grand Forks Saturday would have necessitated a Sunday title-deciding rematch.

It's the first Ninth District crown for East Grand Forks since 1985. The title produces a berth in the American Legion state tournament Aug. 9-12 in Rochester.

The Ninth District games were scheduled to be played at Irv Wilson Field, but Tuesday storms that hit the area forced a site change to the new facilities at the Multi-Events Center. Wednesday's first round match-ups were the first baseball games played on the field, located east of Northland Community and Technical College.

An errant pick-off attempt at first allowed Thief River Falls runner Mike Drees to advance two bases during Friday's match-up against Fergus Falls in the Ninth District American Legion Division I baseball tournament loser-out bracket. Drees completed his slide as Fergus Falls third baseman Troy Wasloski looked on. Thief River Falls stayed alive in the double-elimination tournament with a 10-0 win.

Golf Club tournament finals scheduled for Sunday noon

A new champion will be crowned Sunday during the finals of the Thief River Golf Club tournament. Larry Coltom, the 2001 winner, did not land a spot in this year's Championship Flight during qualifying play.

Those eight qualifiers – Adam Nordin, Jeff Hendrickson, Rick Nikunen, Stan Sjoberg, Jeff Wiltse, Tim Delmore, John Sjoberg, and Tom Williams – will play 18-hole quarterfinal and semifinal matches Saturday to determine the final-day twosome.

Coltom will be part of the President's Flight, an eight-man field of golfers who played in the qualifying round, but did not make the quarterfinals. He will be joined by Derek Gustafson, Brett Lunke, Paul Sjoberg, Randy Peterson, Shane Peterson, Tyler Fitzel, and Gordy Peterson.

The tournament also includes three golfers in the Vice-President's Flight – Tommy Greelis, Joey Hallstrom, Jim Hellie – and will include other flight play matches based upon registration at the Thief River Golf Club Pro Shop.

Mike Wienen tried to make a point with home plate umpire Charlie Johnson, but the Thief River Falls coach wasn't able to change a call made during Saturday's Ninth District American Legion Division I baseball tournament game against East Grand Forks at the Multi-Events Center. Thief River Falls catcher Steve Wiseth and East Grand Forks on-deck batter Matt Marek listened to the conversation. East Grand Forks won the game 11-3, knocking Thief River Falls out of the eight-team, double-elimination event.

Post 117 handles Fergus Falls in loser-out showdown...

Best TRF game nets 10-0 win

Timing could not have been better. Thief River Falls played its best game of the 2000 season in the Friday afternoon heat to stay alive in the loser's bracket of the Ninth District American Legion Divison I baseball tournament with a 10-0 drubbing of Fergus Falls.

Pitcher Caleb Crapeau turned in a complete-game five-hit shutout; Steve Wiseth was 3-for-4 with a pair of doubles to lead a 10-hit attack; and the left side of the Post 117 infield that featured John Marben at shortstop and Ben Weigelt at third base turned in highlight film plays to extend the 2001 season for the Mike Wienen-coached ball club.

"We came ready to play," said Wienen. "I'm so proud of the kids for the way they played today. I think honestly this was our best game of the season. Caleb threw strikes; we hit the ball; and we played great defense."

The winners scored early and often in their first meeting of the year with Fergus Falls.

In the first inning, Mike Drees hit a one-out single to right field, went from first to third on an errant pick-off throw, and crossed the plate on a sacrifice fly by Wiseth.

Justin Skjerven led off the second inning with a fly ball double into the right-center field gap, advanced on a perfectly-placed sacrifice bunt by Weigelt and scored on a fielder's choice ball off the bat of Dane Jensen.

Post 117 doubled its lead in the third when Crapeau walked and Wiseth doubled, and both scored on a high throw on an infield ground ball hit by Jeremy Lian that sailed over the first baseman's head and down the right field line.

Thief River Falls might have clinched it in the fifth when Crapeau bounced a single up the middle, Wiseth beat out an infield hit and Lian's sacrifice bunt not only advanced the runners, but put him on first, too, when Fergus Falls couldn't get on out on the play. A ground-out by Skjerven scored a run, and Weigelt followed with a line drive two-run double to center for a 7-0 gap.

Marben doubled to open the sixth inning and scored on an infield ground-out by Crapeau.

Final two runs crossed the plate in the seventh when an inning-opening error and another double by Weigelt was followed by a ground-out for an RBI by Garrett Hoglo. Then, after a a two-out walk for a first-and-third situation, a pick-off and run-down play between first and second wasn't completed before Weigelt came home on a delayed steal of home.

It was a memorable Legion debut for Weigelt, who along with Josh Langlie, joined the 17-18-year-olds after spending the summer with the VFW program for 16-year-olds. Langlie was the winning pitcher in Thief River Falls' 13-1 second round victory over Crookston. Weigelt, in addition to his defense, was 2-for-3 at the plate with two doubles and two RBI.

"Ben had a great game," noted Wienen. "He made two great plays at third base, laid down that bunt in his first at-bat to get us going, and then ripped it twice for doubles in his next two at-bats."

Crapeau struck out four and walked just one for the third straight Thief River Falls complete-game pitching performance.

NCTC football players are given NJCAA recognition

Distinguished Academic All-America Awards from the National Junior College Athletic Association have been presented to two former Northland Community and Technical College football players – graduates Aaron Chirpich of Frazee and Jon Settingsgard of Edmore, N.D.

To be eligible for the award, players must maintain at least a 3.8 grade-point average and demonstrate leadership in community, school, and athletics.

Former Northland football head coach Dan Willoughby learned of the honors via the NJCAA website. "Aaron and Jon are exceptional students; leaders who have been dedicated on and off the field," said Willoughby, who resigned his coaching position following the 2000 season. "I am very proud of them and their hard work. They truly deserve this recognition."

Chirpich and Settingsgard are continuing their education at Bemidji State and North Dakota State, respectively.

Garrett Hoglo beat the throw to second base with a slide before East Grand Forks shortstop Aaron Eckhoff could make the tag on the Thief River Falls runner following a throwing error on a pick-off attempt at first base Saturday. East Grand Forks won the Ninth District American Legion Division I baseball tournament game 11-3, ending a 20-14 season for Post 117.

New swim coach will direct TRF

A week before the start of preseason practice, a new head swimming coach has been found for the Thief River Falls girls, it was announced by Jim Sims, Director of Student Activities for School District 564.

Jill Buck was named to fill the void left by the resignation at the end of the 2000-01 school year by Mary Helen Houlihan.

Buck is a 1985 Lincoln High School graduate, who swam for the Prowlers; served as a swimming instructor in Thief River Falls for four years; coached the Thief River Falls summer swim program in 1987; was a YMCA swim instructor in Fargo and Grand Forks in 1888 and 1989; worked with the Prowlers' swimmers as an assistant coach in 1995; and has been a lifeguard and water aerobics instructor.

The Prowlers' first-week practice drills for grades 6-12 Aug. 13-17 will include two sessions each day in the Franklin Middle School pool – 7-9 a.m. and 3-6 p.m.

GREENBUSH RACE PARK

After a three-week break in the action, the Greenbush Race Park returned to action Friday, Aug. 3, with the NOPA Pure Stocks Series. The best Pure Stocks car count of the season was on hand for a very entertaining event.

Clayton Pollock (Winnipeg, Man.) jumped out to the early lead and led the first five laps before being passed by Jim Hilmen (Lancaster). Hilman led the final 10 laps for the feature win. Mike Olson (Lancaster) would pass Pollock at the mid-way point of the feature to finish second, with Pollock winding up third.

Hilman continues to dominate the Pure Stocks points standings at the track.

Rod Peterson and Dave Meyer entered the night tied for the points lead in the Street Stocks class. The Thief River Falls racers finished first and second, respectively, in the feature – putting Peterson back on top by three points in the season-long standings. Peterson led the feature race flag-to-flag for the win. Jamen Foss (Greenbush) finished third.

Rick Bates (Badger) has been hard to beat in the Mini-Sprints over the past couple of races, and Friday was no different as he took the lead from Dennis Rantanen (Thief River Falls) on Lap 6 and then worked through lap traffic for the feature win. Rantanen, the points leader, finished second, with Clay Sorteberg (Greenbush), who led the opening lap of the race, finishing third.

Bob Shafer (Bemidji) made his second trip of the season to the Race Park and left with the Super Stocks feature win. Shafer raced flag-to-flag for the victory. Paul Berggren (Strandquist) was at the track for the first time this season and drove to a solid second place finish, with points leader Gordie Lancaster (Bemidji) finishing third.

After an opening lap incident that sent two cars back to the pits, the Modifieds ran 15 fast laps as Richie Berger (Badger) claimed his second feature win at the track this summer. Berger would lead the entire way en route to the checkered flag. Shannon Gust (Strathcona) was second, with Steve Arpin (Ft. Francis, Ont.) placing third. Arpin started tenth in the field and impressively worked his way to a solid third place finish.

Entering the night, Dave Riopelle (Argyle) had a slim points lead over Dean Forst (Thief River Falls). Riopelle exited the feature race early and Forst finished in seventh allowing Forst to take a slim lead in the Modifieds standings.

Greenbush Race Park will be back in action Saturday, Aug. 11, at 6:30 p.m. with the Northern Outlaw Sprint Car Special. They will be joined on the program by the Mini-Sprints, Pure Stocks, Super Stocks and Modifieds. It is the final scheduled appearance of the season at Greenbush by the NOSA Outlaw Sprint cars. The Race Park is located one-half mile north of Greenbush on County Road 7.

After a scrumptious potluck dinner, a program was given, beginning with a parade, a guest soloist, dedication of the new building and a live band for further entertainment. Many former students returned for the event, including me, who had three years of high school there. It proved that, although the town no longer is there, the community spirit is still strong after many years.

Kern and Alice Tillman were Monday morning visitors of Edna Hyde.

Willa Prestegaard, Bea Willett and Sheila Gerardy visited on Monday evening with Lloyd and Wavell Sorenson.

Tuesday visitors of Jean Carpenter were Art and Gloria Fossum, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Buck from Milwaukee.

Luncheon guests on Tuesday of Deb DuChamp were her mother Shirley Vettleson, Deb Vettleson, Rhonda Vettleson, Sheila Horn, Lori Raebel and Marci DuChamp.

Charles and Sharon Musselwhite formerly of Hobbs, New Mexico, now full-time RV-ers, visited the Byers on Monday afternoon and were supper guests. They were happy to find a campground in our town and stayed two nights. Since it was their first visit to Minnesota we took them to Itasca Park to see the Headwaters of the Mississippi on Tuesday and came home through Bemidji where we ate. After the rain they came here to the house and had a few games. They winter in Texas in our park.

Wavell Sorenson attended the retirement party on Tuesday evening for Elaine Anderson of Thief River Falls, manager of Valley Home, held at the home of Clayton and Sharon Mack, of Thief River Falls.

Lee Vigstol of Minot came on Wednesday and was an overnight guest at his mother Effie Byer, also visiting other friends and relatives here.

WELCA Meets

The Women of Immanuel met on Wednesday evening at the church with President Carole Wright presiding. Plans for the upcoming Fall Bazaar were discussed, to be held on August 25 - hours 9:30 to 1 p.m. Circles were given their work assignments for their day. There was a variety of announcements, correspondence and light business. A program of hymns with stories of their composers and appropriate Scripture was given by the Naomi Circle. Hostesses were members of the Mary Circle.

Shannon and son Dayton Nelso of Lakota, N.D. came on Wednesday to visit her parents, Rick and Arlene Fraland. While here she visited her sister Kerry Newland and new baby, plus Derrick in Thief River Falls and was a Thursday breakfast guest of her grandparents, Art and Avis Fraland.

John Helley and daughter Barb Bjerke and Thomas were Thursday coffee guests of Edna Hyde. Barb and Thomas will be leaving soon for New York, where they will be located, as her husband Jerry is being sent there.

Have a happy August!

It's Wednesday and we are getting ready to leave to go north. Drove about 300 miles through a lot of scenic little towns. Stopped at Marquette and drove through Presque Isle Park. Very beautiful. Next big town was Houghton, where Michigan Technical College is located. It is a huge college and very prominent in sports, especially basketball. Finally, we got to Copper Harbour. Very small. Population is about 50 but full of tourists. We ate at a German-American restaurant.

Next we drove up into a high area where we viewed a spectacular sunset over Lake Superior and got it on video, than stayed at a lovely motel, small but good. Next stop was at Ashland, Wis., where we drive up to Bayfield to watch the ferry go out to Madeline Island, the only one of the Apostle Islands that is developed. Our next drive took us through Superior and into Duluth, so we drove up to Knife River where we used to camp many years ago, than came back and drove to Cloquet and spent a great evening with Dr. Lal and his wife, a former Warren doctor. They have a lovely place.

Now that I am in the "real world," I will tell a bit about my vacation. We left the Rodney Grandstrand home on July 19, drove to Green Bay for the night. Saw the Packers Hall of Fame. Next day we went north along the bay. It is very beautiful with cherry orchards all over, and lovely homes and flowers. Our next night was at Bayside Motel in Ellison Bay. This is in Door County, Wis. Saturday we drove north and took the ferry to Washington Island, where we visited with pastor Dale Van Duesen. He went with us and showed us the island. Very nice and a lovely place to live. So many flowers. Took the ferry back and stayed overnight at Sturgeon Bay.

On Sunday we went to Manitowoc and took the car ferry across Lake Michigan into Ludington. Quite an experience. Next day we headed for Mackinaw City, which was our next reservation. Took the long bridge to St. Ignacius where we took a hydrojet fast boat to Mackinaw Island and rode around the island in a horse-drawn trailer. A lot of early history there and also a lot of gift shops, etc., but a lovely place. Left Mackinaw City and drove north to Sault St. Marie. The land gets flat here and wasn't as scenic. Took the tour through the locks. The U.S. city is about 15,000 population and the Canadian city is about 85,000 with a lot of industry. After the tour, we drove over a very long bridge into Canada, where we had an evening meal at a Texas-type restaurant. Our American money made it cheap!

Placement of logo is a non issue

UND President Charles Kupchella's concession to the gentle souls who complained that it was disrespectful to place the symbol of the University of North Dakota, the Indian-head logo, on the floor Hyslop Sports Center, was as misplaced as those who complained. Kupchella's actions accomplished little, accept to placate a few individuals, who for a better term we'll call "inexperienced". I'm sure it probably did cost the University in terms of actual dollars — perhaps enough for detractors to latch onto at a later date and claim as another sign of inept leadership.

Walk into any college university sports complex and you'll see the school's name and logo on the floor. To a point, I agree with Earl Strinden who said that the presence of the logo on the floor didn't convey anything. His defensive reaction was probably made in total exasperation. I'd wager, that under similar circumstances many of us would be just as exasperated.

For the "inexperienced," the presence of a college logo on a floor, however, is generally for the benefit of visiting teams and visitors in the stands. It's an easily identifiable sign of pride that says — "You're on our turf now!" Above all, it is advertising. Large corporations spend thousands and thousands of dollars on market research, analysis and graphic design artists so that the public will be able to easily identify a company or product at glance. I'm sure you can describe several company symbols right off the top of your head. For example, what's the symbol for Wells Fargo Bank? What's the symbol for McDonalds? What's the symbol for Mercedes?

As I recall the new symbol for the Shooting Star Casino in Mahnomen appears everywhere, including the stairway railings. No disrespect meant to our neighbors, but symbols for Seven Clans Casino just south of Thief River Falls appear on the fireplace chimney, and on the floor to the entrance of its incredible water park. It also appears on a large elaborate carpet just before the entrance to the casino from the hotel. I wouldn't want to be the person who has to clean that carpet, but I don't think it shows any sign of disrespect to the owners, the seven individual clans, or the number "7". In fact just the opposite is true. I think it's a savvy attempt to equate quality with service, and force the customer to think of Seven Clans Casino whenever he or she sees the symbol.

Placement of the logo as a form of discrimination or disrespect is a non issue. The real issue that keeps being repeated is that some people believe the symbol shows disrespect to American Indians.

Congratulations on opening of skate park

Construction of the new skate park near Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls has been the result of hard work and collaboration between several groups and individuals, young and old. It has provided invaluable lessons to local youth.

Youth were involved from the beginning. Their desire for a skate park, however, was met by a challenge to do something about it. The youth accepted the challenge; gave presentations to the city council and school board; spoke up at public meetings; held various fundraising events; sought funds from various fraternal organizations and businesses; and then built the ramps and rails. The community responded by providing direction and funding. Remarkably, the youth, mostly teenagers, also listened and accepted the advice of adults.

In a story written by Reporter Jeff Achen, Lyle Hanson said, "It's been an incredible exercise in a common goal."

It couldn't have been accomplished any other way. Organizers may now look back and say that it could have been done better if done differently, but that applies only to the technical aspects of accomplishing this specific goal. The students and adults did a great job.

What are the rewards? Other than skating, I doubt youth in the community will be thinking in terms of their future or of less tangible rewards. Nevertheless, I believe the personal rewards and skills learned in building the park far outweigh the skateboarding skills youth will obtain by practicing at the new park. Ask yourself these questions: Are they not better off now that they have learned what it takes to present a proposal to a board of directors? Cannot the carpentry skills they learned to build a skate ramp be used to build a house? Won't the youth and the charities in the community benefit from individuals who have learned what it takes to conduct fundraising?

Terry Demars, a member of the Roller Park Committee, is quoted as saying, "Part of the magic here is that dozens of people and organizations came together for this."

I hope the open dialogue that has taken place in this community between these different groups continues; and, I hope this project can serve as a template of sorts for future projects.

Old Laws: Funny or Bad for Business?

by Jack Faris
president of NFIB

Throughout the history of this great country, elected officials have occasionally passed laws that are relevant to society at that point in time. . . but that are totally irrelevant years later.

Unfortunately, once a law is on the books it rarely comes off. Lawmakers spend far more time writing new legislation than reviewing old bills. As a result, many laws sit on the books in obscurity because enforcement would be ridiculous. For example, several laws still exist in Boston regarding Boston Common (now a lively big-city park) that surely made good sense in the 1600s or 1700s . . but are ludicrous today:

- No one may cross the Boston Common without carrying a shotgun in case of bears.
- Anyone may let their sheep and cows graze in the public gardens/commons at any time except Sundays.
- Duels to the death permitted on the common on Sundays provided that the Governor is present.
- Women may not wear heels over three inches in length while on the common.

Reading laws like this is funny to us, it is strictly entertainment (visit dumblaws.com for more like those above); it doesn't matter that they are still on the books because they are not enforced.

But some old laws that are not applicable to today's society and economy are still enforced. And those are laws that should be repealed; there is no excuse not to.

For example, the United States Congress has an opportunity this year to do away with an old law preventing banks from offering interest on business checking accounts. It's a law that was passed during the Depression and is completely irrelevant in today's economy. The unintended consequence of this law is a business banking structure that favors large companies over small ones.

Large firms have an ability to "make money on money" with a practice called sweep accounts — whatever money is left in their business account at the end of the day is swept into the stock market overnight, in essence earning interest until the next business day. It is a service offered by large banks to large companies. The large banks have the financial structure in place that makes it viable and profitable for them, while the large businesses have the cash reserves to make this practice low-risk in terms of their cash flow needs.

Small businesses cannot take advantage of sweep accounts because their funds are "swept out" on a daily basis by the needs of their business: payroll, supplies, new inventory, etc. Their cash-flow scenario is very tight, very different from a large company. By the same token, small banks are not able to offer sweep accounts on a cost-effective basis (they don't have enough big customers to make setting up the infrastructure worthwhile).

So big business is getting around the outdated law by using sweep accounts while small businesses and banks are stuck complying with an old law that doesn't make any sense.

Allowing interest on business checking accounts wouldn't cost the government a single dime (in fact, the Federal Reserve has endorsed the idea) and it would benefit both small businesses and their small banking brethren, not to mention our overall economy (which is driven by the engine of small business).

Bills to correct this outdated law have been introduced. . . but the new Chairman of the Senate Banking Committee (Senator Paul Sarbanes from Maryland) has not yet shown an interest in them. One wonders why. Rarely is a piece of legislation so clear-cut, so non-controversial. Repealing the outdated law would create a win-win situation.

If you agree that some old laws are not funny at all, give your member of Congress a call and tell them that there is no reason to wait; this one needs to be taken off the books now, giving small firms the basic right to earn interest on their hard-earned money.

Faris is president of NFIB, the nation's largest small-business advocacy group. NFIB represents the consensus views of its 600,000 members.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rep. Maxine Penas serves the region, taxpayers well

To the Editor:

During the rough-and-tumble legislative session recently completed, there was a new face in the State Capitol: State Representative Maxine Penas.

As Speaker of the House, I have had the opportunity to see many new legislators come to St. Paul and Maxine Penas is certainly one of the rising stars. For the citizens of District 1A, she has been a strong voice for the historic property tax reform adopted this year as well as equity and fairness for rural schools.

The average Minnesota homeowner will receive a property tax reduction of more than 20 percent under the tax reform passed this year. Farms will see a cut of about 25 percent. Cabins and small businesses will also receive a double-digit property tax cut. These are not temporary cuts, but brought about because of permanent reforms in the system. Taxpayers will have greater control and a clearer understanding of their property tax bill.

As a member of the House of Education Policy and Education Finance Committees, Rep. Penas was instrumental in the K-12 education funding bill. It provided more than $393 million in new money, with a formula that greatly benefits most rural school districts.

One of the other milestones of this legislative session was reform of how the state funds nursing homes, which are critical to the care of Minnesota's elderly. On the issue of nursing homes as well as school funding and agricultural issues, Rep. Penas is fighting for rural Minnesota.

As Speaker of the House, I congratulate Rep. Maxine Penas on the instrumental role she played in the historic outcome of this legislative session. She did an outstanding job of representing the constituents of her district and in championing the historic reforms enacted this year. I look forward to working with her in the future.

Sincerely,
Steve Sviggum
Speaker of the House

Protect the Lady Slipper

To the Editor:

Minnesota's state flower is the Lady Slipper. Its scientific name is Cypripedium greek for Venus' slipper. It requires acidic soil and is most often found in oak or pine woods and on the prairie of northwestern Minnesota. It grows near poison ivy so many humans have to stay away from this unique flower, a wild orchid.

It also grows a white or yellow baby's bootie small flower. I hope the ground where this wild plant grows has not been bulldozed down for housing or farms.

It blooms in spring and stays into the summer. The leaves die in autumn.

This is a rare and precious wild flower. What is being done to preserve it?

Sincerely,
Ruth Melby White
Boone, N.C.

Crazy behavior at Crazy Day

To the Editor:

On Crazy Day last week organizers chose to throw out packaged t-shirts with some added store coupons inside them. Well, one dropped on the seat of my Rascal battery-operated go cart. I picked it up standing by my Rascal, just to have it snatched with a hard pull out of my hand, by a woman in her late 40's who then took off in the crowd. I froze, and was speechless.

The old saying, "the nerve of somebody's else's kids." How about this woman and her nerve? Anybody else close by who saw this happen phone me at 681-4882.

Sincerely,
Viola Dirks,
87 and an old great grandma
P.S. Better go back to dropping the small balls, they can't grab and pull them away.

Dayton: Ag package falls short of real needs

Senator Mark Dayton said recently that the Senate passage of $5.5 billion in emergency agriculture assistance falls far short of the amount needed to provide real assistance for farmers, and railed against Senate Republicans and President Bush for using stalling tactics which made it impossible to pass a more complete package that included relief for producers in Minnesota and across the country, who continue to be battered by low farm prices.

Dayton, a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said that the combination of a Republic filibusters and Presidential veto-threat of the Senate's $7.5 billion emergency agriculture relief package forced the Senate to instead pass the smaller House-passed package, in order to get at least some of the payments out to farmers before the September 30 deadline. As a result, he said, Minnesota farmers lost $82.7 million in desperately-needed payments, including $18 million to help sugar beet farmers in 16 Central Minnesota counties who suffered losses last October when an early frost destroyed their sugar beets.

"Because of the delay tactics employed by the Republicans, the Senate had no choice but to pass the smaller emergency assistance package, so that we could guarantee that our farmers will get at least some relief — and I am glad this money will get to where it's needed," Dayton said. "But it is inexcusable for the Republican Party and President Bush to claim that this smaller relief package was all that is possible within the budget constraints."

Dayton noted that just yesterday, the House passed an energy plan that included $30 billion in tax credits for the energy industry — fully three times the amount the President had requested. Despite the fact that budget analysts question the ability to afford such giveaways — particularly for an industry that is enjoying record profits — the President raised no objections to the inflated cost of the plan passed by the House, and in fact said he was "pleased" with the plan.

"The clear message being sent here is that if you're a big energy company enjoying record profits, you get special dispensation from the White House in terms of tax giveaways and a release from the budget restrictions passed by Congress," Dayton said. "But if you're a family farmer in Minnesota or elsewhere in the country, going bankrupt because of low prices, that is when the White House decides there is not even an ounce of leeway in the budget, and threatens to veto the funding you need. This is not about what we can afford — it is about how the President prioritizes what we can afford."

Dayton, Democrats will push for more funding. Dayton said that he has won a commitment from Senator Herb Kohl (D-Wisc.), chairman of the agricultural appropriations subcommittee, that as the committee considers funding for agricultural programs for next year, he will make every effort to ensure that the sugar beet farmers in Southern Minnesota are provided with the assistance they were denied in the House emergency relief package that passed recently. In addition, Dayton said that Senate Democrats will continue to fight for the additional $1.9 billion that was included in the Senate emergency relief package, when the Senate returns from recess in September.

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER AUGUST 8, 1901
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

DESTROYED BY FIRE
Thief River Falls Lumber Company's Barn Burned to the Ground and Other Property Damaged.

"The Thief River Falls Lumber Company's barn in this city was discovered to be on fire Tuesday morning at about 8 o'clock and, in a short time, the large structure was burned to the ground. There was a strong south wind and, for a time, the cigar store and residence of C. Weiner and the store building of L. Ulstad were threatened, but, by work done by the mill crew, these buildings were saved, although they were greatly damaged by the heat and smoke. The approach to the bridge on the East Side was destroyed, but it is now being repaired and in a few days teams can travel over it.

"The loss to the lumber company is estimated to be about $3,000, and they had insurance to the amount of $1,000 on the barn and $500 upon the contents. About one third of their horses, or 25, were in the barn when the fire was discovered, but they were all rescued. The damage to the bridge amounts to about $300, and L. Ulstad's building was damaged to the amount of $200, which is covered by insurance. Mr. Weiner's stock of candies, cigars, tobaccos, groceries and household goods were damaged by smoke, heat, etc. to a great extent, the exact amount it would be hard to estimate, but they were insured to an amount that will cover the loss.

"The origin of the fire is unknown and although there were a number of people in the vicinity of the barn, the fire was not discovered until it had gained such headway that it was beyond control. Opinions differ as to whether it was caused by a spark from the burner or originated inside.

"The members of the local fire department did good work, but they were so handicapped by the failure of City Engineer Dalson to operate the fire engine that their efforts were of but little account. Something was wrong with the mechanism of the fire engine and it had to be repaired. Mr. Dalson was condemned by a number of firemen for not having his engine in good order, while others swore vengeance upon the city council for hiring a second rate engineer. It is very evident that a change will have to be made and a competent man placed in charge. Personally, the News would be pleased to see Mr. Dalson continue to hold the job, providing he is competent, but under the circumstances we do not think the city council is justified in longer retaining him."

WATER WORKS
An Improvement That's Badly Needed In Thief River Falls.

"The fire Tuesday had at least one beneficial result, the agitating for the city putting in a system of water works and selling the fire engine. With so many wooden buildings in the business center, the best of fire protection is needed, and a few thousand dollars spent now for this much-needed improvement will result in savings many times the cost in the future. Let the city council put in water works in connection with the sewer system. It will pay.

"Wiley Tindolph yesterday circulated a petition addressed to the city council demanding that a system of water works be established here. All of the leading business men in town have signed it."

"A few local sports, who were enjoying a quiet game in one of the saloons the other night, were suddenly disturbed by a violent rattling of empty glasses standing on the back bar. As there was no person near the glasses at the time, they naturally wondered at it and, one or two of them being a little superstitious, they decided to break up the meeting and swear off. After all, the circumstances are easily explained. Of course, there were lots of spirits on the back bar."

Five other bids ranged as high as $215,000. The Lee Plumbing & Heating company was given the plumbing and mechanical contract on its low bid of $45,300, and L. W. Best, lowest of three bidders, was awarded the electrical contract on his bid of $10,475, other bids being as high as $15,600.

Elizabeth Swenson • 681-3852

Left for Clear Lake in the morning and met the latest family member, Corey and Tracy Grandstrand's new son, then on north to Fosston where we stayed until Sunday night. It was a wonderfully great trip for me, and I enjoyed every mile!

A Ranum gathering was held on Saturday, July 28 at the Sidney and Clarice Ranum home in Viking. The following spent an enjoyable day of visiting, reminiscing and, of course, eating of the potluck dinner at noon. Those attending were: Bill and Marge Grundhaus of Seattle, Wash., Marcelline Grundhaus, Elsie Hedlk and Farri Ranum of Thief River Falls, Oral, Barbara and Kenneth Ranum of Stanley, N.D., Marlin Ranum and Stacey Ranum of Grand Forks, N.D., Arlon Hoos of East Grand Forks, Bud and Delores Ranum of Harris, Mark Ranum from Minnetonka, Brianne Johnson and her friend Ashley from Waconia, Mrs. Wayne, Elizabeth and Alex Saewoja of Red Wing, Lloyd Ranum, and Maynard, Betty and Lori Ranum of Viking.

Weekend visitors at the Maynard and Betty Ranum home were Mark Ranum of Minnetonka, Brianna Johnson and friend, Ashley of Wisconsin, and Wayne, Elizabeth and Alex Saewoja, who remained a few days, returning home on Wednesday.

Lydia Owen and Millie Womes stopped in at Liz Swenson's home to visit on Wednesday evening.

LeRoy and Ruth Sustad attended the gospel music program at the Pennington County Fair on Tuesday evening.

The Dan Sustad family gathered at their home to celebrate his birthday on Tuesday evening, July 17. Also, there were Mike and Jamie Distel, Marshall and Delores Ness and LeRoy and Ruth Sustad.

Sunday evening visitors at the Maynard Ranum home were Harold and Marian Vatthauer.

LeRoy and Ruth Sustad attended the funeral of Percy Siokke of Westaker Lutheran Church in Newfolden on Saturday, July 21.

LeRoy and Ruth Sustad and Raymond Dretts attended the concert at Faith Lutheran Brethren Church on Sunday evening, July 22.

John Johnson and Louise O'Brien of Pitt, James and Ruth Tostrup and LeRoy Sustad enjoyed fellowship and reminiscing on Sunday. Louise lived with Emil and Ingeborg Beckmen many years ago. She and Ruth Tostrup and Wallace Hanson are cousins removed.

Dan and Carol Roach of Spring Dale, Ark. were house guests at the Hal Anderson home. The Andersons attended their daughter Suzie's wedding in Fargo, N.D.

On Thursday, Raymond Dretts and Lloyd Ranum were visitors and coffee guests at LeRoy Sustad's home.

Strandquist News

The weather in northwest Minnesota makes sympathizers out of many of us when we hear of the weather in some places, with temperatures over 100 degrees and flooding from unheard-of amounts of rain. Last weekend we had over four inches of rain and now we have to water again around here on the sandridge to keep the tomatoes and flowers in good shape. We really appreciate the heat pump that keeps us cool and comfortable.

The Strandquist seniors met at the community center on Thursday afternoon for a regular meeting with four visitors, Maria Breff, Wally Rud, and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Kasmierczak. They haven't been able to find someone to do the weaving for them this year, so no more of these beautiful rugs can be obtained from them. They visited for a while, and then Delphina Breff served a delicious lunch to all present. They will meet again on Thursday.

Paul and Shirley, Kristopher and Kendrick Anderson were in Rochester last Monday to Wednesday to welcome Bethany Christine Janssen into the world!!! Bethany was born Tuesday, July 31 to David and Jenny Janssen of New Ulm. Kristopher also had a good report on his check-up at the Mayo Clinic. This is good news to all and congratulations to all concerned!!

Judy Kleinvochter is feeling fine again and is keeping the house cool but the coffeepot hot. Most of her company likes it that way. This week her friends and guests were Kelly Latrooth, with Amanda and Jessica, Karl and June Kasprowicz, Maria Steffen, Jeremy and Tracy Follond, Matt Hammer from Pembina, and Claudia Berggren with Kali and Cheyenne.

Peter Thompson visited and had dinner at Isaac and Betsy Thompson's home, while Pearl was in Grand Forks having her right wrist operated on.

On Thursday Isaac and Betsy had Peter and Pearl and Roy and me for dinner at noon.

Morris and Hazel Anderson went to Jim and Cindy Wetterlund's in Grand Forks on Sunday afternoon, to go out for dinner. They will be back on Monday. Friday Keith Brillan installed a new storm door for Morris and Hazel. It was really too hot to be working but he thought it was better to do it now than to wait until the snow flies. Good thinking, we'd say to that.

On Monday we celebrated Peter Thompson's 92nd birthday at his home, with most of the clan there. It seems impossible, but now we have three in the family that are over 90 and enjoying every bit of time together.

The visitors at Elsie Latrooth's home this past week have been Darwin, Dean and JoAnne Holmstrom, LaVonne and Brian Johnson, Shirley Latrooth, Pearl Thompson, Vance and Kally Latrooth with Amanda and Jessica, and Gloria Ronstrom. Elsie is feeling okay she says, but this humid air was enough to keep her at home.

Elmer Holmstrom and Evelyn Albough visited Isaac Thompson on Friday. Isaac brought more steel posts to stake the tomatoes. The first ripe one was on Friday and it weighed over a pound. I cut it in four pieces and gave Isaac and his son Robert each one, and Roy and I had the other two pieces. Truly they were the "mostest" of any tomatoes, solid meat and few seeds.

When Sonny Sands called last evening, he said there is a new industry in the woods now in Montana. They are collecting the long butts of the larch trees which were always left in the woods because there was too much sap in them to put into lumber. It was discovered that the sap contains a product that is used in medicine. More than 5,000 tons of it was shipped to Cohassel, Minnesota last year and now they intend to increase it. I often wonder if someone had ever slepped in larch or tamarack as some folks call it, or sat down to rest on a stump and thereby discovered sap qualities? If you had made such a mistake and found you almost had to leave your clothes right there and, in trying to clean them, discovered echinocea!

For small farms: Household income safety net might be better than commodity programs

(Sixth in a background series on the prospective 2002 Farm Bill)

by William F. Lazarus

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has spent nearly $70 billion on federal farm programs since 1996, and those payments have made the difference between profit and loss for many farm operators. The "Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform (FAIR) Act" expires in 2002. And as discussions about the next farm bill gain momentum, we might consider how the goal of farm household income support fits within U.S. farm policy, and how to achieve that support.

The goals of farm policy were stated by the 21st Century Commission on Production Agriculture as:

--Producing an abundant supply of quality agricultural products at fair prices.

--Maintaining a prosperous, productive economic climate for farmers.

--Maintaining strong family farms as a dominant part of the production system.

--A high quality of life for all individuals living in rural areas.

The commission's wording is broad and open to different program approaches. One way to interpret their use of the terms "prosperity," "family farm" and "quality of life" would be to focus on assuring a minimum standard of living for farm households. The mention of "reasonable prices" also implies attention to controlling production surpluses as well as avoiding shortages. "Quality of life" and "family farm organization" also imply protecting the environment and slowing industry consolidation.

I use the term "household income safety net" to refer to ways to target farm program payments to households based on some measure of income or living standard. The idea gained visibility when Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman called 1999 the "Year of the Safety Net." Economists at the USDA Economic Research Service (ERS) have analyzed several safety net approaches. Their conclusions are presented on the USDA website at: http://www.ers.usda.gov/Emphases/Rural/. The safety net concept might be of interest to those in the Minnesota farm community who are looking for alternatives to traditional form programs.

The USDA-ERS analysis looked at how the cost to the government and the distribution of benefits across different farm sizes and regions would compare to current direct payments if government assistance were based directly on financial need. They used various target levels of farm household income and implied operator hourly earnings to measure financial need. They found that lower-income farmers would benefit relatively more under the safety net scenarios, while farmers producing selected commodities would benefit less than under current farm programs.

Minnesota farmers overall could receive either higher or lower payments than currently, depending on the income measure used. For example, if payments were made to bring farm household income up to 185 percent of the poverty line, the cost to the government would be about the same as current programs. (The poverty line for a family of four was $16,400 in 1997; 185 percent of this amount is $30,340). It was estimated that this scenario would have cost the government a total of $21 billion over the three years 1998-2000, compared to the $19.5 billion actually spent.

The income safety net approach is not new. It has precedents in a number of nonfarm federal programs. While the safety net approach might help small farms, it has received mixed reviews so far. According to the May, 2000 issue of "Agricultural Outlook," the analysis has been criticized because of a perceived association of income transfers with social welfare programs.

Critics favor price supports over the income-support approach since commodity price supports carry less of a negative "social welfare" image. Still, small family farms often have relatively high production costs; so price supports that help low-cost producers expand and prosper often don't help them much.

Welfare program cuts are pending

Families begin receiving notices about welfare cuts and extension policies

Starting next week, families across Minnesota who could lose assistance over the next year because of the 60-month time limit on welfare will begin receiving notices from the Minnesota Department of Human Services (DHS). The notices concern the cut-off and possible extensions.

This is the first opportunity to tell families facing the time limit that they may be able to get an extension under the policy recently adopted by the 2001 legislature, according to Jeanette Taylor Jones, assistant human services commissioner.

"We want families to know about the policy so they can begin preparing to get an extension or to leave assistance," Taylor Jones said.

The families who are participating in the Minnesota Family Investment Program (MFIP) have received periodic notices about the 60-month time limit. Taylor Jones said DHS is also working with counties and community organizations to make the extension policy work for families and to help families who will lose cash assistance.

"There is a realization that the state will not be able to end assistance for some recipients." — Ken Yutrenzka, Pennington County Department of Welfare and Human Services.

In Pennington County there are 80 cases, a total of 213 people, involved in MFIP. So far only a couple have received notices that they are nearing the end of their 60 months. Over the next year, up to 5,200 families could receive the notices across the state. The notices explain the time limit, give information about how to qualify for extensions and who to contact to get help, including county workers and legal aid. After receiving the initial notice, families will receive a reminder notice each month.

MFIP participants may be eligible for extensions if they are working, are victims of domestic violence, unable to work because of illness or injury, taking care of a family member who is ill or disabled, or are unable to work because of mental retardation, mental illness, a learning disability or low IQ.

Chuck Johnson, who directs the state welfare reform program, said about 2,600 families, or about half the families that could receive notices over the next year, may qualify for extensions.

"There is a realization that the state will not be able to end assistance for some recipients," Ken Yutrenzka, director of Pennington County Department of Welfare and Human Services, said. "But, as for extensions or exemptions, there's going to be some stringent requirements and that's probably good."

Yutrenzka said that due to recent economic upturns, many MFIP participants in Pennington County are working now, and, although it may be too early to tell if the program is doing what it's supposed to do, people should be aware that local payments are much less than the state average. Pennington County reports that the average payment per case locally is $454, while the average payment per case in Minnesota is $615.

About 40,000 families in an average month receive MFIP, which began statewide in January 1998. Over the first two years of the program, 70 percent of the families had either left assistance or were on MFIP and working.

Breakfasts offered free at Challenger

■ School District 564 receives grant that allows them to offer free breakfasts to students

Reporter

As it dealt with a wide variety of issues and business items, it was clear Monday evening that the Board of Education of School District 564 and Superintendent Irv Peterson are getting ready for the upcoming 2001-2002 school year.

A highlight of the meeting was the board's approval of participation in the Fast Break to Learning Program at Challenger Elementary School which will provide a free breakfast for all students every morning at the school.

Superintendent Peterson explained that the school's free and reduced price population attributed to its qualification for the program and that once accepted, the program will remain intact should its status change.

The program, Peterson said, is the brainchild of Governor Jesse Ventura and was piloted in several metro area schools before branching out to other areas of the state. School board members and Superintendent Peterson are all excited about Challenger's participation in the program as all agree that proper nutrition is conducive to proper learning.

Galen Sylvester, chairman of the local Kiwanis club, spoke during the Public Comments portion of the meeting and requested that the board consider making the Key Club advisor position an extra-curricular paid position.

Sylvester told the board that last year's Key Club, which is sponsored by the Kiwanis, included

Ease students' school anxiety

by David Hill
Editor

Public schools in Thief River Falls open doors to students on Tuesday, September 4. Patrick Marolt, principal at Challenger Elementary School in Thief River Falls, says there are a number of things parents can do to ease any anxiety their child may have about going back to school.

Marolt says it's always important to discuss with students any expectations they or you may have regarding school. It's also important talk about school in a positive way to encourage excitement in a new school year.

One of the new and exciting differences this year at Challenger Elementary School is that the school will be offering free breakfasts for every student. Marolt said that the school secured a grant for the free breakfast, which is open to students from 7:45 to 8:25 a.m.

Bus Schedule

Letters will be mailed to each family in School District 564 during the last week of August to inform them of their school bus schedule.

New residents or residents who have moved within the past year, and who have children attending public schools in the district, should contact the District Transportation office at 681-8711.

Parents are reminded that if their child is to be bused from or to a day care, they must first fill out a child care transportation request form by Friday, August 24. Child care forms must be updated each year.

Students pass the test

Test results show students keeping pace with state

■ MN Comprehensive Assessment results available

Reporter

Results of the Minnesota Comprehensive Assessment (MCA) tests have recently been released, giving educators an idea of where they stand on program effectiveness and student learning.

The MCA results for Thief River Falls School District 564 show that students are doing about the same when compared to state averages, with the exception of a slight dip in math scores.

The MCA, unlike other graduation standards tests, does not score students in a pass/fail exam, but instead ranks students in one of four levels of achievement. Levels three and four are the highest and represent students who perform above and beyond grade level expectations.

All third and fifth grade students were tested, including English as a Second Language (ESL) and special needs students. Third grade students were tested in the areas of reading and mathematics, while fifth grade students were tested in the areas of reading, mathematics, and writing.

School District 564

Fifth grade results showed that 63 percent of students were performing at levels three and four in the reading category, 55 percent were performing at levels three and four in the writing category, but only 40 percent were performing at levels three and four in mathematics. Statewide, the same percentage of students scored in levels three and four in the reading and writing categories, while 50 percent scored in levels three and four in the mathematics category.

Third grade results showed that 51 percent of students scored in levels three and four in the reading category and 43 percent scored in levels three and four in the mathematics category. Statewide, 49 percent of students scored in levels three and four in the reading category and 53 percent scored in levels three and four in the mathematics category.

Parents in School District 564 will be receiving a letter this August with their child's MCA test results, as well as the district summary results. The letter also informs parents that the purpose of the assessment is as a tool for evaluating their curriculum as it pertains to graduation standards and the necessary skills needed for graduation.

"The test results help us look at what type of education programs we're offering and see where kids are struggling and try to fill that need," School District 564 Curriculum Coordinator Carol Ihle said. "The intent is to help schools look at programming for kids."

Ihle said that program needs are looked into every year and changes are made. The math, reading, and writing programs have all seen changes and training in the past. The "Six Traits of Writing," one course to help teachers learn to better teach writing to their students, was held just this past July.

Although progress is being made in curriculum development, Ihle does feel that there is more to be done with MCA test results. She said that schools could do a better job of looking at the results and implementing changes.

"The test results help us look at what type of education programs we're offering and see where kids are struggling and try to fill that need." — Carol Ihle

National Night Out

Pennington County Sheriff's Deputy James Jesme, law enforcement K-9 Magnum, and Jordyn Coltom were among those enjoying the pleasantly warm weather at National Night Out. The event was held in Floyd B. Olson Park and was meant to bring community and law enforcement together to "give neighborhood crime and drugs a going away party." Free food and entertainment were part of the event as well.

Do you measure-up in the booster seat department?

Each year in Minnesota, more children between four and eight years of age are killed or injured in traffic crashes than by illness or accidents. According to the Minnesota Office of Traffic Safety (OTS), that situation can be changed by educating parents on the topic of child passenger restraints — specifically, belt-positioning booster seats.

Patti Klicka at OTS says that surveys show only 30 percent of Minnesota parents are using the proper booster seat for their child's height and weight. "We know that parents care about their children, but they may think that because the law says a child can use a seatbelt at age four, that's a safe thing to do. Well, it is not," she stresses. "It's better than nothing, but it doesn't compare to a proper child restraint device."

To educate parents and help them choose the right restraint for their child, OTS has developed a "Booster Seat Growth Chart" — a colorful and easy-to-read measuring device which is being sent to medical clinics, child passenger safety specialists and other locations across the State. It will also be part of the OTS State Fair exhibit, where parents will be invited to measure their children on the spot.

"One hurdle we have to jump in getting children into proper restraints is the "you're a big kid now" syndrome," says Klicka. "Parents tend to want their kids facing forward in the car, and they look at moving into a seat belt as a type of graduation. When that happens too early, the child isn't properly protected."

The Booster Seat Growth Chart, Klicka explains, will help parents see that there is a logical progression in keeping their child safe as he or she grows. "It's not only about age," she says. "It's physical, too. Height, weight, leg-length. It makes perfect sense when you see the chart."

Parents sometimes ask about the expense of protecting their child, because multiple sizes and styles of booster seats may be required as the child grows. But that needn't be a problem, Klicka says. "An expensive booster seat isn't necessarily a better one," she explains. "And if the parents' car has high-backed seats or pop-up headrests and lap-shoulder belts in the rear seat, a no-back, belt-positioning booster is an option for about $20."

Parents who visit the OTS display at the State Fair — located in the Department of Public Safety Building — will also receive free gifts. OTS will be dispensing children's drinking cups with "sippy" lids and handy adhesive-bandage dispensers. Parents will also find a display of child passenger restraints with information on their proper use.

The State Fair runs from August 23 through Labor Day at the Minnesota State Fairgrounds on Snelling Avenue at Highway 36 in St. Paul.

Happy 40th Mom!
Love, Devin

This home, owned by Eric Vatthauer and located at Vatthauer Farm Supply, two miles south of Red Lake Falls on Highway 32, was burned to the ground recently as part of a training session with instructors from around the area. Fire fighters from Red Lake Falls, Oklee and Crookston took part in the training. Red Lake Falls Fire Chief Dan Galler said that training like this is very beneficial for the newer members of the fire department who don't have a lot of experience with big fires. Many small straw fires were set and then put out during the training that lasted about four hours. This picture of the house is, of course, during the final burn that brought the house to the ground. Polk urges anyone interested in tropical fish to attend the lecture. "You will see fish you've never seen before," said Polk. Following the presentation, there will be a question and answer period, and a discussion on whether there is enough interest to form a tropical fish club in the area.

Polk, retired military, recently moved with his wife to Thief River Falls from California. Polk said after his retirement from the military they decided to move back to the area where his wife was from originally. Polk said his wife was from from Warroad. Candidates for hospital board of directors named Robert Flynn, Thomas Kays, Gerald Wigness and Ashok Patel, M.D., have been nominated to serve on the board of directors for Northwest Medical Center.

In September the terms of John T. Anderson, Robert Flynn and Jerry Wigness will expire. John T. Anderson declined to have his name placed into nomination so he can continue his involvement with the Northern Municipal Power Agency.

The Northwest Medical Center board of directors nominating committee is charged with the responsibility of nominating candidates who will most effectively serve the hospital and its mission of satisfying the community's health care needs now and into the future. The board's nominating committee placed the following names into nomination for three three-year terms to expire in September 2004: Robert D. Flynn, Thomas P. Kays and Gerold A. Wigness. Kays has previously served nine years on the hospital board with three years as the chair person.

Ashok Patel, M.D., has been nominated by the petition process outlined in the Association's bylaws, which allows any five association members to make nominations in addition to those made by the official nominating committee of the board.

Biographical sketches of the four candidates will be available prior to the hospital annual meeting.

The annual (regular) meeting of the Northwest Medical Center membership is scheduled for Monday, September 10, at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls. Connie Stock is one of nine Honor Roll Teachers

They come from all corners of the state and represent a wide variety of teaching specialties. We're talking about the nine Honor Roll Teachers just selected in this year's Minnesota Teacher of the Year program.

Connie Stock, a communications and drama teacher at Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls, has been named one of the nine Honor Roll Teachers.

"Our state is blessed with many of the finest educators in the country," said Education Minnesota President Judy Schaubach. "The selection of these individuals speaks volumes about the quality of teaching that goes on in our classrooms. The judges had a difficult time narrowing the field."

A selection panel of 23 individuals representing education, business, non-profits and government selected the nine from a group of 27 Teachers of Excellence chosen in June. There were 125 teachers in the original pool for this year's award.

The selection panel will meet once again on October 14, conduct individual interviews with the nine Honor Roll Teachers, and then cast their votes for the 2001 Minnesota Teacher of the Year. The 2000 Minnesota Teacher of the Year, Katie-Koch-Laveen of Apple Valley will announce this year's recipient at a banquet at the Radisson Hotel South and Plaza Tower in Bloomington on Sunday, October 14.

All participants will be recognized at the banquet and tickets will go on sale in September. Education Minnesota sponsors the Minnesota Teacher of the Year program with support from McDonald's Restaurants of Minnesota, Teacher Federal Credit Union, United Educators Credit Union, Education Minnesota-ESI, and National Computer Systems (NCS).

LEAP program to run for third year

Leadership, Empowerment, And Participation, or LEAP, is a program created to provide opportunities for personal leadership development for people who are not in traditional leadership positions by helping people know themselves and their community better.

LEAP sessions will be held every two weeks starting on October 2, 2001 and concluding on March 5, 2002, excluding the month of December. In total there are 10 sessions. Topics covered are: Understanding Ourselves, Leadership – What is a Leader?, Conflict Resolution, Adventures in Attitude, Listening and the Art of Communication, The Challenge of Following Through, Managing Stress in Our Lives, Working with Diversity, and Healthy Community-Team Building.

This program features a variety of learning situations presented by individuals with expertise in the areas of personal development and leadership. LEAP is a collaborative effort of the Thief River Falls Community Education Program, a Blandin Foundation Grant, and the Thief River Falls Community. Thief River Falls has received partial funding of $43,000 to be used during a three year period from the Blandin Foundation to put on the LEAP program.

Individuals with a desire for personal growth, who care about their community, and who are committed are encouraged to participate in LEAP. A maximum of 20 participants will be accepted into the program. Applicants may self apply or be sponsored by an employer or organization. Cost per participant is $199 to be paid before the first session. The fee includes breaks, evening meals, program materials and speakers. Checks should be made payable to TRF Community Education. A limited number of scholarships for a portion of the fee are available to increase diversity and participation where costs would be a barrier. The LEAP graduation will be held Tuesday, March 5, 2002.

Individuals interested in signing up to participate in the LEAP program should contact the Thief River Falls Community Education Office at (218) 681-8711. The final day to apply is September 4, 2001.

World of technology provides many new challenges at show for area gardeners

■ Horticulturists hold 13th annual District Horticultural Show in Roseau on August 4

The world of technology provided new challenges for gardeners as they entered the annual 13th District Horticultural Show in Roseau on Saturday, August 4.

All 12 of the arrangement categories had themes related to technology and the computer.

For example, the "Modern" theme challenged gardeners to create a mass floral design, closed form with many solids and few voids, of any design. The "RAM" themed design was to be a still life, a group of inanimate articles combined with plant materials and suggesting that "something is always there." The category that included the "Mouse" design was a miniature design that was not to exceed six inches in any direction and include at least one white , black or gray element (accessory included).

In the novice division the winning Modern design was created by Arlene Thune of Thief River Falls and Moccasin Garden Club. Winning the amateur division was Norma Karlsen of Warroad's Green Thumb Garden Club with her Mouse design. Helen Erickson of Badger and the Gro-Rite Garden Club was the winner in the advanced division with her Modern entry.

Judges awarded between one and ten points for each arrangement that received a ribbon placing. In all divisions where a specimen was shown, a blue ribbon was worth three points, a red ribbon two points and a white ribbon one point.

Earning the most points in the novice division was Arlene Thune. Beattie Mickelson of Goodridge and Moccasin Garden Club earned the most points in the amateur division and Helen Erickson received the most points in the advanced division.

Norma Karlsen's corsage of lisianthus received the grand champion award, and she earned the most points in the corsage category.

In the potted plant division, Joan Baker of Thief River Falls and Moccasin Garden Club showed the grand champion entry with her tuberous begonia "Pin Up." Lavonne Knutson of Warroad and Green Thumb Garden Club earned the most points in the potted plant division. Arlene Thune showed the grand champion rose with her collection and earned the most points in the rose division.

The salmon glad shown by Shirley Andol of Badger and Gro-Rite Garden Club, was deemed the grand champion winner in the gladiolu, and she also received the most points in the glad division. In annual cut flowers, LeeAnn Haugen of Roseau and NuChur Garden Club, showed the grand champion entry with her double white petunia. Earning the most points in annuals was Joyce Erickson of Viking and Viking Town and Country Garden Club.

Joan Baker's Oriental lily was judged the grand champion winner in the perennial cut flower division. Baker and Sunny Wilmar, Warroad, Green Thumb Garden Club, tied for most points in perenniats.

In dahlias, Helen Erickson's pom pom dahlias earned the grand champion award, and she received the most points in the dahlia category.

The vegetable, fruit and herb categories were dominated by Lavonne Knutson as she won grand champion awards for her kohlrabi, yellow variety of apples and collection of three herbs. Lavonne also received the most points in all three categories.

The grand champion new introduction in flowers was show by Arlene Thune with her "Forever Blue" lisianthus. Alvin Grandstrand of Viking Town and Country Garden Club won the grand champion award for new introduction in vegetables with his "Super Star" onions.

The exhibitor that earned the most points at the annual show was Lavonne Knutson with 181 points. Joan Baker was the second place finisher with 133 points. The club with the most points was Green Thumb Garden Club with 345 points.

At the conclusion of the event, awards were presented to each champion and most point winner. Some of the awards were presented in memory of past members and others by garden clubs and individuals. Those memorialized include: Thelma Torstveit, Allee Lendobeja, Beatrice Israelson, Eugene Prestegaard, Heidi Mickelson, Barbara Holm and Lois Swanson with two awards.

Judges for this year's show were Harry Samuelson, Bob Paulson and Donna Holmes.

The show was hosted by Roseau Garden Club and Lady Slipper Garden Club of Roseau.

Helen Erickson of Badger and Gro-Rite Garden Club received grand champion ribbons for her pom pom dahlias and advanced "Modern" arrangement at the 13th District Horticultural Show in Roseau August 4. Erickson also received the most points in dahlias and advanced arrangements. (Submitted Photo)

Lavonne Knutson of Warroad and Green Thumb Garden Club was the big winner at the annual 13th District Horticultural Show in Roseau August 4. Where's the library? Hunting for a needle in a haystack can be exasperating and is exactly how the librarian at the Thief River Falls Public Library is feeling these days as she seeks the location of the building that housed the community's first public library and turns to The Times readership for help. The historical booklet produced for the library in 1966 places the very first library at ". . . the north side of Second Street, west of the alley between Main and Labree Avenues in a small frame building which was loaned to the group rent free by Sherman F. Staples, an early real estate man. The site was later occupied by the Dobner-Meehan Block." According to this information, the Thief River Falls librarian is thinking the building was probably located in the current Wells Fargo parking lot either across the alley from Purdy's Shoe Store or Sissler's Country Blossoms. This would mean that the small frame structure identified in the above photograph would have been the first library. While a fire at City Hall many years ago destroyed the records which would have made identifying and verifying the location easier, library staff has sought the information in other ways, including scouring microfilmed copies of local newspaper articles, board minutes and library financial records and interviewing numerous individuals. The Pennington County Historical Society has also been involved in the search, coming up with photographs of where the original library might have been located. In addition, the state research librarian has been contacted for her aid. Now, the library turns to members of the public to help identify the building so that it can be included in the updated booklet being produced for the library's 100th birthday celebration. If anyone can identify the building, he or she is asked to call librarian Heidi Hoks at 681-4325 or stop by the library at 101 First Street East. The help will be greatly appreciated.

Mud Lakers enjoy reunion August 4

The headquarters at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge was the site for the August 4 reunion of settlers of the refuge areas which includes the townships of Mud Lake, East Valley and parts of Whiteford.

Refuge manager Maggie Anderson welcomed the group which enjoyed the hospitality and was grateful for the air-conditioned facility where a potluck meal was shared.

After lunch, a brief business meeting was conducted by Harland Knutson. Following a moment of silence in remembrance of departed homesteaders, a commemorative plaque honoring the homesteaders was discussed. A committee will further investigate the project. The plaque would be displayed at the refuge headquarters. It was also decided that another reunion would be held next year on the first Saturday in August.

The first reunion was held in 1969 in the basement of Nazareth Lutheran Church in Holt with Olive Lunke and Delray Somner doing the initial planning. The first event was well attended and included many of the original homesteaders. After several years of holding the reunion every other year, it eventually became an annual event, usually held at the Holt Keenagers Center. Remembered friends who shared in the programs through the years include George Fricker, Einar Loven, Hilmer Lunke, Delmar Hagen, Edry Leiran, Mrs. Malland and others. The second generation continues to be interested in reminiscing and sharing close neighborly ties. Several times, reunion attendees have tailgated through the area, located where their homes once were.

The following individuals agreed to serve as officers for another year: Harland Knutson, president; Mrs. Lloyd Larson, vice president; Olive Lunke, secretary; and Gladys Anderson, treasurer.

Due to other activities and the hot weather, this year's reunion attendance was down from previous years.

Angela Erickson and Steven Kaczor wed July 13 in garden ceremony

Angela Erickson and Steven Kaczor were united in marriage on July 13 in the flower garden of the bride's parents, Art and Betty Erickson of Thief River Falls. Performing the 1 p.m. ceremony was Justice of the Peace Duane Dargon of Red Lake Falls. The groom is the son of Doug and Jean Cole of Roseau.

The bride's aunt, Josie Mylhre of Red Lake Falls, was the soloist, performing "Honestly," "The Rose" and "Everything I Do." She was accompanied on the keyboard by Angie's former piano teacher, Peggy Miller, also of Red Lake Falls. Jodi Longtin was the scripture reader.

The bride wore a white matte satin gown which featured an A-line skirt. Lace appliques adorned its short-sleeved bodice which featured a modified V-neckline. A large bow decorated the back of the gown which included a detachable semi-cathedral train.

Linda Smith, cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor, and bridesmaids included Christy Cole, sister of the groom; Jodi Duville, friend of the bride; and Randi Comstock, Randine Hall and Crystal Ringling, all cousins of the bride.

Flower girls were the bride's cousins, Taylor Reichel and Ami Jo Comstock.

The groom's niece, Heather Stein, served as the bride's personal attendant.

Derrick Cole, brother of the groom, was the bestman. Groomsmen were Luke Kaczor, brother of the groom; Wayne and Neil Erickson, brothers of the bride; Carl Smith, cousin of the bride; and Kenny Englund, friend of the couple.

Ring bearers were Richard Croiger, nephew of the groom, and Shay Erickson, nephew of the bride.

Zack Erickson and Michael Erickson, both nephews of the bride, ushered the guests. Programs were distributed by Tyler Erickson, nephew of the bride, and Jaden Kruse, friend of the couple.

The groom's niece, Elichia Craiger, attended the guest book, and the gift table was attended by Trisha Swanson, friend of the bride. Bubble favors were handed out to guests by Zack Comstock, cousin of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception and, later, a dance were held next door in the backyard of the bride and groom's new home. Cake was served by Barb Efteland, friend of the couple.

Angie is employed at Digi-Key Corp., and Steve is an employee of Northwest Grain in St. Hilaire.

Mapping can be effective for countering weeds

According to agronomist Denise McWilliams of the University of Minnesota Extension Service, mapping the weeds in your crop fields can provide you with a valuable tool for dealing with these problem plants in the future. Mid- to late summer, McWilliams says, is a good time for mapping.

"Weed mapping can be simple or high-tech," she says. "You can use a global positioning system and spatial analysis computer software or pencil drawings."

Mapping weed locations will allow you to check for yield loss due to weeds, McWilliams says. A combine with a yield monitor can be helpful for this. Maps also provide a way to find weed problem areas next year and plan tillage or herbicide control measures.

"Scouting fields for weed pockets and comparing summer weeds with early season weeds can show you how well your weed management program worked this year," says McWilliams. "And by maintaining a record of weed problems over the years, you can further refine your control strategy to get the maximum payoff for your weed control efforts."

Weight Loss Puzzles Doctors

ATLANTA, GA — Doctors were surprised when two separate studies found that a natural dietary supplement could help cause significant weight loss.

Although not conclusive, both studies found that patients receiving the formula called Bio-Rex 3000®, lost more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat-reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to decrease the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

According to a spokesperson for Phillips Gulf Corporation, the exclusive North American distributor of Bio-Rex 3000, the company is considering additional studies in order to get federal approval to make pharmaceutical claims. Currently, weight loss claims for the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement are limited. However, with the requisite approval, the company could say that Bio-Rex 3000 decreases sugar cravings, increases metabolism and interferes with the body's ability to produce excess fat.

Bio-Rex 3000 is currently available as a dietary supplement and plan in pharmacies and nutrition stores or by calling 1-800-729-8446. A four-week supply is just $19.99. © 2000 PGC

PARENTING TIPS

Introducing New Foods To Children.

Children can have fears about eating new or different foods. Because of this, eating at a friend's house or at a day care center could be a traumatic experience. As children grow older, it is increasingly important for them to feel comfortable with new or strange foods.

Developmentally, children's curiosity will lead them to explore new foods in much the same way that they explore the rest of their environment. Allowing children to play with a food without having to swallow it is a good way to introduce it. Remember that children learn and explore with all their senses. We are not suggesting that you let your children play with their food on a regular basis, but rather that you should be sensitive to your child's developmental level. Give your child an opportunity to check out the new food before you expect him/her to put it into his/her mouth. Forcing a child to try new foods can create a negative situation and discourage future exploration.

It's best to remain calm and relaxed at mealtime. Allow your children to not like a food. Simply try it again at a later time. Children are more likely to take risks in a safe and familiar environment. Remember: trying a new food can be a risk!

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the food you are serving. Describe the color, shape, texture, taste and smell.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

I'm planning on babysitting a couple of my grandchildren when their daycare lady goes on vacation at the end of this month. It's been a few years since I've spent entire days with toddlers. I might come out of the experience a changed person.

In fact, I might come back thin. I've heard there is a new way of losing weight by eating exactly what a toddler eats. It's called "The Miracle Toddler Diet."

Wish me luck! Here is an example of what I might be eating on "The Miracle Toddler Diet":

Day One

Breakfast: One scrambled egg, one piece of toast with grape jelly. Eat one bite of egg, using your fingers. Dump the rest on the floor. Take one bite of toast, then smear the jelly over your face and clothes.

Lunch: Four crayons (any color), a handful of potato chips, and a glass of milk (three sips only, then spill the rest).

Dinner: A dry stick, two pennies and a nickel, four sips of flat soda pop.

Bedtime Snack: Throw a piece of toast on the kitchen floor.

Day Two

Breakfast: Pick up stale toast from kitchen floor and eat it. Drink a half bottle of vanilla extract or one vial of vegetable dye.

Lunch: Half tube of "Pulsating Pink" lipstick and a handful of dog chow (any flavor). One ice cube, if desired.

Afternoon Snack: Lick an all-day sucker until sticky, take outside, drop in dirt. Retrieve and continue slurping until it is clean again. Then bring inside and drop on rug.

Q: My Social Security card is lost and I need to replace it before I leave for school soon. How can I do this?

A: Easily, through the mail or at any SSA office and at no charge. However you choose to contact us, all that is needed is completion of the application for a Social Security Number (form SS-5) and current proof of identity which can be your current driver's license. Note that a birth certificate cannot be used as proof of identity. Examples of evidence used for identity are shown in the instructions on the SS-5 which is available at any SSA office and the agency Web page at www.ssa.gov. If you visit a SSA office in person the application can be entered directly into our computers while you are there. This will get the card replaced faster. If coming in person, any SSA office, not just the one in your hometown, can work with you. Local offices do not actually provide the cards. The replacement card will be mailed in about two weeks from input into the agency computer system.

66th Anniversary

There won't be a cake and candles to mark Social Security's 66th anniversary on August 14, but more than 45 million people will enjoy the benefits they receive every month. When President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the law establishing Social Security in 1935, he launched the most successful domestic program this country has ever known. The United States was in the middle of the Great Depression – elderly, disabled, widows, and orphans were hit the hardest. Social Security brought a breath of hope that continues to grow and flourish. And through the years, every President has supported Social Security. The program has changed to make it stronger and to meet the public's needs. Most recently, President George W. Bush appointed a commission to study the need for further changes. To learn more about Social Security's history, link to our history page at www.ssa.gov/history.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

When it gets hot up here, its just a roll of the dice which farms and towns will get pummeled by storms after nightfall. As the clouds billow up during the evenings of those humid days, you know the night is gonna shake, rattle and roll.

Forget tornadoes. Straight winds do one hundred times more damage to our area than twisters. Up and down the entire region, trees lean to the east as the result of this or that big wind storm. There have been too many to count over the past 20 years.

The morning after a storm, rumors spread in the jam-packed cafes of flipped boxcars, twisted grain bins, wrecked pontoons, roofless pole barns, and of the poor trucker from Mississippi whose rig blew over on Highway 200.

Windstorms leave deep scars on the landscape, and perhaps even deeper scars on people. When a windstorm knocked over the twenty cottonwoods which surrounded my grandparents' house in 1987, Grandpa said, "this isn't home anymore," and joined Grandma in the nursing home that very week.

"We had that windstorm, you know," people say, without saying which one, or when it was. Doesn't matter, you know what they mean.

Storms destruct the familiar. There are few things people value more than secure and familiar surroundings. Storms rip up our little worlds, and such violence goes hard on people's sense of well-being.

A cheerful heroism often follows a storm. Neighbors help neighbors, chain saws buzz, pay loaders roar. All of the activity can perk people up for a time. But once the bustle dies down, there is little left but a sad sense that things will never be the same.

A windstorm means that where there once was deep shade there is now bare ground. Where there once was an old barn there is now a pile of debris. Where there once was a dignified grove of trees there is now a tangled mess.

Barns are the saddest casualties of storms, it seems to me. Houses, pole sheds and garages will be rebuilt, and if they aren't it is usually no loss to society at large. Trees take time, but they can and will come back.

But when an old barn is blown over, it is lost for good, not just to the owners, but to the rest of us who have had the pleasure of driving past the charming relic for the past decades.

In Europe they would rebuild the downed barns for historic purposes, or just because they looked nice. We don't do that here, at least just yet.

In fact, after Hitler ordered the complete destruction of every historic building in Warsaw in 1944, the Poles spent the next thirty years rebuilding the city exactly as it was before the war. Using old paintings and photographs, they reconstructed castles, palaces and churches by the dozen down to the finest detail. Take that, Adolf.

Perhaps someday some enlightened soul around here will put up a grand dairy barn, not for cows or horses, but just for old time's sake. We can't always let the wind win.

New superintendent introduces himself to community, students

by Supt. Irv Peterson

Hi. I've been in town and on the job now for just over a month. I have been introduced to a number of school staff and officials, and I have also been introduced to a number of community people, parents, and business people around town. I have been to service clubs, churches, businesses, the golf course, and other such places. Nearly everywhere I go, people make a point of speaking highly of the educational systems in Thief River Falls. People take pride in the high quality pre K-12 school system and in Northland Community and Technical College. It is encouraging and uplifting to be part of a quality program and to know there is good community support for the education programs in place for the children and young people of the community.

I have spent all of my years as an educator in several school systems, all in Minnesota. Being an educator in Minnesota not only gives one a good feeling about being part of the best educational state in the United States, but it gives that same educator a sense of responsibility as a leader to continually strive to remain on top and to stay on the cutting edge of education. People all over the United States look to Minnesota as one of the top two or three states in K-12 education year in and year out. We are generally battling Wisconsin, Iowa, and the Dakotas for the top position. It is a way of life. It is a long held expectation that we are leaders. We not only take that sense of responsibility seriously in the national arena, but we especially take that responsibility seriously as it impacts the individual learners and families right here in our community.

My pledge to you is that I will strive to continue the pursuit of excellence in our school system and continue to seek methods and programs of greater opportunity for our students. The educational system can only be as strong as the individuals working in the system. I have encountered many outstanding professionals and dedicated staff members within this system already, and I have a lot of employees I have not yet met who I am sure are also dedicated to helping children learn and mature.

An educational system can also only be as strong as the support and backing it receives from parents and the community. As I mentioned earlier, I have also seen evidence of this strong backing in Thief River Falls. When I first came to Thief River Falls for an initial interview in late March, it was my first ever visit to this community. In the brief visits I had here in April, May and June, I was certainly impressed with the community, the dedication of the school board, and the quality of people I met. I have now been here for just over a month and continue to be impressed with people I meet and with people I work with on a regular basis. I really look forward to seeing the schools full of eager students and busy, helpful adults. It is very rewarding as an educator to see the process in action, especially when standards are high and you have a quality program. It is also humbling to have a hand in making decisions affecting the education of the next generation of leaders. Being in education is an awesome task. Knowing that students appreciate the efforts and families and community members support and assist the efforts is very gratifying.

My philosophy of education is "Preparation for Life." Everything we do is geared toward preparing for the next phase. Education at home with infants and preschoolers is preparing them for formal education. In K-12 we prepare for the next grade level and each stage of learning and life that a young person goes through, and eventually we prepare them for post-secondary education and the work force. Ultimately however, what we are preparing them for is every situation that comes up for them in life. That is why the school needs the partnership of parents, churches, and the entire community. No one of us can do it alone. We need relationships with friends and neighbors. We need to be plugged in to families, community, and our Creator. We are all role models for these kids, and role models are never "off duty."

I will use this space in the Thief River Falls Times to communicate with you on a somewhat regular basis throughout the year. I will discuss issues that affect the schools and the students. I will discuss laws, legislative proposals, and state and federal programs that sometimes help us in our mission and sometimes tie our hands. I will respond to concerns that come out of St. Paul, Washington, D.C., our community, our board meetings, and the halls of our schools.

Again, I have met many wonderful people in just a few weeks. I look forward to meeting and working with many more of you. This is a great community. I am proud to be a part of it. I look forward to helping you serve and meet the needs of all our children and young people.

Drive carefully and watch for buses and pedestrians. Labor Day is just around the corner and school starts the day after. Many children will be excited the first few days and weeks of school. They may not see you. Be sure you see them. Thanks for all you do.

The Drill

by Wayne Goeken

"Come on kids, it's getting stormy out, let's go to the basement for awhile, hurry now." And so the drill repeated itself once again—Mom herding us to the basement with purpose but not panic, blankets in hand as Dad watched nervously from window and door, scanning the skies for funnel clouds dropping out of the dark thundering cloudbanks rolling across the night sky. Downstairs, the kerosene lamp casting a warm glow to the dark basement, we settled in for what could be minutes or hours, dad upstairs scouting while WNAX radio broadcast weather bulletins from neighboring Yankton, S.D., providing guidance as to when we might safely return to our beds.

Nearly 40 years later as I live in my own home with my own basement I find myself doing my own version of "The Drill" when stormy summer weather rolls through, which has been more frequent than I care for the past couple weeks. With windows open wide on all sides to cool the house down at night I am usually rousted by the sound of wind rushing through the house, slamming doors shut or blowing blinds wildly against window frames. My first dash is to quickly close windows on my house's windward side—hopefully I woke before rains started driving into my interior spaces. Then I go around and trim the windows as needed on the other sides of the house—allowing as much rain-cooled air to enter as possible to bring down the house core temperature.

Then it's off to the basement, right. Well, in theory, yes. In reality I am spellbound by these massive storms. If it's a mild storm with mostly rain, I may simply go back to bed but if it's a hell-fire and damnation, lightning, spitting, and thunder-shaking storm, I tend to move about the house, lights out to better see the light show dancing across the sky, going from window to window, nose pressed close to glass watching the skies illuminated by brilliant uncontrolled electrical charges, counting "one-thousand one, one-thousand two..." and on till the thunder booms or shakes the house to estimate how close the lightning strike is—five seconds to the mile is the rule of thumb I've come to know. By the way, conventional wisdom is to stay away from windows and go to the basement.

As a kid back in southeast South Dakota I remember one storm in particular—coming out of the basement and looking out to power lines draped across the front porch and a clear view across the farm yard to the east—newly cleared as a tornado had demolished our large tin cattle Quonset, scattering it across the countryside along with smaller sheds and grain bins. Still dark out, with the storm moved out but distant lightning providing glimpses of the havoc, Mom and Dad loaded my sisters, brother and I into the old Chevy and headed out to check on Grandpa and Grandma a few miles down the road—heading out across the pasture as downed trees blocked the driveway—what an adventure for a kid!

Grandpa and Grandma were OK. They even still had power. Returning to our farm by the light of day, the clean up began with neighbors stopping by to take a look and lend a hand. I remember being too small to help much, besides there was a new world to explore in the woods as twisted, downed trees provided a massive jungle-gym to crawl and climb through. An added bonus from my perspective was our power being out. The priority was to save the frozen meat from the freezer, which was taken over to Grandpa's while Mom uncharacteristically announced to us kids that we could eat all the ice cream we wanted. WGWI—as a kid not realizing the full impact of tornados, I was thinking maybe they weren't so bad after all.

Now nearly 40 years later, after a weekend of chain sawing trees and repairing property, I am hopeful that last week's storms were the last of the season. No mas, no mas. And although I will still likely be more inclined to watch the power and fury of a storm unfold from an upstairs window rather than take shelter, I will keep a path cleared to the basement—just in case I need to implement "The Drill." I can also now find all the trees I need to climb around on without them being blown over and I don't need the power to go out as an excuse to eat all the ice cream I want. Mom said it's OK now.

Marolt said he has an open door policy. That is, he doesn't believe that the only time a student should see the principal is when he or she is in trouble. He likes to visit with students and believes it helps ease any anxiety they may have.

Students and parents are also invited to an open house from 4 to 6 p.m. on August 30. The open house allows students and parents to meet teachers and socialize with other students. This also allows the students to familiarize themselves with the location of a new classroom.

During the open house, parents may obtain a list of supplies the student needs for the start of the school year. The list is a little different for each grade, so it's important to make sure you have the correct list. Having the correct supplies also helps ease students' anxiety.

Marolt said bus routes and schedules have not changed since last year. Anyone with questions about bus routes and schedules should call 681-8711 and ask for extension 253.

Another new addition at Challenger Elementary School this year is a new reading and math series. To help parents understand the new curriculum, a meeting has been scheduled for September 27. Meeting times vary depending upon the students' grade, but it will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Parents will soon be receiving notices about the meeting.

It's hard to believe that summer is coming to an end. Soon it will be time for your student to get into a new routine, and with a little effort and thought, off to a good school year.

Maps showing population distribution available

A map showing population distribution in Minnesota and the Twin Cities metropolitan area, based on 2000 U.S. Census data, is available from Minnesota Planning.

The 17-x 22-inch maps show one dot for every 50 people. Population in the entire state is on one side; population in the Twin Cities area is on the other side. County names and borders, major lakes and selected highways are shown for reference.

The maps were produced by the Cartography Laboratory, Geography Department, University of Minnesota. Sponsoring agencies include the University's Center for Urban and Regional Affairs, the State Demography Center and the Land Management Information Center at Minnesota Planning and the Metropolitan Council.

Maps are available to walk-in visitors at all sponsoring agencies during normal business hours. While folded copies will be mailed at no charge, flat maps require postage and handling costs.

The Thief River Falls TIMES

Finalists in the 2001 Thief River Golf Club tournament Championship Flight Sunday were Stan Sjoberg (left) and Jeff Wiltse. Both won the event previously – Sjoberg in 1995 and 1998; Wiltse in 1997. Wiltse won this time with a 3-and-2 decision over Sjoberg.

Northland has 71 report for start of football drills...

New coach welcomes Pioneers

First-year Northland Community and Technical College head football coach Guy Finstrom and his staff welcomed 71 players for the start of preseason drills over the weekend.

Finstrom, an assistant on the Pioneers' football staff a year ago, took over the program following the resignation of head coach Dan Willoughby following the 2000 season. Finstrom is also the school's head baseball coach.

"I look for good things from this team," said Finstrom. "We're as big as we were last year, and I think we have a little more speed."

There is some experience to provide a solid nucleus for 2001, according to Finstrom. "We've got some offensive linemen back, and we've got some guys coming back on defense who played a lot for us last year," he explained.

An early blow to the team, however, is a knee injury to sophomore quarterback Jeremy Cost (Fordville, N.D.) that will require surgery and likely sideline him for the Aug. 24 season opener against Rochester.

Freshmen Justin Skjerven (Thief River Falls), Todd Larson (Frazee) and John Robbins (Winnipeg, Man.) will be running the offense in the absence of Cost, a part-time starter as a freshman.

Finstrom's coaching staff this fall includes Terry Wiseth, Sean Huset, Eric Melcher, Dan Zubich, Daryl Wackenfuss, and Matt Hitchen. Student-coaches are Dorian Myers and Jayson Olson.

The Pioneers' opener vs. Rochester will be played at the University of Minnesota-Duluth as part of the annual Minnesota Community College Conference Kickoff Classic. The Northland home opener will be Sept. 8 against Central Lakes.

Northland is the defending Northern Division champion. The Pioneers went 6-3 during the regular season last fall, then fell to Minnesota West 12-6 in an MCCC state playoff semifinal game played in Thief River Falls.

NCTC has young, talented team

■ Pioneers' volleybal squad reports for practice

A large squad, featuring mostly incoming freshmen and transfer students, turned out for the start of preseason drills with the 2001 Northland Community and Technical College volleyball team.

Sixteen of the 20 players are new to head coach Mike Zachow's program.

"We're very young," acknowledge Zachow. "We'll be trying different players at different spots early to see how it all works out."

Jackie Ostenaa (McIntosh), Jacqui Karl (Waubun), Amanda Spong (Oklee), and Amy Metzgar (Hoople, N.D.) are the four players returning from a team that started strong and finished 22-9 a year ago. Zachow expects that group to be his leaders this fall. "All four of them are better players than they were a year ago," he said.

And the newcomers bring a wealth of talent, noted Zachow. "We've got a lot of individual talent," he said. "It's just a matter of getting that individual talent to work together as a team."

Zachow expects the Pioneers' offense to be a hard-hitting outfit. Work is being done to bring the defense up to the same level.

The Pioneers will open the season with a trip to Texas, where they will be part of the 12-team Richland Invitational in Dallas that traditionally draws some of the top community/junior college volleyball teams in the country.

First home appearance for the Pioneers will be their third annual Pepsi Invitational Thursday, Aug. 30.

Kathy Huschle returns as Zachow's assistant coach. Shelli Eriksen of Thief River Falls and Tami Johnson of Fosston are working as student-assistants this fall

Jeff Wiltse wins TRF golf title

Jeff Wiltse won his second Thief River Golf Club tournament title with a 3-and-2 victory over Stan Sjoberg during Sunday's 18-hole Championship Flight final.

Wiltse, who also won the tournament in 1997, joins Sjoberg as a two-time tournament winner. Sjoberg won it in 1995 and 1998.

It wasn't an easy tournament trip for Wiltse, who drew Tim Delmore, the 1992 champion, as a quarterfinal foe and met John Sjoberg, last year's tournament runner-up to Larry Coltom in the semifinals. He won both of those matches Saturday, and completed the task with the next-day conquest of Stan Sjoberg.

Stan Sjoberg advanced with Saturday wins over Rick Nikunen and Adam Nordin.

But Sjoberg fell behind early and trailed most of the way in the championship match. "I played very well on the front side," said Wiltse, who was 2-under par and 4-up after nine holes. "I was driving the ball well and I was putting well."

Playing well early helps on a course where the second nine presents a decidedly more difficult challenge, according to Wiltse, who was 3-over par through the wooded second nine. "The back nine is so much harder than the front nine," he acknowledged.

A key point early in the match, explained Wiltse, occurred on No. 5 when he was able to match a strong hole by Sjoberg.

On the turn, Wiltse three-putted No. 10, but came back to win No. 11. After a draw on No. 12, Sjoberg again chopped the difference to three holes with a win on No. 13. That was, however, as close as it got as they matched strokes on No. 14, 15 and 16 to end the match.

"From tee-to-green, Stan played really, really well," noted Wiltse. "He had some really great drives. But he would probably tell you that he didn't putt as well as he would have liked."

Wiltse has been a frequent finalist in the tournament. In addition to the two titles, he has five runner-up finishes – losing twice each to Larson and Jeff Reese, and once to Sjoberg. The experience helped settle the nerves, he said, that accompany the tournament surroundings.

Strong winds played a part in all three weekend matches, pointed out Wiltse, but it didn't stop his championship performance that picked up steam with a strong semifinal round. "I played real well against John (Sjoberg), but not quite as well against Tim," he noted.

In play designed for golfers who did not earn a spot in the Championship Flight during an earlier qualifying round, Tyler Fitzel defeated Paul Sjoberg in the President's Flight final, and Tommy Greelis beat Tim Erickson in the Vice-President's Flight title match

Coltom wound up as the President's Flight consolation champion. The tournament hasn't had a Championship Flight winner successfully defend his title since Derek Larson won back-to-back crowns in 1990 and 1991.

Elsewhere Sunday, Scott Gagner shot a 75 to win the six-player, medal-play First Flight.

Zachow will serve as NCTC A.D.

Mike Zachow will wear several hats this year at Northland Community and Technical College. In addition to his previous duties as the Pioneers' head volleyball and head women's basketball coach, Zachow has accepted the position as interim athletic director for the 2001-02 school year.

Rick Nelson, the Northland's athletic director since 1985, resigned his position earlier this summer to join the faculty at Century College in White Bear Lake, where he will be developing a new sports management program.

Initially, Guy Finstrom was named as the Pioneers' interim athletic director, and Zachow was appointed his assistant. However, Finstrom has since declined the job in order to concentrate on his duties as Northland's head football and head baseball coach.

Zachow is native of Milwaukee, Wisc., and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Platteville, where he earned both his bachelor of arts and masters of education

Sara and Jason Kenfield's home in Red Lake Falls was hit by two large trees knocked down by strong winds of Wednesday's storm.

Area emergency services will come together Aug. 22

By Jody Kenfield
Red Lake Falls Gazette

There's nothing like practice to keep people in shape. Athletes, actors, doctors, teachers – they all need practice.

But what about those people who come when there's an emergency: firefighters, ambulance personnel, law enforcement? How do they practice so they know what they are doing when a real emergency happens?

That's what three volunteers had in mind when they planned a mock disaster at Marcoux Corner for Wednesday, Aug. 22. Coordinating the disaster are Louie Stich with the Red Lake Falls Ambulance Service, Jim Dessellier of the Oklee First Responders and Ferd DeHate of the Plummer Fire Department.

"For the grant to work, we have to pretend we are dealing with hazardous materials," Stich said.

Those hazardous materials will be the result of an accident that will be staged at Marcoux Corner, at the corner of Highways 2 and 32. "There will be many victims and, in the process, Marcoux Corner will be burned," he explained. "The burn was already planned when we decided to do a drill at the same time."

Because of the disaster drills, motorists can expect delays on Highway 2, Highway 32 and County Road 49, which are all near Marcoux Corner.

All the Red Lake County agencies will be involved in the drill: the Red Lake County Sheriff's Department, the Red Lake Falls and Oklee fire departments and ambulance services and the Plummer and Brooks first responders.

Several other agencies have been invited to participate in the drill, including the Polk County Sheriff's Department, ambulance services from Fosston, Fertile, Crookston and Thief River Falls and fire departments from Crookston, Mentor, Erskine and Fertile.

The drill is scheduled to begin at 6:30 Wednesday evening and Stich said he hopes to have a large part of the drill done by 8:30.

"Nobody will be going into the building but there will be about 30 'victims' involved in the drill," Stich said. "In the process, Marcoux Corner will be burned."

The entire drill will be evaluated. Evaluators will look at the efficiency of treatment and trasportation of victims, the use of the command system among the agencies, communications and the setup and safety of the scene for all rescuers.

"The purpose of the drill is to evaluate the overall rescue effort of the county's emergency services, especially in regard to coordinating with other agencies," Stich said.

Agriculture is where it's at Agriculture remains a prominent employer in the region. Stories in the media during the past decade or more, have often focused on these "trying times" — drought, disease, insects, hail, flood waters, the farm bill, disaster aid or lack of, and above all else, poor commodity prices.

A story in the Wednesday, August 8, edition of The Times, and written by Kathi Carlson, focuses on a statistical reality (1992-1997) that paints a different picture. According to the report by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, agriculture and related commodities account for 17 percent of the state's gross product. Agriculture is also the second largest employer in Minnesota, providing more than 468,000 jobs, which account for 20 percent of the state total. Of the total, which includes jobs off the farm related to processing and distribution, 155,850 are farm workers.

The story goes on to point out where Minnesota ranks in the nation with different crops, and then provides a regional ranking of crops. In 1999, Minnesota ranked seventh for total cash receipts.

It wasn't surprising to me that in the year 2000, the total number of farms in Minnesota was estimated at 79,000, down 1,000 farms from 1999. From 1989 to 2000, the number of Minnesota farms decreased from 90,000 to 79,000. In several categories based on sales, the number of farms declined. Interestingly, among commercial farms in the $100,000 and over sales class, however, the number of farms remained unchanged from 1999 to 2000.

What I found most interesting, and surprising is that according to these statistics, the number of farms increased from 480 to 528 in Pennington county. It is important, however, that as Kathi quite appropriately pointed out in her story, a farm is defined as any establishment from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were sold or would normally be sold during the year. Government payments are included as sales.

If I had to guess, I would say that many, but not all farms in the county that are classified as "farms" under this definition, are classified as farms because they receive over $1,000 in government payments. In my opinion, that's a low threshold. It was also interesting that the total amount of land in farms increased, as did the average size of a farm, and the total number of cropland acres. It seems to buck the trend.

Yes, while on the one hand the numbers paint a picture rosier than we originally thought, it's also true that they aren't quite accurate. The danger is that these numbers tell a story that to a bureaucrat in Washington might be construed as evidence of healthy growth.

Yes, these numbers tell another story as well. They should remind us that a large number of residents in this region and in Minnesota are occupied in an industry that feeds the world. Unfortunately, and as Kathi pointed out in her story, "we don't think much about where our food comes from as we stroll up and down the aisles of the supermarket. When we see the FritoLay truck, we don't ponder the fact that the corn and potatoes used to make these products were raised by farmers.

"We also don't think about the fact that, although the agricultural news reported is often grim, Americans are among the healthiest and most well-fed people in history and that the farmers who provide our food are providing the world's growing population with safer, healthier food."

A good story reminds us of a good judge

Judge James R. Wilson makes an impression worth remembering. A story about him and written by Jeff Olsen, appeared in the August 11 edition of the Roseau Times-Region.

Though he knew that a small town can be a tough place to be a judge, he tried to be fair. He knew that what takes place in the courtroom often finds its way to the local cafe. In his words, he said "I may disagree with the law and I may dislike the facts, but my job was to determine what is right or wrong according to the law." And that's what he did.

He also had the kind of life experiences that help someone in this position. Without elaborating too much, he hinted at some youthful indiscretions, and said, "You're better off not being a saint. You also have to have common sense and to have had some life experiences to relate to the people you're dealing with."

What impressed me about the story was a comment I think sums up a lot about the man and the profession: "Judges are people, saints were people, and so are sinners."

No Place to Hide: Drug Abuse in the Heartland

by Clark Carr
President Narconon International

The Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse (CASA) at Columbia University has recently released the results of a study on drug abuse in rural American communities. This study was funded by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration. The results are shocking and are rattling the rafters of Midwest America. Per this study, 8th graders living in rural American communities are 34 percent more likely than their urban counterparts to smoke marijuana; 83 percent more likely to use crack cocaine; and 104 percent more likely to have used amphetamines within the last month.

The study also reports that drugs are as readily available in rural areas as in large urban cities. Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) seizures of meth labs jumped from 263 in 1994 to 1,627 in 1998 — a sixfold increase, concentrated in rural areas of the Heartland.

Besides scaring the hell out of middle America and painting a pretty black picture of the fate of our youth as far as drug abuse is concerned, what is the message we should be receiving from this study? To answer that let's backtrack into history 45 years.

It is the mid 1950's. The illegal drug problem is not yet on society's radar screen. In the 1950's all anyone knew about illicit drugs like marijuana was that Jazz Drummer and Bandleader Gene Kruppa and Actor Robert Mitchum smoked it, got caught and the media damned them for it. Cocaine? That word was in a line from the popular Cole Porter hit "I Get a Kick Out Of You." As for heroin, that is a drug of horror used only by the most degenerate and despairing individuals. Frank Sinatra's character in the movie "Man With A Golden Arm" teaches us that. Most Americans tend to view drug addiction as an affliction of the urban poor or an evil obsession of a handful of musicians and actors who are too far left of center to worry about. In short, Americans are completely naive to what drug addiction is. And we are most certainly clueless about the role illicit drugs will play in the course of our precious country's future.

Moving forward 10 years, it is now 1965. The country is in the post mourning years of JFK's assassination. The first onslaught of the English rock'n'roll music invasion with the Beatles and Rolling Stones hits our shores and takes American youth by storm while President Lyndon B. Johnson is grappling with the escalating Vietnam War. LSD is finding its way from the experimentation laboratories of the Hoffmann-LaRoche Drug Company to the streets of San Francisco. It is also at this time the first indications of increased heroin abuse in urban ghettos catches the attention of President Johnson's White House staff. The increased use of heroin, considered small by today's numbers, is of enough concern for Johnson to convince Congress to enact the Drug Rehabilitation Act and ask for an annual appropriation of $15 million. At the time no on in government at the Federal, State or local level has any idea that in just over 20 years time heroin abuse in the U.S. will escalate to a point where it will cost taxpayers over $50 million annually to treat the problem. Society's radar screen is beeping. Unfortunately not enough of us notice. In the mid 60's adult Americans still tended to view drug addiction as a problem inherent to the underprivileged. By the end of the decade, however, America's view on drugs began changing. Drugs, in particular marijuana, hashish, LSD, cocaine and other hallucinogens, became socially acceptable on a large scale during the Flower Power era. And while this was alarming to many parents of this period, most of us thought of midsize cities and rural America as drug-free oases that would insulate our kids from these pro-drug influences. The truth was that drugs did not respect geographic boundaries: they broke out of the big city limits and began to swarm into the heartland of mid-sized cities, rural towns and farm communities. Hindsight is 20/20, and in looking back it is easy to see our nation's failure to fully recognize and act effectively to stop the drug problem then. However, if we look closer we will see that this failure was driven in no small measure by the assumption of the masses that it was someone else's problem, not our problem. And it is this assumption that allowed drugs the time they needed to seep into every neighborhood in every city and class across American without prejudice.

As we being the 21st Century in America the message is loud and clear: There is no place to hide from the problem of substance abuse and addiction.

Respect is as important as nurturing, discipline

Effective parenting involves a balance of nurturing, discipline and respect for children. And that's true regardless of a family's cultural or economic circumstances, says Ron Pitzer, family sociologist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Respect means giving children freedom of thought and expression. When parents are not respectful of children, it's referred to a psychological control, Pitzer says. Too much psychological control can limit kids' opportunities for self-discovery, keep them from forming an identity, damage self-esteem and confidence, and prevent them from learning to understand and express their emotions.

While this kind of freedom is important throughout childhood, it becomes especially important when children reach early adolescence, around age 10 or 11. Pitzer says it's at this age that kids begin to form an independent psychological identity and are more insistent on having freedom and privacy. Pitzer says it's much more effective for parents to use behavioral control than psychological control.

Parents who practice behavioral control monitor, understand and guide behavior, Pitzer says. They reward good behavior and prevent misbehavior. Children who don't get enough of this guidance and supervision are at risk for developmental difficulties, Pitzer says.

More information on positive parenting is available at www.extension.umn.edu, or at a county office of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tax reform is "big win" for all

To the Editor:

The property tax reform legislation passed by the legislature in the 2001 session is not just a "big win" for business, as it has been characterized in many reports. It is a big win for all Minnesota taxpayers.

Every taxpayer in Minnesota was provided significant, immediate relief which will show up in your tax bills next May. In northwestern Minnesota, 2002 property taxes will be 24.3 percent lower for the average value home, 30.5 percent lower for apartment property and 20.3 percent less for a $1 million business property, than they otherwise would have been under current law. Voters should be aware; however, that the approval of local government or local school referenda this fall will impact the amount of relief you receive.

More important than the immediate relief, however, is the structural reform of the system. Your property tax is now a local property tax. The state mandated education portion of your tax bill has been assumed by the state. What you pay reflects the local services you receive. Any increase or decrease in that amount is directly attributable to spending levels by local governments.

This bill does not benefit business at the expense of homeowners or education. Minnesota businesses still pay nearly 25 percent of all property taxes collected in Minnesota even though business only has 15 percent of all the value. This legislation is reform because it builds a greater connection between tax collection and tax spending, and in the end, will benefit every property taxpayer through greater accountability and slower property tax growth.

Sincerely,
David Olson
President
MN Chamber of Commerce

MFBF opposes new EPA rules on feedlots

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has proposed an extensive new rule that would dramatically effect agriculture in Minnesota. It deals with how feedlots, otherwise known as animal feeding operations (AFOs), would be federally regulated by the EPA through permitting and operational regulations. The rule not only effects producers with feedlots, but also crop producers who purchase manure.

In detailed comments submitted to the EPA, the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation (MFBF) told the EPA that any new regulation will only be a stepping stone for regulatory agencies to require permits for the entire agricultural community, regardless of size or type of operation. MFBF went on to say that if it is the goal of the EPA to have every farm permitted and to collect permit fees from those operations, the agency should be forthright in their goals and not disguise new regulations as an effort to improve water quality.

"For five years, stakeholders within Minnesota worked in crafting an entirely new set of feedlot regulations that became permanent rules in 2000, and these rules are now being implemented. Increased federal regulation of Minnesota feedlots would only undermine the flexibility of our counties and Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) to implement area specific programs and result in increased coordination costs for state government agencies and unnecessarily heighten regulatory burdens for producers," said MFBF President Al Christopherson.

Currently all feedlots over 1,000 animal units are required to register with the EPA. The proposed rule would lower that number to as low as 300 animal units. Current state law requires all operations with over 50 animal units to register with the MPCA and are subject to state feedlot rules.

"Farmers and ranchers understand the importance of the environment. Their livelihood depends on it. However, the expenses that are incurred to meet compliance are taking a heavy toll on farm incomes and forcing farmers and ranchers to spread the cost of increased regulation over more units of production. The unintended consequence is the inability of small and medium-sized farms to compete in a highly charged regulatory environment," said Christopherson.

It is feared a new set of federal regulations will have a chilling affect on plans for further investment in livestock operations and the agricultural infrastructure within Minnesota. These future investments will be critical for family farms to be passed onto to future generations with some sense of economic security.

"Over the decades agricultural producers have achieved extraordinary conservation gains through voluntary, incentive-based programs to conserve fragile soils, wetlands, protect water quality and wildlife habitats," said Christopherson.

"Farm Bureau believes the current effort to expand the scope of regulation goes well beyond congressional intent and, as a matter of policy, we believe the non-point source issues of animal feeding operations are best addressed through incentive-based programs."

MFBF is Minnesota's largest general farm organization, representing nearly 16,000 farm families. Our members are concerned about our environment and have a long history of implementing sound conservation practices. To see MFBFs detailed comments go to the "Legislative Action Center" at www.minnesotafarmbureau.org.

City Schools To Start Fall Term September 4

"The Thief River Falls public schools will open for the fall term Tuesday, September 4, and the faculty is now complete with the exception of a girls physical education instructor, it was announced by Superintendent W. G. Claffy following the August session of the board of education Monday evening. Claffy stated that members of the faculty will report at teachers' meetings August 30 and 31, while Kalmer Ostby, Lincoln high school principal, is now stationed in his office to register new high school students. Two new sixth-grade teachers were appointed Monday. One of them, Sidney Roy, is a graduate of Bemidji state teachers college, and is the son of Paul Roy of St. Hilaire. Also named was Miss Evelyn S. O'Grady of Watford City, North Dakota, a graduate of Minot state teachers college."

Western Theme To Be Employed In Fall Festival

"A Western theme will be utilized in connection with the 1951 fall festival to be sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, it was announced at a short business session held in connection with an outdoor Jaycee meeting held last Thursday evening in Tindolph park. Dates of the festival will be selected later, it was announced. Preliminary arrangements also were made for a series of dances during the fall months with music to be supplied by 'name' bands."

Majorettes Go To Winnipeg Monday

"The Marching Majorettes, directed by Mrs. David Carlson, will leave by chartered bus next Monday morning, August 20, for Winnipeg, and will be met at the agricultural college campus there by Mayor Cloutier and a squad of motorcycle police, who will escort the group into the city.

"Following an afternoon demonstration, the Majorettes will perform at a rugby games between teams representing Toronto and Winnipeg.

"The local group has also been booked to perform at Warroad on Timber Day Monday, September 3."

Fire Truck Chasers Trapped By Firemen

"About 50 local motorists found themselves in an embarrassing position last Wednesday evening, when, hearing the fire siren sound, they took off in pursuit of the two fire engines which went to the fair grounds, where a smoky fire was burning. The drivers of cars, on arriving at the far end of the fair grounds, were surprised to note that no effort was being made by the firemen to quench the flames.

"The spectators started to leave, but, on arriving at the gate, they were stopped by members of the police and fire departments, who handed out warnings against the practice of chasing the fire trucks. The police recorded the license numbers of the offenders for future reference.

"Fire Chief Roy Langevin pointed out that the department is not trying to stop anyone from going to a fire, but they would like to have the public wait a few minutes until the volunteer firemen have had a chance to arrive at the scene, which has been impossible in several recent instances."

RAIN AND WIND:
A Bad Storm Monday Afternoon Damaged This Section to the Extent of Many Thousand Dollars.
THE FARMERS LOSE THE MOST.
It was a Small Sized Cyclone, Much Damage Done to Property In Thief River Falls.

"This section was visited by a most disastrous wind and rain storm Monday afternoon and crops and buildings were damaged to the amount of thousands of dollars. It was one of the worst storms that ever visited Thief River Falls, according to old settlers, and while it did not last more than half an hour, it made it interesting for all. The storm covered a strip of country extending from west to east and about seven miles in width. This city was about in the center of the storm.

"The damage done to the crops is hard to estimate. All the grain that had not been cut was laid flat on the ground and, as wheat is about ripe, it will not rise. It is thought by some, however, that it can be cut by a harvester, but a great deal of care will have to be taken. Wheat and hay that were in the stock were blown down, and scattered all over the country.

"The rain fell in torrents and, being accompanied by such a heavy wind, did a great deal of damage to the residences in this city. In a number of instances the plastering on houses was ruined and household furniture greatly damaged by water.

"The Thief River Falls Lumber company sustained the heaviest loss in the city. The lumber in their yards was scattered in every direction, much of it being broken, while the smoke stacks and burner were damaged to a large extent and several small buildings were removed from their foundations. Supt. Crowe estimates that damage at $1,500."

Notes:

"Cyclone insurance is in demand.

"About every awning in town was blown down.

"Considerable hail fell in the country west of here.

"Several windows in George William's building were broken.

"Numerous shade trees and small outbuildings all over town were blown down.

"All the telegraph and telephone wires between here and Crookston were blown down.

"The brick engine house at the Red Lake Falls Milling company's elevator was blown down.

"The roof on a portion of John Meehan's barn was blown off and his windmill destroyed.

"The chimney on Mrs. Wm. Porters' house was blown down and the inside of the house was damaged.

"The chimney on F. H. Kratka's house blew down and his house was flooded with water, doing a great deal of damage.

"Part of the roof of the O. K. Mill blew off and the stock of flour, wheat, feed etc. was damaged to the amount of about $500.

"The building in which H. M. Hick's hearse was stored blew down and the hearse was damaged to the extent of about $25.

"The window in Drs. Tupper and Strand's office over the First State Bank blew in and considerable damage was done by water.

"The awning in front of John Morgan's store blew down breaking three windows in his building and one in Bert Walker's building.

"Joe Ryson was caught in the storm between here and St. Hilaire. His buggy was turned over several times but he was not injured.

"H. Fant's telephone exchange was damaged considerable. Many of the wires were blown down and telephone poles were broken. His damage is estimated at about $200.

"The storm struck Nick Tarrant's collection of buildings with full force and jarred them considerable. At this writing Nick has not taken an inventory and it is impossible to say whether or not any is gone."

Sixth grade boys basketball team from Thief River Falls had a 1-2 showing at the 2001 Pacesetter Minnesota state basketball championships in St. Cloud, where they lost a quarterfinal game to Pipestone-Jasper 32-27; won a consolation semifinal match-up with Esko 46-25; and dropped a consolation final encounter with Willmar 50-43. Over 800 boys and girls teams in various age groups took part in the regional qualifying tournaments across Minnesota leading to the state finals. The Thief River Falls team, 22-4 for the season, included front row from left, Alax Yaggie, Andrew BlackLance, Adam Rodahl, Matthew Olson, Lee Peterson; back row, Jeremy Sich, Joel Lunsetter, Sean Sorteberg, and Austin Kelsnas. The team was coached by Kevin Yaggie and Mel Sich.

degrees. He taught for two years at Platteville, where he coached women's basketball, before joining the Northland faculty in the fall of 1998. He teaches in the health and physical education department, and has been coordinator of the intramural athletic program at the school.

As athletic director, Zachow will coordinate all athletic events at Northland, overseeing eligibility requirements for athletes, scheduling of events and personnel, handle athletic department publicity, and organize the intramural program.

"Mike has demonstrated exceptional ability to recruit, organize and publicize our athletic programs," said Northland Dean of Students Dennis Bendickson. "He has a great deal of support around him, and I believe he will excel in this post."

Finstrom will continue as assistant athletic director, a position he held a year ago under Deb Jacobson when Nelson was on sabbatical.

GREENBUSH RACE PARK

Saturday turned into a wet and wild night of stock car racing at the Greenbush Race Park. The stands were full and a nice car count was on hand for the second and final Outlaw Sprint Car Special of the season, but weather affected the race card.

The program only had a couple of heat events to run when a fast-moving thunderstorm rolled through the area. It was apparent there were friendlier skies coming behind the system, so when the rain ended, crews worked for about an hour getting the track back into condition.

Part of the one-hour, 45-minute delay was trying to figure out where the Outlaw Sprints could be push-started from.

Bob Martin (East Grand Forks) has run well in the past at the track, and Saturday night was no different as he raced his way to the checkered flag and the NDSA Sprints win. Martin held off an early challenge from Marc Dobmeier and a late race charge by Dave Sobczak for the win. Sobczak would finish second, with Dobmeier third.

The Sprint feature included two rollovers. Chris Shirek and Tom Cummings flipped their cars on opposite ends of the track, with no injuries. Late in the race, Wade Nygaard "helicoptered" his car off Turn 1. He was uninjured, but it ended his night on the track.

Rick Bates (Badger) was on a rocket Saturday night as he piloted his Mini-Sprint car to another feature win. Points leader Dennis Rantanen (Thief River Falls) finished second, with Robbi Peterson (Middle River) third.

Shawn Bugge (Thief River Falls) rolled his car off the top of Turn 1 on the second lap of the Mini-Sprints. His car rolled once, and landed back on its wheels. Without missing a step, Bugge drove his car off the track and back into the pits.

A nice field of NOPA Pure Stock cars were on hand, but the results were quite familiar. Jim Hilman (Lancaster) won the feature, with Bill Timm (Greenbush) in second and Steffen Snare (Hallock) third. Hilman has dominated the class and continues to maintain a large points advantage.

After the long rain delay, Bob Shafer did not come out to start the Super Stocks feature race. That was good news for points leader Gordie Lancaster, who was scheduled to start in the second row, but with Shafer's absence, he moved up to the front row for the start. Lancaster would race to the win, with Paul Berggren (Karlstad) a strong second and Bryon Berger (Badger) third.

Modifieds feature did not run on Saturday night. It is still not known if they will run a double-feature this Friday night or if they will opt for a longer single-feature race.

Friday, Aug. 17, will be the Elliot Baker Modifieds Memorial at the Greenbush Race Park. Classes racing that night will include the Modifieds, Super Stocks, NDPA Street Stocks, NDPA Pure Stocks and the Mini-Sprints. Race action begins at 7 p.m.

The Race Park is located one-half mile north of Greenbush on County Road 7.

Early goose hunt dates set

■ Youth Waterfowl Hunt is also scheduled

September Canada goose seasons and the one-day 2001 Youth Waterfowl Hunt will be the same as last year, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

The early Canada goose hunt is intended to provide opportunities for hunters to harvest Minnesota-breeding Canada geese before the arrival of migrating geese from Canada. The early September goose season will be Sept. 1-22 statewide except in the Northwest Goose Zone, where the season will be Sept. 1-15.

Daily bag limits will be five Canada geese except in the Northwest and the Southeast Goose Zones, where the daily limit will be two Canada geese. Shooting hours will be one-half hour before sunrise to sunset each day.

Hunters, except those under age 18 or over age 65, will be required to obtain a $4 permit, available from Electronic Licensing System locations and from the DNR License Bureau in St. Paul. The $4 permit is also valid for hunters participating in late December Canada goose seasons that will be announced at a later date.

Hunters must also possess federal and state duck stamps and a valid small game license, and be Harvest Information Program certified.

HIP certification is required nationwide to hunt migratory birds. This cooperative program between the state and federal governments is designed to improve hunter surveys to provide better estimates of migratory bird harvest, thus helping ensure the future of migratory bird hunting. All licensed waterfowl hunters and other migratory bird hunters must be HIP certified by answering yes to the question of whether they intend to hunt migratory birds when they purchase their small game license.

Although hunters in the early goose hunt are generally restricted from hunting within at least 100 yards of any surface water, over-water hunting is allowed in the West Goose Zone (south of Interstate 94, west of U.S. Highway 71 and State Highway 60) for the entire Sept. 1-22 early season.

According to Tim Bremicker, director of the DNR's Wildlife Division, the intent of the expansion of the open water hunting in the West Goose Zone is to provide additional opportunity for hunters to take geese in that area of the state, where damage to agricultural crops from geese has been severe.

"In the West Goose Zone, regular goose seasons are more restrictive than most of the state to reduce harvest of migrant Canada geese," Bremicker said. "The over-water hunting provides additional opportunity that should attract hunters and increase the goose harvest in this zone."

Youth Waterfowl Hunt is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 15. Hunting will be allowed from one-half hour before sunrise to 4 p.m. Young hunters must be accompanied by a non-hunting adult.

Although final waterfowl regulations will not be available from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service until early September, it is expected that duck bag limits for youth waterfowl hunters will be six ducks, and may not include more than four mallards (no more than two of which may be hens), three scaup, two wood ducks, two redheads, one pintail, one black duck, and one canvasback.

Youth hunters can also take one Canada goose, except in the West Goose Zone where they can take five Canada geese. The September Canada goose season, with open-water Canada goose hunting in the West Goose Zone, will be open at the time the Youth Waterfowl Hunt is scheduled.

"There has been some controversy surrounding the youth waterfowl hunt, but a recently-completed survey of Minnesota waterfowl hunters indicated that 63 percent of the hunters believe the DNR should continue youth waterfowl hunting day, 21 percent said it should be discontinued, and the remainder were undecided," Bremicker said. "Only 35 percent of all respondents favored expanding the youth hunt to two days, so we decided to keep the hunt at one day. We will have more results from the statewide hunter survey before the waterfowl season this year."

Details on the September Canada goose seasons are available now in the 2001 Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook. Details about the Youth Waterfowl Hunt will be in the 2001 Waterfowl Regulations Supplement, which will be available in early September.

2001 Minnesota deer hunting information...

Licenses, permits available

The 2001 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook, along with deer licenses and applications for deer antlerless and special hunt permits, are now available at more than 1,800 Electronic License System agents and the Department of Natural Resources License Center in St. Paul.

Season opener for the 2001 firearms deer hunt is Nov. 3; opener for the archery deer hunt is Sept. 15; and the opener for the muzzleloader deer hunt is Nov. 24.

A total of 284,210 antlerless permits are available this fall, which is a 22 percent increase from last year and the second highest number ever offered. Most of the permit increases are in Zones 1 and 2, which reflects an increased deer population despite the slightly harsher than average winter.

Antlerless permits are available in all areas except permit area 116 in and around the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness in northeastern Minnesota. In addition, permit area 203 (Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge and surrounding area) will be restricted to a limited number of antlerless permits available only to youth under age 16 during the firearms season; all other hunters in this permit area will be restricted to bucks-only hunting.

A total of 33 special hunts will also be held in parks and refuges where hunting is not normally allowed and where the number of hunters must be limited for safety purposes. The regulation handbook includes a complete listing of the hunts and application instructions.

Antlerless/Special Permits

General application deadline for antlerless permits and special hunts is the Thursday after Labor Day (Sept. 6). Applications for the Camp Ripley archery hunt, which are now made through the ELS system, must be made by Aug. 17. Deadline for the New Ulm archery hunt is Sept. 1.

Deer hunters are reminded to check their license at the time of purchase to verify that they have the correct zone on the license and the correct antlerless permit area on the license receipt. The deer zone is printed along the side of the deer license. The antlerless permit area applied for will appear only on the license receipt.

Hunters who have recently moved should request the license agent to update their address when they purchase their licenses. Also, hunters who have changed driver's license numbers due to a name change should contact the DNR Information Center by calling toll free 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367).

New In 2001

Lake Bemidji State Park will hold its first special hunt Nov. 5-6. Thirty-five antlerless only permits are available for the special hunt in the park, which is designated as special permit area 911.

Also, the Bemidji State Game Refuge in Beltrami County is open for archery deer hunting through Dec. 31, not Dec. 2 as stated on page 114 of the Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook. This state game refuge formerly closed to hunting on the first Sunday in December.

License Information/Harvest

Regular deer hunting licenses cost $26 for residents and $126 for nonresidents, including the $1 agent's issuing fee.

There are also several additional deer licensing options, including $51 for resident multi-zone buck licenses that allow hunters to tag bucks-only in more than one zone, and $67 for an all-season buck license that allows a resident to hunt the archery, firearms and muzzleloader seasons and take one buck.

A $6.50 youth firearms deer license, without a tag, is available for residents 12 to 15 years of age. This license requires that the youth be accompanied by a licensed hunter at least 18 years of age who possesses a valid tag, and that any deer taken by the youth hunter be tagged by another member of the party.

In 2000, approximately 450,000 firearms hunters harvested 191,400 deer during the firearms season. An additional 4,500 deer were harvested during the muzzleloader season, and 70,000 archery hunters harvested 15,700 deer.

Pennington County seeks Ag Disaster Declaration

by David Hill
Editor

Harvest in northwestern Minnesota is well underway. It should be nearly complete, but the weather put a crimp in a lot of plans this summer, so much so, that Pennington County Commissioners are seeking an Agriculture Disaster Declaration.

The Harvest

Mike Philipp, Farm Service Agency, said every day the wheat harvest is postponed, the worse it gets. Quality is definitely suffering because of lateness, he said. Philipp said test weights have dropped from 60 to 57 or 58, the color is turning whitish, and the farmer is losing bushels.

Philipp said harvest is behind schedule. Although, it's hard to really gauge. It is way behind last year, but last year was an exceptional year, he said. Nevertheless, he said harvest was a little behind the average. What the farmer needs, he said, is a good five days of dry weather, but that hasn't happened.

It's a shame these crops couldn't have been harvested earlier. Crops that were harvested earlier, he said, really looked good.

Philipp said he's not too sure about the soybean crops. He said they don't look too bad unless they've been hailed on.

According to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service report for the state, issued August 20, "Spring wheat is 51 percent harvested, versus 63 percent harvested last year and 51 percent for the five-year average. Winter wheat harvest is wrapping up with 97 percent complete. Harvest progress for oats is 89 percent, barley 74 percent."

Disaster Declaration
In Pennington County

Agricultural losses in Pennington due to storms, rain and wind this season exceed $8 million, according to a Damage Assessment Report prepared by the County Emergency board. Tuesday, Pennington County Commissioners approved application for a United States Agriculture Secretarial Disaster Declaration.

Quite honestly, said Howard Person, Pennington County Emergency Board member, if approved it won't do much. It does make emergency loans available from FHA, and make livestock operators eligible for feed under another disaster aid program. The benefit of a Secretarial Disaster

FSA issues farm program updates

Farm Service Agency (FSA) recently issued important updates agriculture producers and program participants need. Producers who have questions should not hesitate to contact their local FSA office.

Emergency Payments

Another round of Emergency Payments (Market Loss Assistance Payments or MLA) have been approved. These FY 2001 MLA payments are being prepared and issued at this time, and any producer who was eligible and received a FY 2001 PFC (AMTA) payment will automatically receive the MLA. The payment rates are slightly higher than the initial 2001 rates.

Loan Deficiency Payment

LDP rates for harvested 2001 crops are running much lower than they were one year ago, with August 20, 2001 rates at: Wheat - $.26; Barley - $.11; Oats - $.0; Canola - $.02; and Soybeans - $.43 (check with FSA for other crops). Many farmers with storage room on the farm plan to just keep an eye on the prices for now and lock in a rate if the markets start going up. It's a different story for those that are hauling towards the elevator. Those who plan to sell immediately will want to be sure to get whatever rate there is before they actually sell the grain, and while it is lo

Dayton staff to hold meeting on Postal Service

Senator Mark Dayton's State Director Jim Gelbmann will be in Thief River Falls on Monday, August 27 for a town meeting to hear from citizens, business owners, and local officials in Northwest Minnesota about the impact of the U.S. Postal Service's (USPS) decision to move mail-sorting operations from Thief River Falls to Grand Forks, North Dakota.

The event will take place at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln High School Auditorium, located at 101 S. Knight Ave. in Thief River Falls.

Dayton, who earlier this year arranged a meeting for Thief River Falls officials with U.S. Postmaster General William Henderson in Washington, D.C., said there is growing concern in the region that, contrary to USPS promises, the move has harmed the reliability of daily mail service for Thief River Falls and surrounding communities. He urged people from across the region who have a concern about the impact of the Postal Service's action on local mail

Back to School Night at FMS on August 30

Franklin Middle School will host a "Back to School Night" on Thursday, August 30, from 6 to 8 p.m. The school will be open from 5:30 p.m. to try lockers and to ask any questions of the staff that you may have. Students should remember to bring their class schedule with them. Refreshments will be served as parents and students arrive at the front entrance and throughout the evening.

The night will consist of a structured mini-day with the first bell ringing at 5:56 p.m. Period 1 will be from 6 to 6:13 p.m.; Period 2 will be from 6:17 to 6:27 p.m.; Period 3 will be 6:31 to 6:41 p.m.; Period 4 will be from 6:45 to 6:55 p.m.; Period 5 will be from 6:59 to 7:09 p.m.; Period 6 will be from 7:13 to 7:23 p.m.; and Period 7 will be from 7:27 to 7:37 p.m.

Physical education uniforms will also be available for purchase at the close of the evening from the school store window in the commons area.

All students and parents are encouraged to attend.

Bob Wayne, principal at Franklin Middle School reminds parents that being involved in your student's education is one way to help ensure their success.

Wayne said he's eager for the school year to begin and says to, "Bring it on!"

"A River Runs Through It" was the title of this year's free MinnAqua fishing clinic. Kids from around the area learned about fishing and the environment at small sessions like the one pictured above. Here a group crowds under the shade of a tree at Red Robe park in Thief River Falls as they learn about boating safety. Several other topics were addressed and the youth participating in the program also had an opportunity to do some fishing in the afternoon.

TRF City Council debates shoreland variance request

Reporter

City Council members went round and round over a shoreland variance request by Harold and Gayle Waale last Tuesday; a simple matter that may have the potential to set a precedent for granting such requests.

The Waales would like to build a three-season porch onto their home, replacing a portion of the existing deck, but the blue prints put the structure inside the 50 feet setback from the river required by city ordinance. A Planning Commission recommendation to deny the six-foot variance was reviewed and discussed by the City Council at the July 24 meeting and was subsequently voted on. A motion to deny the request failed by a four to four vote and the matter was to be held over until this most recent meeting.

Although a somewhat similar request was granted to another party earlier this year, some Council members question whether

Construction delays to continue in TRF

Reporter

As residents of Thief River Falls continue to cautiously, and sometimes not so cautiously, make their way through downtown construction areas, the light at the end of the tunnel seems to be coming into sight.

Granted, there aren't any tunnels in town, but streets are starting to look like streets again. Construction supervisors assure the public that road work is pretty much on schedule and may be finished by the beginning of October.

Currently, work on the downtown section between Atlantic Avenue and Main Avenue is near completion as the sidewalks are being poured. Local traffic may be allowed to enter the gravel street near the end of next week for parking. The pavement, however, will not be laid until all of the sections have been prepared.

Crews will begin pouring new curbs and gutters in the section between Knight Avenue and Main Avenue today. New pipes are being put in in the intersections between Arnold and Kinney Avenues, along with new fire hydrants.

The good news is weather has, for the most part, cooperated and construction is on schedule. The bad news is simply that it's not over yet. Drive safely!

ASAE student branch takes top honors

The North Dakota State University (NDSU) student engineering branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) placed first in the Equipment Manufacturers Institute (EMI) trophies competition held July 30 in Sacramento, Calif.

The competition is for ASAE student branches consisting of fewer than 33 members. The award is presented to the student branch that compiles the most outstanding record of activities and achievements in the previous year.

The winning report was prepared by seniors Stuart Wedell, Fargo, N.D.; Corry Rudnicki, Holdingford; Jack Berg, Hankinson, N.D., and Peter Johnson, Thief River Falls. Sophomore Dan Lugert, Mantador, N.D., served as president of the NDSU branch. The group is advised by Les Backer, associate professor and Tom Bon, senior lecturer, agricultural and biosystems engineering.

The NDSU branch has taken first place nine times and has been first runner-up four times in the last 13 years.

EMI, the major trade association for manufacturers of agricultural, industrial, and construction equipment in North America, sponsors the competition. The agricultural equipment manufacturing industry's trade association has recognized outstanding student engineering achievement by presenting the award at ASAE's annual international meeting since 1935.

Governor Ventura designates Sept. as Food Safety Education Month

Food-borne illness affects thousands of Minnesotans each year, but helping people understand the factors that cause it can significantly reduce that number. That's why Governor Ventura has designated September as Food Safety Education Month in Minnesota.

Food Safety Education Month is a national effort promoted by federal, state and local food safety agencies and the food industry. Its purpose is to reinforce food safety education and training among restaurant and grocery store workers and to educate the public on how to prepare food safely at home.

Governor Ventura said Food Safety Education Month is a good opportunity to show that Minnesota is a leader in food safety education.

"The more we spread the message of the importance of food safety, the healthier our state will be," said Governor Ventura. "Handling and preparing food in a safe manner is important to the life of every Minnesotan."

As part of Food Safety Education Month, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture, along with its inspection delegates, and the Minnesota Department of Health will be actively involved to help spread the food safety message.

Throughout September, the MDA's food inspectors and other food officials will periodically set up in a number of grocery stores across Minnesota to visit with consumers and answer any questions they may be related to food safety. In addition, consumers and the food industry can catch the latest food safety information on the MDA's Food Safety website at http://www.mda.state.mn.us/foodsafe.htm. The website offers a variety of downloadable educational materials for teachers and consumers and links to other useful food safety websites.

MDA Commissioner Gene Hugoson encourages educators to help their students log on to the Food Safety website year-round because it's a great way to help children learn about food safety.

"Children often help prepare meals," Commissioner Hugoson said. "At their homes or in their schools, kids can tap into useful food safety resources and learn the importance of food safety at an early age."

For more information about Food Safety Education Month, log on to the above website or call the MDA's Food Safety Information Line at 651-296-1592.

Conrad to present new documentary on Korean War

United States Senator Kent Conrad will be at the North Dakota State University on Thursday, August 30 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. in Fargo to present a new documentary titled "Korean War Stories."

Narrated by Walter Cronkite and underwritten by the Disabled American Veterans (DAV), the PBS documentary features interviews with Korean War veterans, including former astronauts Buzz Aldrin and John Glenn and baseball great Ted Williams, along with many others who served in the conflict.

The documentary contains never-before-seen still photos provided by men and women who served in the war. In fantastic detail, the film presents the sacrifices of Korean veterans and demonstrates how their efforts helped stabilize the region and the world during a tense and volatile period of the Cold War.

Kent Conrad will be holding his presentation at North Dakota State University Medical Education Center's auditorium located on the south grounds of the Veterans Assistance Medical Center in Fargo.

Eagles Club to host blood drive Sept. 5

Shorter days and cooler temperatures signify not only the coming of winter, but also a need for blood donors.

The need for blood increases during the fall months. Farmers, resort owners and other people who are unable to take time off during the summer for elective surgeries often choose the fall and winter months for their stay in the hospital.

By giving blood, a donor helps replenish a community resource used by a neighbor, relative or friend. The donation assists in providing tomorrow's patient with the same recovery opportunity that was made available to today's patient. This gesture helps assure proper quantities of blood will be available on a hospital's shelf at the time of need.

The unselfish act of significant numbers of people donating on a regular basis is the only way any blood center can maintain adequate blood supplies over an extended period of time. If everyone waited for an emergency or crisis before donating, lives could be jeopardized. Waiting for emergencies to donate is what creates insufficient amounts to meet all the needs.

Thief River Falls' next drive, sponsored by Eagles Club will be held on Wednesday, September 5, from noon to 6 p.m. at the Eagles Hall. To schedule an appointment, contact Sandy, the blood drive coordinator at 681-2406.

WIC Program will be held in September

The Women, Infants, and Children's Supplemental Nutrition Education Program (WIC) will be held the month of September.

Infants and children up to the age of five and women who are pregnant or breastfeeding may be eligible for the program. We are very interested in enrolling pregnant women in the program. We feel that the prenatal nutrition is a vital part of producing a healthy baby; therefore, it is important to apply for WIC early in your pregnancy. WIC needs no proof of pregnancy.

All potential clients must write or call the WIC Program and complete an application.

The following is the schedule of WIC Clinics for the month of September.

WIC Clinics will be held at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls on September 7, 10, 20 and 21.

Immunizations are given by the county nurses. Please contact Inter-County Nursing Service in Thief River Falls at 681-5950 for appointment times.

For further information concerning the WIC Program, call or write to WIC-Quin County, P.O. Box 190, Red Lake Falls, MN 56750 or 1-800-223-1591.

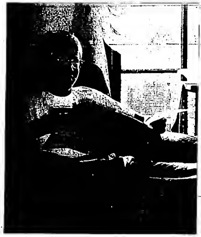
Fifteen-year-old Matt Langland volunteers time at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village in Thief River Falls



Fifteen-year-old Matt Langland is right at home among the artifacts at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village. Matt has worked at the Village for the past four years with increasing responsibilities and duties each year. Currently, he serves as a volunteer Monday through Friday and is paid for opening and closing the Village and taking charge on Saturdays.

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

Rare is a 15-year-old child who will admit that sometimes dad and mom are right.

However, Matt Langland is a young man who will tell you that his mom and dad knew what they were doing when they encouraged him to volunteer some of his time at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village.

Actually, Matt says, "They made me do it!" when talking about how he came to work at the Village four years ago.

The story began when Interim Director Caryl Bugge called Dr Jim and Dr. Penny Langland for a donation they had made to the Pennington County Historical Society. When it was revealed that then 11-year-old Matt was the family's "biggest fan" of Pioneer Village, the light bulb in Caryl's head lit up, and she asked if Matt might be interested in being in charge of opening the Village each day.

Living near the Village on Oakland Park Road, Jim and Penny thought the responsibility would be good for their son, but he thought differently and bucked the idea at first. "I didn't think I could do it," Matt says.

Matt is visually impaired due to his premature birth. While he's at a loss to compare his impaired vision to that of a sighted person, he explains that he cannot see with his left eye and has limited vision in his right eye.

With regard to Caryl's request, Jim and Penny persevered, and now, Matt will not only admit they were right, but says, "I'm glad they did (make me do it)."

During the four summers he's worked at the Village, Matt has become a valued member of the staff and has been given the title "Youth Curator." His duties are many and varied.

In addition to opening and closing the facility, Matt enjoys finding places for the artifacts that people bring in. His fondness for old things was evident as he showed an old telephone that was recently brought in. "I think this is really neat," he said.

Caryl Bugge, who has also been at the Village for four years as its interim director, says Matt has left a special "footprint" in the cabins and house at Pioneer Village.

When Caryl and Matt began working there, the buildings were bare except for a few simple furnishings.

Thanks to Matt, however, all that has changed, and the cabins and house appear to be lived in with stocked cupboards and dishes on the tables, shoes in the closets and sometimes under the beds, and clothes hanging on hooks. "Things need to be 'thrown around,'" Matt says, "to make it look like people really live there."

Matt is also insistent that many of the artifacts be available for people to touch, something he says is uncommon in facilities like Pioneer Village. However, because of his own impaired vision, it's necessary that he touch things and believes that others should be able to do so also. He doesn't believe in roping areas off either. "Real peoples' homes don't include roped off areas," he says.

While the really valuable items at the Village have been placed under glass, many artifacts are available for people to pick up and examine. Still, thefts have been nearly nonexistent with only two items taken in four years, and Matt says, "People are pretty good." However, Caryl says he did check the silverware every day for several days after the table was set in the Hendrickson House.

Matt also enjoys accompanying Caryl and caretaker Dave Race on their trips to abandoned buildings in search of artifacts.

This year's treasure hunts have taken them to several locations, including an old house on 8th Street where they found a railing for the Hendrickson house and some old light fixtures and dishes.

At The Club, they retrieved a pickup load of items, including a mounted Elk head from the poolroom, some firehouse Windsor chairs, pool cues and other artifacts. So excited were they about their finds, they forgot the sign that was the reason for their mission.

The artifact-finding excursions are always at the invitation of the building's owner as was the case when they recently scoured an abandoned shop on North Main Avenue. In the building that housed the former Mosely Sign Company, a treasure trove of old signs were discovered, enough to make an impressive display in the Great Northern Depot at the Village.

Matt's opinion as where to put the new display was taken into consideration as are all of his opinions and ideas, Caryl says.

While he volunteers his services Monday through Friday, Matt is paid for Saturdays when he assumes Caryl's duties and is in charge. This responsibility is new this year, and while he says he doesn't need the money he earns, he admits that it feels good to get paid. Currently, his earnings are going into his savings account, and he says he will probably donate them back to the Village one day. "This place needs the money," he says.

Matt also wrote an article on historic homes in Thief River Falls for one of last year's editions of the historical society newsletter. Prior to writing the story, he and Caryl called the current inhabitants, visited six houses and tape recorded their interviews with the homeowners.

Pioneer Day is one of the many Village activities Matt helps with, and this year, he showed and demonstrated items in his personal antique collection. Among his possessions are an old tie press, a coin changer that would have been used on a bus or trolley car, an early electric toaster, a baby rattle that features a mother of pearl rattler and sterling silver handle, and a set of salt and pepper shakers shaped like pieces of bread and housed in a miniature toaster. The collection, he says, began when he was 10 years old and received several items as gifts after displaying a penchant for old things.

When representatives from the Minnesota Historical Society visited the Village on July 17, Matt conducted approximately half the tour, something Caryl says he does frequently when her voice gives out. Matt also took advantage of the opportunity to ask the state people about their jobs. Their descriptions of their office jobs, however, didn't particularly appeal to the energetic, hands-on young man.

With regard to how many visitors the Village has entertained this summer, Matt can rattle off a host of statistics. As of August 13, 519 nonmembers had signed the guest register at Pioneer Village, including 121 Thief River Falls residents, 166 Minnesota residents who do not reside in Thief River Falls and 232 visitors from 25 other states and four foreign countries.

As of August 15, the Pennington County Historical Society had 288 memberships, including 220 from Thief River Falls, 37 Minnesota residents outside of Thief River Falls and 31 from 19 other states.

While folks who visit the Village can offer a variety of reasons for stopping there, Matt had the opportunity to witness a very special reunion of sorts recently.

While in town to attend the funeral of her sister, Dorothy Johnson, Ardith Jansen Jensen visited the Village where her childhood home is located. From 1916 to 1941, Ardith and her family lived in the upstairs apartment of the Viking Depot during the time that her father was the station master in Viking. Matt watched as Ardith and her husband danced in the living room to music played on an old Victrola and kissed in the doorway just as they had so many years ago.

As much as Pioneer Village is about the past, the future is always a consideration especially with regard to the preservation of its buildings. That's why Caryl, Matt and other Village staff are excited about the recent gifts which will secure the future of the Hendrickson house.

A recent $11,000 grant from the Hartz Foundation and contribution from Phil and Sharline Hess have enabled them to contract workers to reshingle the house and give it a much needed coat of paint. Caryl refers to Asphult Church as the "cornerstone" of the Village, and she seeks to make the Hendrickson house its "jewel." The work is scheduled to be completed yet this year, and the color selected for the "jewel" remains top secret.

In the meantime, Matt will be returning to school as a freshman at Lincoln High School. It's no surprise that social studies is his favorite subject, particularly history. While he says he could always tolerate a few more weeks of summer, he is usually ready to return to school by Labor Day weekend.

As Matt begins his high school career, his brother, Mike, will begin his post-secondary education at the University of Minnesota. Because Mike was so busy and away so much of the time, Matt doubts that he'll miss his big brother much and says he will enjoy his stint as an only child. "Besides," Matt says in typical teenage fashion, "he bugs me sometimes!"

While he says he doesn't know what he wants to do after high school, Caryl has notions that he'll attend college, study history and return to Thief River Falls, taking her place as the director at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village.

As Matt decides what his future holds for him, he'll continue to grow up at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village where his ideas and opinions are influential.

The Pennington County Historical Society is lucky to have him. While a teenager who will admit that the adults are sometimes right is rare, so is one who embraces history with such fervor and is willing to donate so much of his time to helping others.

Staff development plan in place for upcoming school year

• TRF teachers implement TALL training

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

While the summer months are generally thought of as time off for educators and school staff members, such is not always the case.

Lincoln High School ag educator ADawn Melbye and Carol Ihle, curriculum coordinator for the district, have spent much of the summer working together to create a manual that outlines the staff development plan for School District 564.

Melbye and Ihle presented the manual and information about the staff development plan for the district to members of the board of education at their August 13 meeting.

Earlier in the year, ADawn and two other Thief River Falls teachers, Sharon Baron and Jane Miller, joined more than 500 teachers from across the state in training for the Teachers as Learners and Leaders (TALL) project.

The project was funded by an $800,000 grant from the Legislature and Minnesota Department of Children Families and Learning to help teachers improve student learning by supporting them in implementing Minnesota's graduation standards and other professional issues.

In short, the purpose of the training is to assure that the funds earmarked for staff development in each district are used effectively. Melbye told the board of education that while the Thief River Falls district has always been on target with regard to its use of staff development funds, other districts have experienced problems. Thus, the creation of the TALL project.

In the manual, Melbye and Ihle defined staff development as "any program or activity designed to influence the professional knowledge, skills and attitudes of educational personnel to enhance student learning and achievement."

According to current law, a district must reserve two percent of its basic revenue for staff development. In School District 564, this amounts to approximately $200,000. Of this amount, 25 percent is designated for district wide activities associated with the district staff development committee, 50 percent is allocated to the individual district sites and the remaining 25 percent is earmarked for best practice grants.

The staff development funds are available to all school district employees as long as the proposed activity correlates with improving student achievement.

Examples of appropriate use for staff development funds includes committee work and after contract hours spent on staff development activities and curriculum planning, relevant workshops and conferences, peer mentoring, Graduation Rule implementation and technology training.

The primary role of the staff development committee is to coordinate activities. Its members include teachers representing each school, the curriculum coordinator, a principal representative, school board representative, parent representative and various other support staff members.

In addition to Melbye, who is chairing the committee, and Ihle, current members include Deb Fulton, Scott Brekke, Regina Olson, Jean Larson, Jodi Bergman, Gary Landley, Marcy Mickelson, Peter Solem, Arlette Defreece, Peggy Seed, Tim Magnusson, Diane Peterson, Elaine Grovum, Joyce Froschheiser, Diane Johnson, Darla Prickett, Gerry Stocks and Judy Lindquist.

In addition to the district staff development committee, each of the sites has its own committee which reviews and approves individual staff development requests at the site level as well as performing a number of other functions.

Best practice grants allow for district staff and faculty members to investigate, learn and implement research-based practices that will increase student learning and achievement. Applications for the grants are submitted to and approved by the district staff development committee.

The board of education expressed its appreciation to Melbye and Ihle for their work on the manual which will help insure that the staff development dollars in School District 564 continue to be put to the best possible use, enhancing student learning and promoting student achievement.

Health claims on the Internet: buyer beware

A former healthcare practitioner from Seattle had several reasons for complaining to the Arizona Attorney General about a Web site touting an AIDS cure. He knew that the claim was bogus: scientists have yet to discover a cure for AIDS. And he knew that the $1,100 charge for a six-week "treatment" to cure the disease was tantamount to stealing. But the clincher was the claim that the product was "100 percent guaranteed."

The man, who asked that his name not be used, said the guarantee could lead people who used the product to think they had been cured when they hadn't, a fact that could cause them to put others at risk for HIV infection.

False promotions like this have the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) concerned, too.

"These bogus claims put consumers' health at risk," Howard Beales, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said. "And with millions of Americans going to the Internet for health information, it's doubly troubling."

In recent years, the FTC and other law enforcement agencies have stepped up efforts to prevent the proliferation of false health claims on the Internet, using the latest technology to track down fraudulent marketers quickly and efficiently and bringing enforcement actions when appropriate. But Internet health scams are still too common, so the FTC is also educating consumers on how to shop safely online for health products and encouraging them to talk to their doctor or other healthcare provider about the safe use of supplements and other alternative health products. They're also encouraging the public to report suspicious health claims to government fraud fighters.

The complaint the Seattle man filed, for example, prompted the Arizona Attorney General to charge a local marketer with peddling a bogus AIDS treatment. The claims were removed from the Web site.

The lure of the Internet

The Internet offers health product hucksters low-cost access to a huge market. A recent study found that more than 90 million Americans use the Internet to find health-related information.

Online marketers – legitimate as well as fraudulent – market their products through Web sites, spam and chat rooms. The cost is reasonable.

"A marketer can design and post a Web site for a lot less money than it takes to buy ad space in traditional media," FTC senior attorney Richard Cleland said.

Marketers also place misleading metatags on their Internet sites to increase the likelihood that their product will turn up on search engines. This is among the charges the FTC brought against an Internet marketer of a shark cartilage product promoted as a cancer treatment without adequate substantiation. The FTC charged that the marketer had embedded the terms "non-toxic cancer therapy," "cancer treatment" and "cancer survivor" in the site's metatags to improve the chances of online users seeing the Web site.

Cure-all claims

Whether made on- or offline, fraudulent health claims typically deal with serious diseases, such as AIDS, cancer, heart disease, multiple sclerosis, diabetes and arthritis, as well as chronic medical conditions like headaches and back pain.

"A health fraudster's stock technique is to exaggerate the science," Cleland said. "Legitimate marketers know they need appropriate substantiation to show that a product will do what it claims."

Win-E-Mac welcomes a new principal

Recently hired and anxious to start the job, Kevin McKeever will begin his tenure at Win-E-Mac as the new K-12 principal on August 3.

McKeever grew up and graduated from Middle River High School in the early eighties. He then attended Northland Community College for two years and graduated from Mayville State University in 1988 with a certificate in math education. McKeever's first teaching job was in Glenburn, N.D., where he also coached football and basketball.

He spent four years in Glenburn before moving to Grafton to also teach senior high math and to coach football and basketball. He stayed with Grafton High School for two years.

In 1999 McKeever earned is Masters degree from the Tri-College in Fargo/Moorhead. After receiving his Masters, he took the superintendent/K-12 principal position in Badger-Greenbush, where he has been until accepting the Win-E-Mac position.

"I have now seen the education system from both sides, and I understand where people are coming from on issues. I enjoy the administrative area because there is a little more freedom to choose and prioritize my own agenda. I see more facets of education through administration, as opposed to one subject and one classroom as a math teacher," said McKeever.

Eleven years ago, he married Bernice (Jenson), and they have three children–Marshall, age six; Madison, age three; and Mariah, eight months old. Bernice is originally from Erskine, and she is employed by Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls as a special education teacher. The McKeevers are now living in Erskine.

"We think it is very important for an administrator to be living in the community in which he serves because he should be available when needed. I also think it's important to attend the events in which the students are participating. It's part of the administrative process," said McKeever.

He intends to slide into the job slowly, observe carefully, and see how processes are being handled before evaluating their successes. He doesn't intend to make any wholesale changes or recommendations, but look for strengths in the system, which appear to be many.

"Win-E-Mac has a good reputation, and it is growing when other small schools are looking at cuts. Bernice and I feel we really have come home. We like this area; the people and the lakes. We pinpointed this area as a good place to settle, and we're happy that things have worked out so well," said McKeever.

Norwegian worship service to be held in Erskine

On Sunday, August 26 at 10:30 a.m. the annual Norwegian language services at Rodnes Lutheran Church in Erskine will feature Scandinavian music and a traditional Norwegian church worship service followed by a meatball dinner served by the Rodnes WELCA.

Reverend Steve Trandem of Dilworth will conduct the liturgy and deliver the sermon. Melford Roragen of Fertile will serve as a soloist and "klokker." Grace Lee of Fosston will also sing several traditional Norwegian songs. Beatrice Severson Hole of Eden Prairie will play her Psalmodikon (an old Norwegian stringed instrument used in church services dating back to the 1880s). Pat Dorr, Rayome Koehler, and the Rodnes Church musicians will provide organ and piano music for the services.

Reverend Steve Trandem has strong ties to the Rodnes Church being the great grandson of Rodnes charter members (1885) Andreas and Karen (Hagen) Trandem and John and Ingeborg (Dahlberg) Ramberg. His paternal grandparents were John and Ida Trandem of Woodside. He is the son of Leon and Edie Trandem of Erskine.

Trandem received his B.A. degree with a Norwegian major from the University of North Dakota (UND). He also worked at the Pioneer Home in Erskine and at Garden Valley. Upon his graduation from the Wartburg Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa, he went on to serve as a pastor in Hawley.

The Rodnes Church is located southwest of Erskine on County Road 210.

Following the services a dinner will be served by the Rodnes WELCA in the usual Rodnes style. The dinner, which is of a freewill nature, has the promise of matching funds from the East Polk County branch of Lutheran Brotherhood 8734.

The USA Education, Inc. and USA Funds Scholarship Program will award $1.5 million in 2001, benefiting 1,000 deserving students nationwide. Scholarship recipients were chosen from more than 6,000 applications from qualified students planning to enroll or currently enrolled in a full-time undergraduate or graduate program at an accredited two- or four-year college, university or vocational/technical school.

If student recipients maintain a minimum grade-point average of 2.5, the scholarships may be renewed annually for up to three years or until the student receives a degree or certificate, whichever comes first.

Beginning in 2002-2003, USA Funds will triple its funding to create the new USA Funds Scholarship Program, which will award up to $3 million in new, need-based scholarships to help more low-income students attend college.

For more information on the USA Education, Inc. and USA Funds Scholarship Program or to view a list of this year's scholarship recipients, visit www.wiredscholar.com or www.usafunds.org.

Horse Liniment Eases Arthritis Pain

OCALA, FL–An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain.

ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. ©2000 PGC

In Loving Memory Of
Carl Arvesen
March 27, 1911 August 10, 2001

Prayer of St. Francis of Assisi
Lord, make me an instrument of Your peace
Where there is hatred, let me sow love where there is injury, pardon where there is doubt, faith where there is despair, hope where there is darkness, light where there is sadness, joy
Grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console, to be understood as to understand,
to be loved as to love.
For it is in giving that We receive, it is in pardoning that we are pardoned, and it is in dying that We are born to eternal life

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: Do women usually receive Social Security retirement benefits from their own earnings or through their husbands?

A: This varies very widely because each individual and each couple is different. Someone eligible for retirement benefits from their own work, for example, a lady who has enough earnings on her own record, will always receive retirement from their own record first. Benefits from any other record, such as from a husband's record, are paid afterward. Keep in mind that SSA benefits are computed the same for both men and women. For any given couple it is potentially possible for SSA retirement to be paid to each member just on their own record, for one member to receive on both records, or for one to receive just as a spouse depending on the individual work records involved. Within this framework it has certainly been true historically that women were more likely to have a smaller benefit based on their own record of earnings because they were paid less and were more likely to be out of the job market for years to raise a family. This made it more likely that a wife would be eligible for benefits on the husband's record. This is now changing. The proportion of women aged 62 or older and receiving SSA retirement only through the husband's record has declined from 57 percent in 1960 to 34 percent in 2000. At the same time the proportion of women being paid through their own earnings plus those of the husband has increased from five percent in 1960 to 28 percent in 2000.

Q: How many people pay the maximum Social Security tax possible because of high earnings?

A: For gross wages or net income from self-employment, SSA taxes cease after a certain amount of earnings in any given year. For example, in 2001 earnings over $80,400 are no longer taxed for Social Security purposes. This level was $76,200 in the year 2000. Of the 153 million workers with SSA taxable earnings in 2000, six percent had earnings that equaled or exceeded the amount subject to taxes.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES
Thumbprint Animals

Children are always interested in their own body parts and especially their fingers. This activity will use these basic interests and produce fun for both the child and the adult.

Use an ink stamp pad to take the print. Carefully put it on a sheet of paper. The next step is to use a crayon, or sharp marker, and add legs, eyes, ears, horns or antennae. If you put two or three prints together, a wide variety of animals can be made.

A sample of the animals that can be made are a cat, dog, cow, deer, spider, caterpillar or horse. The only limitations are our own imaginations.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need small brown paper lunch bags, old newspapers, yarn or string and red and green paint.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

Calhoun, Mary. Blue-Ribbon Henry. Henry shows that he's got what it takes to win first place at the fair when a little girl gets lost and only this high-stepping, hind-leg-walking hero can find the child and lead her safely back to her mother.

MacDonald, Suse. Elephants on Board. Hooray! All the animals are off to the circus when, uh-oh!, a flat tire! No problem! Surely one of the big trucks will get them to the circus on time . . . or maybe not!

VIDEO VARIETY

Mighty Construction Machines. Bulldozers, scrapers, motor graders, excavators . . . tons of mighty machines on actual construction sites introduced by the operators themselves.

PARENTING TIPS
Questions vs. Commands

Often parents will ask their child a question such as, "Would you like to go to the store now?" or "Do you want to go to bed?" when they really mean to give a command such as "It is time to go to the store" or "It is time to go to bed." Young children, however, take the questions literally and will probably answer, "No."

To avoid confusing the child, make your expectations clear. Give an order if you want him to do something. Ask a "yes or no" question only if you are willing to accept either answer.

If you "goof up" and ask your child a question when you meant to give a command and your child says, "No," the best procedure is to respond, "Okay, then we will go in five minutes. I will set the timer so you will know when." Then when the timer rings, rephrase the sentence to, "Now it is time to go to the store" or to bed or whatever.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When talking with your children, think about what you say and how you say it. Are you speaking clearly and in terms that your child can understand?

Settlement Stories

Imagine traveling across the uninhabited Red River Valley in the late 1700's, looking for a promising place to build a house, to trade some furs, to perhaps even some day establish a settlement. Waterways provided your primary means of transport. Waterways also provided your most reliable source of furs and food. The confluence of two rivers was an especially advantageous location for trade and travel.

Imagine then the feelings of good fortune and promise that Jean Baptiste Cadotte, Jr. must have felt as he built his house at the strategic forks of the Red Lake and Clearwater Rivers in 1797, over 75 years before Pierre Bottineau founded Red Lake Falls at this site, with his own visions of water powered flour and saw mills to support French-Canadian settlers coming in from Ramsey and Hennepin counties.

Today, Sportsmen's Park, on the southwest edge of Red Lake Falls is located at this historic site. This will be the site of AFRAN's Chautauqua and French Festival on Saturday and Sunday, August 25 and 26. This year's festival had to be moved from its normal venue at historic Old Crossing Treaty (Huot) Park due to this spring's flood damage at Huot Park. The Sportsmen's Park location is especially appropriate for one of this year's performances by Theresa Schenck who will be portraying Jeanette Piquette Cadotte (6:30 p.m. Saturday evening) a native woman who lived with her husband, Jean Baptiste Cadotte, Jr. briefly at the forks of these two rivers.

Earlier in the afternoon, at 1:30 p.m., Theresa Schenck will share other historical facts she has gleaned from her research of the Hudson's Bay archives and many other journals and accounts of these lively times. Learn how she has conducted her research and enjoy the stories she has to share about the powerful influences of foreign governments and fur companies and the reality of survival for the people native to and settling this often harsh and inhospitable land.

The history and settlement of northwest Minnesota is a fascinating story of living with and from its land and waters. Red Lake County residents are to be commended for developing a wealth of historical information about Red Lake County that can be found at the following web site: www.harper.cc.il.us/mhealy/tour/tour.htm. Clicking on the Cadotte Trading Post Site will bring up an informative article by Virgil Benoit about the beginnings of Red Lake Falls and Red Lake County.

It is interesting to note in this article mention of Jean Baptiste Cadotte, Sr. and his English fur trading partner Alexander Henry bringing down from Fond du Lac fifteen hundred pounds of beaver in addition to otter and marten at the inception of their Northwest Fur Company in 1766. But by the end of the 18th century when Cadotte, Jr. resided at the present day site of Red Lake Falls, the supply of fur-bearing animals was all but depleted in the Rainy River area to the east.

The article goes on to note that to the north the first settlers brought in by Lord Selkirk in 1812 to establish Selkirk Colony were mainly Scots, with cultivation of land being their trademark – a marked departure from the nomadic hunting and trapping traditions heretofore known in these parts. But agriculture struggled to gain prominence as fur trading continued with ox cart caravans organized by Joe Rolette in the 1840's, diverting trade from Hudson's Bay Company to growing St. Paul.

The Chautauqua festival celebrates the remarkable history of this era. In addition to the portrayal of Jeanette Piquette Cadotte, Michael Bailey of the Pembina Museum will present an educational demonstration on fur traders on Saturday afternoon. Sunday's program will feature more stories, music, anecdotes by Jim dale Huot-Vickery and an evening (6:30) program featuring famous aviator Charles Lindberg as portrayed by Dave Girtz.

AFRAN, the Association of the French of the North, based in Red Lake Falls, continues the fine tradition of this annual festival with a variety of music, crafts, food, culture, and stories which honor and pay tribute to native people and settlers of this region. Come and learn a bit about the historical settlement and culture of a part of northwest Minnesota. Come and enjoy a few stories.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

The more clubs and organizations lose their vitality, the more likely they are to conjure up awards for their own members, or whoever else will show up to accept one.

Plaques by the dozen, certificates of achievement, of appreciation, of merit, of recognition—the copy machine runs them off until it overheats. The local newspaper dutifully prints pictures of the smiling recipients of the Very Best Person of the Year award shaking hands with the Grand Poobah.

Everybody seems to think it is rude not to accept an award. And most people enjoy a little notoriety whether it is earned or not. So, nobody ever questions this whole silly awards process. It goes on and on, and the honors multiply faster than tent worms in May.

It begins early. What student can make it through high school without being pelted with awards? I recall getting certificates from clubs I didn't remember joining. In college, I served as vice-president of some society which never met and accomplished nothing whatsoever, but when my term ended I got a nice pin for all of my dedicated hard work. Of course I reveled in the attention.

At the risk of never winning another award, I make the following impolitic suggestion: Isn't it the height of arrogance to hand out awards and expect people to be grateful to receive them?

Most people enjoy getting awards enough to ignore the fact that the organization which gives the award is actually congratulating itself more than anything. Yes, the grand exalted committee on the granting of awards holds it in their power to decide who will be declared the Very Best Person of the Year.

When the Very Best Person of the Year bursts into tears at the podium, when the audience gives the Very Best Person of the Year a standing ovation, and when the picture of the handshake with the Grand Poobah is printed in the paper, the underlying message is: What a grand organization!

Lost in all of this is the sad fact that most organizations do little more than hand out awards. The awards banquet is the central event in their annual cycle. The people who decide the awards are merely poor saps who missed a meeting and were appointed against their will to the awards committee.

The awards scam is a conspiracy which benefits both parties, so it will go on. Occasionally, but very rarely, some crank with an overdeveloped sense of integrity will refuse to accept an award out of a sense that it wasn't earned, or out of a conviction that most organizations, which hand out plaques and pins, haven't earned the right to bestow such trinkets.

But human vanity loves to be massaged. The most useless organization can announce an award and even a cynical recipient will run out for a new tie, don his best suit, comb his hair and drive over to the awards banquet for a night of bad food and worse speeches by people for whom he wouldn't cross the street if they weren't holding a plaque with his name on it.

...So We Just Sit and Watch?

What happened to "Family Time" on television? Last I heard, the television industry was going to police itself and allow the time between 6 and 9 p.m. to be family time. They were going to cut down on violence, vulgar language and sex during this time.

Daytime television was supposed to be safe viewing for children - but not all of daytime TV is okay for the kiddies to watch. Does anyone have time to watch the soaps? If they are safe viewing for children, we are in big trouble. It isn't safe to allow preschoolers to watch them and it isn't safe to allow your older children who might be home sick from school to watch either. Seems rather ironic to call them soaps, when what they need, themselves, is a good cleansing with some strong soap.

What has happened is that there has been no policing at all, but, instead, just more and more violence, profanity and sex on television during all hours of the day and night. If this is cutting down on smut, I'll eat my shirt. It has gotten worse and worse until many people say there are very few programs that are enjoyable any more.

It seems as if there is so much effort being put into which program can squeeze in the most shocking junk that the networks have forgotten that programs should have some sort of story besides who is bedding whom, how many obscene words they can use to describe everything, how much killing can be packed into the show with the most blood and gore, and just how far they can go with the sexually explicit scenes. Frankly, I think the programs are boring. There are no stories any more.

Remember when there used to be ratings for television programs like there are for movies? X ratings were really bad, and PG 13 meant children should be older than 13 to watch them. In the olden days the Catholic Church used to rate some movies "C" for "Condemned," and isn't that an appropriate word? I wish they were rating television shows now as well as movies. Try watching some of the popular shows on television for a week or two and give them a rating.

Remember some of the good shows that used to be on during prime viewing time? They were funny and they told a real story in a half an hour, usually one with a beginning dilemma, a middle crisis, and a happy ending (no sex, no violence, no swearing). Sometimes they were serious shows, where people had problems and solved them in a sensible manner. They didn't shoot one another; they didn't sleep with one another unless they were married to each other (and even then in a most unobtrusive manner); and they didn't use language that made a person want to cover their ears. They were just everyday people with everyday problems, and they were shows we enjoyed watching.

If there were gay people on these shows, we didn't know it. They stayed in the closet, which was a good thing. I think there are lots of people, gay and straight, who should be in the closet on the shows nowadays. What with the way people are dressing, they might just as well either stay in bed under the covers or hide in the closet.

It seems like anything goes now. There used to be words that were never heard in public. Now there is no limit on the language that can be used. It has gotten worse and worse until it doesn't matter what expletive is said. How can people tell their children not to use such words when they hear them on television every day at prime viewing time?

Actions speak louder than words, and what actions there are coming from our television sets! Anger and rage abound. The lesson is, if someone does something bad to you, do twice as bad back. Don't worry about others, just take care of Number One. Power is King and money is power, so make all you can, no matter how dishonest you have to be to do it. Honesty is weakness. Look at the government. Look at those who run the country. Learn all of this from what you see on the tube.

How can children be taught self-restraint and respect for themselves and others when they see what they see on television every day? An even more important question is, how can we get some family values back in our entertainment industry? Does anyone have any ideas?

Campaign against distracted driving announced

Last year in Minnesota, distracted driving was cited as the leading contributor in 16,000 motor vehicle crashes. Distracted driving activities were cited in 152 deaths, 15,729 personal injuries, and 23 percent of property damage crashes.

Nationwide, in 1998, there were 6.3 million reported traffic crashes, and according to highway safety experts, 25 percent to one-half of them were caused wholly, or in part, by distracted driving.

The Minnesota Department of Public Safety, Office of Traffic Safety will announce a statewide media campaign and Safe and Sober law enforcement wave designed to educate and inform the general public about the dangers of inattentive/distracted driving.

A press conference was held at St. Paul on Tuesday, August 21.

Minnesota State Patrol offers guidelines for wireless 911 calls

Cellular phone users who call 911 from lonely county roads or dark highways may find that wireless technology has left them stranded. Although the wireless telephone industry is working to comply with federal mandates for communicating with 911 centers, for now, it is up to callers to give their locations to operators.

"Cellular phones can be invaluable in emergency situations, but they must be used effectively," Lt. Col. Steve Mengelkoch of the Minnesota State Patrol said. "Many cell phone users who call 911 mistakenly believe the communications operator can pinpoint their location – as they can with calls from regular phones."

The Minnesota State Patrol answers most of the wireless 911 calls placed throughout the state. This amounted to approximately 806,928 calls in 2000. To help people understand the limitations, as well as the life-saving potential of wireless technology, the state patrol offers the following suggestions to people using cellular phones to report emergencies.

1. Know where you are. The 911 center that answers your wireless call may not be near your location. This is often the case in rural areas. Be able to provide the nearest town, last exit, intersection, mile marker or a major landmark.

2. When calling from a wilderness area, know the name of the trail or camping area you are using and your distance from a trailhead or parking area. Carry and know how to use a global positioning system (GPS) receiver.

3. If possible, call from a safe place, away from hazardous conditions and out of traffic.

4. Don't tie up 911 with accidental calls. Many wireless phones will speed dial 911 if one button is pressed. This feature, which can cause accidental 911 calls that tie up emergency phone lines and personnel, can be disabled on many wireless phone models.

5. When speaking with a 911 communications operator, remain calm and be prepared to provide a location and description of the incident, including injuries, hazardous conditions and other details. Follow the operator's instructions and don't hang up until instructed to do so.

"Callers who are prepared to give complete and accurate information save time and, sometimes, lives," Mengelkoch said. "We encourage everyone, regardless of what type of phone they are using, to help us respond quickly to emergency situations."

For more information regarding effective use of 911 services from a wireless phone, contact the Minnesota State Patrol.

Minn. State Patrol presents Award to Newfolden Trooper

On May 30, 1999, Trooper Rick Olson of Newfolden responded to a crash on Highway 32 in Roseau County. He arrived to find a local first responder assisting an elderly man who was unconscious and not breathing. Olson used a jaw thrust maneuver and inserted an airway, allowing the man to resume breathing and survive the crash.

The Minnesota State Patrol recognized Olson's actions with a Lifesaving Award at a ceremony today at the Royal Cliff in Egan. In addition to 13 Lifesaving Awards, the State Patrol also presented 11 Meritorious Citizenship Awards and honored other members of its ranks for their efforts to ensure a safe environment on Minnesota's roadways.

Report on recycling electronics demonstration project published

Minnesota Office of Environmental Assistance (OEA), in partnership with Sony Electronics, Waste Management-Asset Recovery Group, Panasonic and the American Plastics Council, has published a report on a joint demonstration project to collect and recycle used electronics. Recycling Used Electronics: Report on Minnesota's Demonstration Project details the objectives and results of this project.

"The increasing volume of old computers and televisions is a pressing issue for every state," said Sherry Enzler, director of the Minnesota Office of Environmental Assistance. "This project is a unique opportunity for industry and government to learn more about how to effectively recycle electronic products and not rely solely on government funding."

The project was designed to evaluate methods of collecting used electronics, explore economies of scale and learn more about recycling markets available for secondary materials.

Findings:

- Minimize the handling of used products to reduce costs to recycle these products.
- Adequate funding to assist local government efforts to recycle used products will encourage local government to participate in developing recycling and collection programs.
- Dedicated "electronics-only" collection events were more cost-effective and attracted more participants than collections held in association with other waste management or recycling activities.
- Retail drop-off of old products, as a collection strategy for used electronic products, was the single most successful strategy tested during the project, as a percent of total participants and as a cost per participant. Retail stores can provide an important link in the process of moving used electronic products from consumers back to the recycling supply chain.
- Roughly half of televisions collected during the project were manufactured in the 1960s and 1970s and may contain PCB capacitors.
- Plastics from the project were found to meet strict specification standards required for use in the manufacture of new products. To do so economically, large volumes of these plastics must be collected and processed to meet manufacturing production schedules that typically require a monthly minimum of 100,000 pounds.
- The OEA and partners found that strategic voluntary partnerships are an effective working model of shared product responsibility.

Based on the results of the project, the OEA and its partners recommend that product stewardship initiatives should be expanded to provide greater management options to consumers. Specific efforts to refine collection procedures, reduce transportation costs, spur recycling market development, improve processing technologies, reduce regulatory barriers, and educate the public will help product stewardship initiatives to succeed.

"This was a true partnership effort will all parties improving their understanding of what works, doesn't work and the costs involved," remarked Kevin McCarthy, municipal programs manager for Waste Management Asset Recovery Group. "The lessons learned from this project are helping us rollout more effective programs nationwide."

The joint effort was designed to implement key aspects of product stewardship. Product stewardship calls on manufacturers to take greater responsibility for reducing the environmental impacts of their products at every stage — from design and manufacturing through use and disposal. Minnesota is the first state in the country to develop a product stewardship policy, and helped lay the groundwork for a national initiative through developing partnerships and projects with electronics manufacturers and retailers over the last three years.

A 1999 study by the National Safety Council estimates that nearly 500 million computers will become obsolete between 1997 and 2006. Most old electronic products are either in storage, or are thrown in landfills rather than recycled. Electronic products with cathode ray tubes, such as televisions and computer monitors, contain lead and other heavy metals. These toxins are not a problem when we use our computers or TVs, but they can create health and environmental hazards if they are thrown away with other household garbage. Electronics also contain valuable glass, metals and plastics that can be used to make new products, rather than wasted.

Minnesota to receive $24.5 million federal education award

The State of Minnesota will receive a major national education award designed to help increase the reading skills of the state's children.

The $24.5 million grant under the federal Reading Excellence Act (REA), which was awarded to the state by the U.S. Department of Education, will be used to help Minnesota's children begin to develop reading skills before they enter grade school and, ultimately, to read proficiently by the end of the third grade. To help achieve these goals, the award will be used to fund professional development for educators, tutoring and after-school programs, family literacy efforts and transition programs for children.

"This is a significant award that will go a long way toward achieving our goal of helping every Minnesota child to not only read, but to read well and independently," said Governor Jesse Ventura. As part of its Big Plan, the Ventura Administration is committed to making Minnesota's the best K-12 system in the nation. One of the indicators by which we are measuring our success is the percentage of third graders who can read at grade level.

The granting of the award was the result of a combined effort by the Minnesota Department of Children, Families & Learning and the University of Minnesota. The two worked in concert to develop a program that would satisfy the award conditions of the U.S. Department of Education.

"Literacy issues are a priority for both the Department of Children, Families & Learning and the University of Minnesota.

This award is a testament to not only their commitment to improving education in Minnesota but working together and marshalling the resources necessary to develop quality, state-of-the-art programs to help achieve that priority," said Christine Jax, Minnesota's education commissioner.

Minnesota's highest need schools and districts will be eligible for grants that will be funded through the REA award. Highest need is determined by those schools in a district that serves the highest or second highest percentage of students eligible for free or reduced price lunches and those schools that have been identified by the state as needing improvement.

The grants will be used at the school level to develop skills among students to connect sounds to words in print, to decode unfamiliar words, to read fluently, to foster reading comprehension and to develop the motivation to become lifelong readers.

"The end result of the Reading Excellence Award will be a better educated and better prepared population of Minnesotans who will, in turn, be equipped to be lifelong learners and positive contributors to our society. The award will go a long way in complementing our continuing efforts to make Minnesota a great place to live and learn," said Jax.

Soybean pest spreading rapidly west and north across Minnesota

A soybean pest that first showed up in southeastern Minnesota is moving rapidly westward and northward across the state. Infestations of the soybean aphid are expanding and intensifying, according to entomologist Ken Ostlie of the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

The soybean aphid is an eastern Asian soybean pest that first showed up in southeastern Minnesota and eight other Midwestern states in the summer of 2000. It was detected in southeastern Minnesota earlier this summer and has spread rapidly into counties farther and farther west and north. In southeastern Minnesota counties where it first showed up, infestations are common and severe, says Ostlie.

Soybean yield losses from aphid infestations can be significant. "China has reported up to 58 percent yield losses," says Ostlie. "In a Wisconsin study in 2000 there was a 13 percent yield loss. The soybean aphid also spreads soybean mosaic and other viral diseases."

Ostlie says soybean producers have many questions about how to manage the pest and whether to treat infested fields with insecticides. "We're playing catch-up in trying to answer questions, because there isn't a lot of information available," he points out.

Ostlie says no stage-specific thresholds for insecticide use have been developed for row or drilled soybeans, but several hundred aphids per plant during reproductive stages are likely to damage soybeans. Neither the short- nor long-term impacts of insecticide application have been studied in the U.S. Insecticides may disrupt natural control of soybean aphids by predators and parasitic wasps, says Ostlie. This could lead to aphid resurgence.

"As a result of these uncertainties, farmers and their agricultural advisors find it difficult to decide whether or not to spray, especially with low soybean prices," says Ostlie.

If producers do decide to apply an insecticide, Ostlie recommends recording pre-treatment infestations levels, leaving check strips, and checking yields to evaluate the effectiveness of treatment.

Soybean aphids are pale yellow and less than one-sixteenth of an inch long. They are the only aphids that form colonies on soybeans.

Ostlie is the author of a new four-color flyer, "Soybean Aphids," that's available from county offices of the University of Minnesota Extension Service. It's also on the Internet at www.soybeans.umn.edu. The publication contains an enlarged color photo of an aphid, a graphic showing the life cycle of the aphid, and information on scouting for aphids, insecticide options and how aphids damage soybeans.

USDA to expand use of biodiesel fuel - for fleets and heating fuel

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) announced on August 7th that USDA agencies will use biodiesel fuel in their diesel fleet vehicles where practicable and reasonable in cost. Biodiesel is a cleaner burning alternative fuel that can be made by refining any natural oils, including soybean and other vegetable oils, animal fat and spent cooking oil.

"This new policy shows USDA's solid support for plant-based energy sources," said Ed Hegland, President of the Minnesota Soybean Growers Association. "It also underscores what we have been saying all along – that biodiesel is a viable alternative to diesel fuel. This announcement will help in our efforts here in Minnesota to incorporate two percent of biodiesel into the state's diesel fuel supply."

In making the announcement, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann Venemen acknowledged that agriculture could help solve the nation's energy problems through the production of domestic liquid fuels, such as biodiesel.

"Renewable energy," she said, "is good for energy independence, good for farmers, and good for the environment."

Regarding biodiesel, the Department will request coordination in the following areas:

1. All USDA diesel fuel storage tanks nationwide will be filled with blends of 20 percent (B20) or higher biodiesel fuel where practicable and reasonable in costs.

2. USDA's Henry A. Wallace Agricultural Research Center (Beltsville Center) in Beltsville, Md. has demonstrated the feasibility of soy-oil based biodiesel as a transportation and heating fuel and uses it in all 150 of its diesel vehicles--everything from tractors to snowplows over the past two years.

3. In addition, the Beltsville Center will heat all of its buildings with biodiesel fuel next winter, including the 14-story National Agricultural Library in Beltsville. The decision was made as a result of last winter's successful experiment with heating a dozen buildings.

USDA has about 140 diesel fuel tanks on its properties nationwide. The tanks serve about 800 vehicles, including some boats. They also provide fuel for numerous chain saws, generators and other diesel-powered equipment. Over the past two years the U.S. Forest Service has used biodiesel in fifteen assorted bulldozers, road graders, and trucks located at the Black Hills National Forest in South Dakota.

The Minnesota Soybean Growers Association is a non-profit, farmer-controlled membership organization established in 1962. Its goal is to assure profitable soybean farming by monitoring government policies and supporting research and market development activities.

UMC Center for Adult Learning to offer food service certification course

The University of Minnesota, Crookston's Center for Adult Learning will offer the ServSafe, Applied Foodservice Sanitation Certification course September 11, 13, and 18, 2001, to all area food service establishments, including daycare providers, restaurants, hospitals, schools, nursing homes, and convenient stores.

ServSafe is a food safety training program and certification course developed by the National Restaurant Association Education Foundation. This course is recommended for all food service personnel and has been accepted as an industry standard. Participants will learn:

- How to establish a HACCP-based sanitation program.
- The main types of contamination.
- The most common food borne diseases.
- How to build an effective personal hygiene system.
- How to purchase & receive safe food.
- What is needed for a sanitary food environment.
- The difference between cleaning & sanitizing.
- Accident prevention & action for emergencies.
- How to deal with sanitation regulations & standards.
- Appropriate storage procedures for the most common foods.

As part of the new Minnesota Food Code, the Minnesota Department of Health requires food manager certification for most of Minnesota's food establishments. Food service establishments that employ at least one full-time manager or supervisor must take a sanitation course and pass the certification exam. Completion of this course with a passing score on the Certification Exam meets the requirements of the Minnesota Food Code. In the past year, participants completing this course have a success rate of 99 percent on the ServSafe certification exam. The average class score was 90.

Completion of this course also qualifies for 8 clock hours of CEU's from the American Dietetic Association.

This three-part course will be held on Tues., Sept. 11, Thurs., Sept. 13, and Tues., Sept. 18, from 2-6 p.m. The Certification Exam will be given during the final class session. All courses in this session will be held in Hill Hall, Room 4, on the UMC campus. The course fee is $140.00 per person. This fee includes the textbook and testing fee. For more information and to register, you can contact Hilary Bertsch at (218) 281-8681 or hbertsch@mail.crk.umn.edu

37th annual Northland Steam Threshing Bee September 8 & 9

The 37th annual Northland Steam Threshing Bee will be held September 8 and 9 in section 10, Huss Township.

The admission is $2 per day, which includes a free souvenir button. Children under 12 are admitted free. The featured tractor company this year is John Deere. Anyone wishing to show off your tractor or equipment of any brand is welcome to do so. Please register for the parade at the Steam Engine.

New this year is an addition to the blacksmith shop which will house a wheelwright shop, a foundry, and a service station museum. Blacksmith Harry and his crew will be busy trying out some new toys. Also both afternoons, there will be a slow race for the tractors and a teeter-totter for some of the smaller tractors. The slow race is a race to see which tractor goes a certain distance the slowest. The operator is not allowed to use the brake or clutch to slow the tractor. The teeter-totter is to see how well the operator can balance his small tractor.

There will be plenty of food available for everyone. The Grass Lake and Green Acres 4-H clubs, Offda Tacos and Earl's Drive Inn will be serving both days and the Greenbush Lions Club will serve a pancake breakfast on Sunday morning. There will also be popcorn, ice cream and soft drinks for sale.

Saturday's program begins at 10:30 a.m. with flag raising and National Anthem followed by the parade at 11 a.m. Sunday will begin with the pancake breakfast from 7 to 9:30 a.m., flag raising and National Anthem at 9 a.m., church service at 9:30 a.m and parade at 11 a.m.

Both days, all displays and buildings are open and demonstrations will be performed. At the east end of the grounds, the steamer and tractors will power the threshing machines, corn husker-shredder, silage chopper, sawmill, lath mill, shingle mill, and post peeler. There are gas engine displays, and field work. Wheat and rye will be ground into flour.

At the west end of the grounds, there will be plowing with horses, pony rides, petting zoo and play area. The ladies in the demonstration building will show how household tasks were done in the old days – baking bread, sauerkraut, fry bread, weaving, spinning, quilting, etc. The country store will have baked goods, crafts, and souvenir items for sale.

Several restored buildings are on the grounds and visitors can look around them and perhaps remember when they used that item or went to school in a building like that. Music will be heard from the bandstand and there will be a flea market, as well.

The Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation (MAEF) recently named Brittany Larson, daughter of Mark and Jean Larson of Thief River Falls, as one of the 2001-2002 Governor's Scholars. Larson will be a senior this fall at Lincoln High School.

Seventy-five high school students from throughout Minnesota were selected to serve as Governor's Scholars. Selected Scholars recently completed the first part of the program, a Summer Institute held from July 29 through August 3 at Hamline University in St. Paul.

As part of the Summer Institute, Scholars attended a dinner held in their honor at the Governor's residence and hosted by Lt. Governor Mae Schunk. Each Scholar received a Certificate of Recognition from Lt. Governor Mae Schunk, who was joined in the presentations by officials from the MAEF Board of Directors including Vice Chair Virginia Clark, Wayzata Public Schools; member Judge Francis J. Connolly; and Tammy Pust from the Department of Children, Families, and Learning.

The Governor's Scholars program was initiated by MAEF in 1984 to help young people focus on problems and challenges and to implement positive change in their communities and in Minnesota. This year's case study problem focuses on one of the tenets of Governor Jesse Ventura's "Big Plan" – Strong and Healthy Communities. The curriculum for the Summer Institute addressed creating communities which value all people.

At the conclusion of the Summer Institute, each Scholar proposed a Leadership Project to be implemented beginning in September. During the Institute, Scholars learned to research their problem or challenge, to plan strategically and set outcomes, to engage community collaborators, to use Quality Tools for planning and organizing their project teams, and to develop a budget for their project. The Scholars will re-convene for a Winter Retreat to share their experiences and to report the progress and impact of their projects. Final Leadership Project reports will be due in June 2002.

MAEF implements the Governor's Scholars Program with support from the Office of Lt. Governor Schunk; the Department of Children, Families, and Learning; the Charlson Foundation; the Biem Foundation; the Mae Gossett Memorial Fund; IBM; and others.

The Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation was created in 1983 by the Minnesota Legislature and through partnerships with the private sector to be the primary advocate for the promotion and recognition of academic excellence in Minnesota students, schools, and communities.

For more information about MAEF, the Governor's Scholars Program or the Governor's Scholars Alumni Program, visit the MAEF website at www.maef.state.mn.us.

McCullough named super lawyer in MN

D. Patrick McCullough, a former resident of the Newfolden area currently residing in St. Paul, was recently named a Super Lawyer by Minnesota Law and Politics and Twin Cities Business Monthly for demonstrated excellence in his practice of the law. McCullough works with the McCullough Smith Wright Kempe law firm in St. Paul.

Fewer than six percent of the Minnesota legal community are chosen as Super Lawyers.

The Super Lawyer list is an annual guide put out by the two magazines to honor the best lawyers in the state. Keeping in mind the old adage that "it takes one to know one," the magazines send the legal community a questionnaire that allows lawyers themselves to pick their choices for the state's best lawyers. Using an elaborate rating system, only the cream of those nominated are eventually selected as super lawyers. What emerges is a list that serves as an excellent consumer guide.

the granting of the Waale's request would set precedent for future requests, which the City may be forced to grant if they submit to this request. Some Council members feel, however, that the request is a small one, and affects no one but the homeowners.

Council member Dave Carlson was among those that felt the variance should not be granted as a matter of principal, however, he said he would like to see the Waale's be able to build their porch.

"Common sense has got to enter into this somewhere," Council member, and supporter of the Waale request, Dale Wennberg said.

After nearly 30 minutes of discussion, a motion to deny the request was made by Council member Glen Kajewski and seconded by Council member Elvera Cullen. The motion failed, once again, by a four to four vote, which means the Waale's request will be granted by default.

Additional Agenda Items

City Council members approved several Administrative Services Committee recommendations. Among them was the recommendation to approve the Management, Administrative, Professional, and Supervisory Contract for 2001-2003, the approval of offering $2,755,000 in General Obligation/Refunding Bonds for sale, approval to offer the Hepatitis B vaccination to all City employees, and the charging off of NSF checks to the Bad Debts Expense in the Liquor Fund.

A Public Utilities Committee recommendation to approve the Teamsters Interoal Transfer process for the revised Electronic Technician position was also passed.

Beer in the Park

A request by Arctic Cat, Inc. for permission to have beer in the park at their summer picnic and a request by Corinna Voegele and Mike Carver for permission to have beer in the park for a wedding reception were also approved. The Voegele and Carver request was granted until 10 p.m. only, since the park closes at 11 p.m. and City officials want to make sure there is plenty of time for clean up after the reception.

Items for Information

On the list of "Items for Information," the council recently received a petition from Ward 5 residents in favor of spraying for tent caterpillar infestation in 2002. The City also received a Minnesota Lawful Gambling Application for Exemption Permits from St. Bernard's Church for bingo and a raffle. A Park and Recreation Committee meeting has also been tentatively scheduled for August 29 to review the proposed 2002 budget.

Thank Yous

In their final comments, City Council members expressed their thanks to city crews and community members for their hard work and good will during clean up after the recent storm.

Declaration, he said, is that it reduces questions regarding crop insurance. In other words, it makes it easier for farmers when questions come up about whether they should or shouldn't have harvested a crop, he explained.

Person said the declaration also could help in the future if the government comes out with a disaster program later. All of the paperwork and questions have been answered by the work done for the Secretarial Disaster Declaration.

Marshall, Kittson, Roseau and Polk counties already have received approval for a disaster declaration from the spring storms. Pennington county does qualify for aid because it is contiguous to the area.

There are two types of disaster declarations. One is a Presidential Disaster Declaration, which requires physical loss such as damage or loss to roads, bridges and buildings. Pennington county just didn't have the kind of losses that would qualify it for a Presidential Disaster Declaration, said Person. Red Lake county may qualify, he added.

Most of Pennington county's losses are attributable to excessive moisture and flooding, especially in the eastern part of the county. Person said, during one 10-day period for example, farmers in the area received five to six inches of rain, followed by another six inches of rain about seven days later. Ditches backed up and it left hay bales and crops standing in two feet of water. Person said in some areas, only the heads of wheat are poking out above the water.

Not all of the damage occurred as a result of the most recent storms. Person noted that approximately 25 percent of tillable land that would have been planted this spring, could not even be seeded this spring."

The Damage Assessment Report also lists livestock losses. Many of these losses occurred during the heat wave that hit the area in July. Person said some dairy farms experienced losses, but turkey growers in the area experienced a majority of the losses. The report estimates cattle losses at $80,000.

The Damage Assessment Report also deals with only two crops: wheat and soybeans. It states that approximately 33,000 acres were not planted in the county due to the disaster, that from a total of approximately 92,000 tillable acres. Person said that those wheat and soybeans make up about 80 percent of the crops in the county, so if other crops had been included in the report, losses could be higher.

The motion approved by the county commissioners is being submitted through channels.

FSA issues farm program updates

temporary storage. The elevator slips should say 'stored' and most of the warehousemen know how this works. Any grain that is under contract or that loses title as soon as it gets to a buyer will need to be covered by a CCC-709, filed at FSA before the process begins. The LDP availability period is the same as the commodity loan period, which is harvest through March 31 for small grains and canola, and May 31 for corn, soybeans, and sunflowers.

New LDP Form and Faxing

Except for the few producers who will use the CCC-709, all LDP requests must be made on the new CCC-633. Local grain elevators have been provided the new form and those producers with prior FSA written approval to fax in their requests, should make their first LDP request in person so that the new questions can be covered and they can pick up a clean copy. Many producers have chose to fax in their LDP requests because it generally gives them the evening hours, after the FSA office closes, to make their decisions. It would be a good idea to keep a printed transmittal record in case there ever was an equipment failure of the FSA fax machine.

Commodity Loans

Low-interest, nine-month commodity loans are available at the following, 2001 rates: Wheat - $2.74; Barley - $1.47; Oats - $1.14; Canola - $9.12/cwt; and Soybeans - $4.91. Loans are also available on most other crops. There were not very many loans taken last year because most producers took the LDP but with the lower LDP rates this year, we expect to see more loans. Producers who opt for the loan instead of an LDP can still take advantage of the LDP rates getting better later. This is accomplished by repaying the loan at the Posted County Price, as long as it is done before the loan matures. After maturity, the only options are repayment at principal plus interest or forfeiture (delivery) to CCC at an approved warehouse.

Cover Crop on Idle Acres

AMTA contract acres are required to have a cover crop established by September 10 at the latest, and preferably sooner. The percentage needing cover is different on each farm so the operator may need to check with the office. Crop insurance may also have requirements for prevented planting acres. These requirements are being reviewed by the State FSA committee on August 29, 2001 and if the rules change, the changes will be published immediately.

2000 Crop Quality Loss Progrom

Sign-up for the 2001 QLP is now underway. The deadline has not yet been announced. Producers who can provide verifiable evidence to FSA that their 2000 crop contained quality problems in excess of 20 percent may qualify for some payments. An example would be vomitoxin that caused the producer to get a reduced price. Documentation, test results, and other information will need to be provided by the producer.

Some guidelines that producers can use to determine if their 2000 crop would qualify are 'Wheat - damage in excess of four percent, Test Weight (TW) less than 53, falling numbers below 250; Barley - vomitoxin over .6, TW under 40, damage over 8.1; Corn - TW under 54 or damage over 5.1; Soybeans - TW under 53.5, splits over 21 or damage over 2.1.

FSA offices have just received the QLP rules and training, and more written information will be coming out soon.

Back to school and back to immunizations

New clothes, new shoes, book bags, pencils, color crayons and immunizations are all part of getting ready for back to school.

Immunizations are an important part of a child's life and getting ready for school. The vaccines promote wellness for all children and prevent disease.

The diseases that are prevented by vaccine are Diphtheria, Tetanus, Pertussis, Polio, Measles, Mumps, Rubella, Haemophilus B Influenza, Hepatitis B and Chicken Pox. Vaccines are known by their initials sometimes and this may be confusing, such as MMR for Measles, Mumps, and Rubella or OPV for Oral Polio Vaccine.

It is important that your child has these vaccines on the schedule recommended by the Minnesota Department of Health. Currently all seventh grade students should have a second MMR and Hepatitis B series to return to school this fall. For all incoming kindergarten students, they should have the last dose of DTaP, MMR, and IPV. Most children of this age will have five DTaP and four OPV or IPV. The exception to this is when the fourth dose of DTaP and third dose of OPV were given after the fourth birthday. Also this year, all kindergarten students will be required to have the Hepatitis B vaccine. If you have questions about the status of your child's immunizations, please feel free to call the Inter County Nursing Service in Pennington County at 681-0876 and in Red Lake County at 253-4378.

These vaccines are available at a reduced rate of $5 each at the county public health offices. No one will be turned away for lack of payment. The immunization clinics are held at various clinic sites throughout both Red Lake and Pennington counties each month.

Summer is a good time to get your child's immunizations up to date. If a fever should develop following an immunization, the child should be given a non aspirin product such as Tylenol. Use these products under the direction of your physician.

If you have any questions about the correct dosage, follow the weights listed rather than the age.

Sean Naison, 12, Viking, waits patiently for the fish to bite at this year's MinnAqua fishing clinic, held at Red Robe Park in Thief River Falls. The clinic included training in boat safety, fish identification, regulations and lake game. Many community members helped organize and run the clinic. Paul Johnson donated his pontoon for the free pontoon rides, Scheels Sports donated bait, and Deans Foods donated ice cream treats. The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, the Pennington County Sheriff's Department, the Thief River Falls Police Department, and the staff of the Department of Parks and Recreation also contributed to the success of the clinic.

Fish painting was not only fun, but educational, for kids participating in the MinnAqua fishing clinic this past Tuesday. Here Emily Habedank paints her own fish and learns about fish identification and other fishing topics.

service to attend the town meeting and join the discussion.

"Thief River Falls and the surrounding communities make up one of Minnesota's most rapidly growing regions and is home to companies like Digi-Key and Arctic Cat, which are dependent upon reliable mail service to continue their business development," Dayton said. "The economic vitality of Northwest Minnesota is dependent on quality mail service. I want to find out if there are problems for businesses, and citizens in the region related to the Postal Service's relocation of mail-sorting operations from Thief River Falls to Grand Forks. That's why my office is conducting this meeting."

For more information about the town meeting call Valerie Solem in Dayton's Thief River Falls Senate Office at 218 681-2166.

Dayton's State Director Jim Gelbman will conduct the meeting on Impact of U.S. Postal Service Changes on Region's Mail Service Monday, August 27 at 7 p.m. in the auditorium of Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls.

NW MN Foundation Awards Grant to UMC for RuralCare

Northwest Minnesota Foundation (NMF) recently awarded a grant for $32,500 to the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) to launch a sustaining financial model for health care coverage in seven counties of northwest Minnesota.

RuralCare Partners, a collaborative effort that is comprised of the Northwest Minnesota Health Care Purchasing Alliance and the North Region Health Alliance, will implement the project. The funds will be used to market insurance coverage, for education about the project, for technology support and for a Vital Aging Initiative.

Health care in the seven counties of Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau is at risk. "There is evidence to suggest that the future challenges will be more than the health care infrastructure of the region can handle. Citizens have rallied around the opportunity to create a new health care option and, if successful, this new option will be launched through the project.

"The RuralCare Partners model has the potential for providing affordable, accessible, quality health care for small employers, self-employed, farmers and others who are joining the ranks of the uninsured and underinsured. Among other projected outcomes are improved overall health and economic well being of the region and a new model for rural health care with potential for expansion and replication in other regions.

NMF Executive Director John Ostrem said RuralCare Partners represents a serious and ambitious attempt to respond to a critical issue affecting rural Minnesota.

"The potential impact of the project is significant," he said, "and could affect the well being of thousands of residents in northwest Minnesota."

The Northwest Minnesota Foundation is a charitable foundation committed to improving the quality of life for residents in the 12 counties of northwest Minnesota by investing resources, creating opportunity and promoting philanthropy.

Elliot Baker Memorial Cup trophy winner Friday at the Greenbush Race Track was Richie Berger of Badger. The feature in the late-season Modifieds race is named in honor of Elliot Baker of St. Hilaire, an Outlaw Streets and Modifieds driver at the track and a strong supporter of racing, who died in 1998. Berger is shown with flagman Steve Litzenger and Desiree Baker, Elliot's niece.

Richie Berger wins Elliot Baker Cup

(from Bob Hultgren)

For the second time in as many weeks rain was a factor in the Greenbush Race Park program. Two weeks ago, a mid-race shower produced a delay that lasted nearly two hours. Friday, a heavy downpour rolled over the track just a few minutes before race time, delaying the start by a little over an hour.

However, for Richie Berger (Badger), the wait was well worth it as he added his name to the Elliot Baker Memorial Cup and collected two feature wins.

Berger started the night by winning the make-up feature from the Aug. 11 program. Later, he returned to top a 10-car field for the Baker Memorial Feature.

Nolan Olmstead (Badger), who won the Baker Cup last season, finished second, with Gary Johnson (Karlstad) third.

The Baker Cup Memorial is held in memory of Elliot Baker of St. Hilaire, who passed away in the spring of 1998. Baker was an Outlaw Streets and Modifieds racer at the Greenbush track and also a strong supporter of racing in general.

An interesting turn developed in the Modifieds points race. Dean Forst entered the night with a one-point lead over Dave Riopelle, but the Thief River Falls racer blew up his engine in the make-up feature and was unable to compete the rest of the evening. Riopelle (Argyle) finished second and fourth in the two Mod feature runs, moving him into first place. The bad luck dropped Forst back to fourth in the points race.

Scott Ripplinger (Warroad) celebrated his birthday with a win in the Super Stocks feature. He was running a strong second to Bryon Berger (Badger) for the first 12 laps, and took the lead when Berger pulled off the track with problems. Points leader Gordie Lancaster (Bemidji) finished second, with Dean Wensloff (Roseau) third.

The NOPA Street class points battle was tight before the racing Friday night, and it's even more interesting now. Entering the night, Rod Peterson led Dave Meyer by just three points. Meyer won both the heat and feature and Peterson finished second in both events, resulting in a points standing tie between the two Thief River Falls drivers. Jared Wilde (Thief River Falls) made his first appearance of the season at Greenbush and finished a strong third.

Steffen Snare (Hallock) collected his second feature win of the season in the NOPA Pure Stocks, holding off a competitive field for the victory. Points leader Jim Hilman (Lancaster) finished second, with Justin Peterson (Lancaster) third.

Clay Sorteberg (Greenbush) won the Mini-Sprints feature. Robbi Peterson (Middle River) finished second, with Dan Wiskow (Roseau) third. Points leader Dennis Rantanen (Thief River Falls) finished fourth and continues to hold about a 16-point edge over Sorteberg.

Greenbush Race Park has just two races remaining on its 2001 schedule, including the Track Championships Friday, Aug. 24 and the season finale Friday, Aug. 31. Races will start at 7 p.m. both dates.

The Race Park is located one-half mile north of Greenbush on County Road 7.

Prowlers have small line-up

■ Football team will rely on skill position talent

Thief River Falls might be short on size, but not on talent heading into the 2001 high school football season, according to Prowlers head coach Jeff Mumm.

"The skilled positions are the strength of our football team," pointed out Mumm. "We've got some kids with experience and good skills in key positions."

What the Prowlers are busy searching for during preseason drills, acknowledged Mumm, are linemen. "We need to find some linemen," he said. "We're not a very big football team. We're going to have to play smaller kids. The days of us having a bunch of big, strong hogs up front are behind us right now."

Robby Anderson is penciled in as the quarterback. He saw limited varsity playing time as an underclassman, but has the athleticism to make the offense go, said Mumm, who traditionally graduates a large group of seniors and replaces them with another batch of upperclassmen.

"We always lose a great senior group – that's pretty common for us," explained Mumm. "We'll have a lot of new faces in the line-up this year, but that's nothing new."

Behind Anderson in the backfield will be halfbacks Jon Swanson and Danny Almquist, along with fullback Trent Christensen. All three played key roles a year ago when the Prowlers finished 6-4 overall.

Defensively, Mumm looks for strong play from people with the most experience at their positions, including Christensen in the line; Aric Berg at middle linebacker; Anderson, Almquist and Tommy Greelis in the secondary.

As a first-year member of the Sea Range Conference, Thief River Falls' 2001 schedule has a very different look. Gone are traditional foes like Crookston, East Grand Forks, Fergus Falls, Detroit Lakes, and Bemidji. Instead, the Prowlers will be playing three Duluth schools – Denfeld, East, Central – Grand Rapids, Cloquet, Hibbing, Albany, and Proctor.

"It's going to be different not playing those old rivals this year," noted Mumm. "It's an unknown situation for us. When we played teams like Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Bemidji, we knew what they had and what we were facing. We know nothing about these new teams. But it should be fun. It'll be tough. They play good football over there."

Joining Anderson, Almquist, Berg, Swanson, Christensen, and Greelis as seniors on this year's squad are Derek Larson, Russ Anderson, Jason Smsky, Joaquin Westerman, Travis Dahlen, Stefen Hahn, Caleb Crapeau, Brent Fulton, Nick Mattila, Trevor Swanson, Garrett Hoglo, Nathan Olson, Tad Tureson, Peter Mehrkens, Trevor Christensen, Justin Gallagher, Chad Olson, and Walter Forney.

Juniors on the roster include Mitch Pribula, Josh Langlie, Jason Tuthill, Preston Johnson, Dane Kjono, Jeremy Anderson, Reid Sjaaheim, Dusty Gagner, Darrin Momerak, Gavin Martell, Patrick Cox, Ben Worker, Aaron Jensen, Gabe Carlson, Cody Sorvig, Anron Miller, Rocky Altepeter, Chris

Boys basketball position filled...

Chris McLean will be Prowlers' new coach

Chris McLean has been named Thief River Falls boys head high school basketball coach for the upcoming 2001-02 school year, it was announced Monday by Jim Sims, Director of Student Activities for School District 564.

The boys head high school basketball coach of the Oklee/Plummer Red Lake County Central cooperative from 1997-2000, McLean will succeed Bob Johnson as the Prowlers' coach.

McLean, a Grygla native, began his coaching career as an assistant in the Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke girls program in 1989-90 before taking a similar position with the Goodridge boys in 1990-91.

As a member of the Oklee school staff, McLean was a Red Lake County Central assistant boys basketball coach and junior high football coach in 1996-97 before becoming the Mustangs' head basketball coach in 1997-98. He was also an assistant varsity football coach during the 1998-99 school year.

McLean, who earned degrees at Northland Community and Technical College and Bemidji State University, left high school coaching following the 1999-2000 school year to work on his master's degree at Northern State University in Aberdeen, S.D.

At Northern, McLean served as an assistant coach in the men's basketball program.

Naming of McLean's as the Prowlers' coach is pending official school board approval, noted Sims.

Fall sports schedule is starting this week

It's still August, but Thief River Falls' 2001 fall sports schedule will get under way this week with tennis, volleyball and football match-ups.

A Thief River Falls vs. Grand Rapids girls high school tennis dual Wednesday at 4 p.m. will get things going.

The Sylvia Sjoberg-coached tennis squad will be right back on the court Thursday when the Prowlers host the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational beginning at 9 a.m. Grand Rapids will remain in town for that one, and will be joined by East Grand Forks, Crookston, Bemidji, and Roseau.

Thief River Falls home tennis matches are centered around the Engelstad Park courts.

Friday, the Northland Community and Technical College football team will line up against Rochester in a 4:30 p.m. season-opener at the University of Minnesota-Duluth as part of the second annual Minnesota Community College Conference Kickoff Classic. The game will mark the debut of Guy Finstrom as the Northland head football coach.

Northland's volleyball team will open the year in Texas, where the Mike Zachow-coached Pioneers expect to see a tough field at the Dallas-area Richland Invitational.

Rest of the Thief River Falls teams will open their fall sports schedules next week.

■ Jill Buck, recently named coach of the Thief River Falls girls high school swim team, will take her team to the Detroit Lakes Invitational Monday. The meet is scheduled to start at noon.

■ Thief River Falls boys and girls high school cross country teams will make their debut Tuesday at the Moorhead Invitational. Unlike the school-year meets that feature late-afternoon starting times, the early opener begins at 9 a.m. Chad Persons coaches the Prowler runners.

■ In another Tuesday opener, Thief River Falls will be at home to face rival Crookston in high school volleyball that has a freshman-junior varsity-varsity line-up beginning at 6 p.m. Varsity matches normally start around 7:30 p.m. Erika Jensen and Kelly Skeim return for the second year as the Prowlers' co-head coaches.

■ Northland's fall golf schedule for men and women will start with Aug. 29-30 meets on the road as the Rick Nikunen-coached Pioneers play in the Central Lakes Invitational Wednesday and the Minneapolis Invitational Thursday.

■ A Friday, Aug. 31, Thief River Falls trip to Albany for a 7:30 p.m. high school football game will complete the list of season openers for

ROCKET SPEEDWAY

(from Bob Hultgren)

Track Championships were up for grabs Saturday at the Rocket Speedway in Hallock, and along with the titles and trophies, there was a sense of excitement as the NOPA Pure Stocks, Wissota Super Stocks and Wissota Modifieds took to the track.

Entering the Aug. 18 action, the track had hosted seven Super Stocks features that produced six different winners. Anticipation was high to see who would step up for the Track Championship win, and a strong field was on hand to take the challenge.

When the dust settled, Todd Carter (Lisbon, N.D.) made his first visit to the track a memorable one as he became the seventh driver to win a Rocket Super Stocks feature.

With heat events lined up by points, Carter started eighth in the second heat. He worked his way through the field for the win and the right to start on the outside of the front row for the feature and a spot in the Dash for Cash. Carter would come out to claim the cash and then later led the 16-car feature to the finish line in the Track Championship race. Bob Shafer (Bemidji) finished second, with Mike McCaughan (St. Francois Xavier, Man.) third. With the third place finish, McCaughan took over the points lead with just one race to go.

Entering the night, John Halvorson (Warren) led the Super Stocks points race, but he had a tough heat event and finished tenth in the feature.

While the Super Stocks feature provided the season's seventh different winner, the Wissota Modifieds field continues to be dominated by Kevin Sexton. The Manitoba racer has won all but one of the features this summer, and he was not to be denied the Track Championship.

Dave Riopelle (Argyle) made several attempts to get by Sexton in the early laps of the race, but to no avail. Riopelle would finish second, with Les Pritchard (Roland, Man.) third.

The small nine-car Modifieds field proved to be very entertaining. While Sexton and Riopelle raced up front, the remaining cars jockeyed back and forth for position throughout the feature. Sexton also won the Dash event and continues to hold the points lead.

Casey Faken last raced to a win at the Rocket Speedway during a June 30 make-up feature race. Saturday, the Lancaster driver won his second feature of the year and took home the Track Championship trophy.

Faken led the 18-car field through several caution flags and held off several charges from a number of different drivers. Jim Hilmon (Lancaster) finished a close second, with points leader Robert Weleski (Lancaster) third. All-in-all, it was a very entertaining race.

Steffan Snare (Hallock) had earned the pole position for the feature race, but was issued a caution on the opening lap, sending the Hallock driver to the end of the line for the re-start. Snare was able to work his way up to fourth, but ran out of time to catch the leaders. Jim Hilman won the Pure Stock Dash for Cash event.

The NOPA Street Stocks did not race Saturday night. The class has been dropped from the schedule due to low participation.

The Rocket Speedway will wrap up the 2001 racing season Saturday, Sept. 1, with the Season Finale. Joining the Pure Stocks, Super Stocks and Modifieds will be the Super Trucksm who have proven to be a fan favorite at the track. Hot laps at 6:30 p.m., with racing set for 7. The track is located at the Kittson County Fairgrounds in Hallock.

Minnesota Beet Council elects officers; approves budget

Balaton beef producer Dennis Swan was re-elected chairman of the Minnesota Beef Research & Promotion Council at the organization's recent annual meeting in Bloomington. Swan raises beef cattle on a family farm in Murray County.

Swan is a strong advocate for checkoff programs.

"Research and promotion programs have had a dramatic impact on rebuilding beef demand," says Swan. "Demand is on the rise and consumer expenditures for beef are at an all-time high because checkoff programs are working."

Swan adds that Minnesota companies are national leaders in the development of pre-cooked and easy-to-prepare beef products.

"By partnering with manufacturers, the Minnesota Beef Council has helped expand the 'Easy Beef' section at the meat counter," Swan said.

Swan is pleased with the leading role the Minnesota Beef Council has played in the introduction of electronic irradiation in Minnesota and throughout the nation.

"Electronic irradiation will do for the beef industry what pasteurization has done to make milk safer," Swan said. "I am extremely pleased that Minnesota is the focal point of this historic food safety initiative."

Lyon County beef producer Jack Hennen was re-elected Minnesota Beef Council vice-chairman. Hennen serves on the Promotion & Education and Personnel Committees. He farms near Ghent with his sons.

Wabasha County beef producer Vicky Fick was re-elected secretary. She serves on the Beef Council Promotion & Education Committee and represented Minnesota for six years on the national Beef Promotion & Research Board. Pennington County beef producer Greg Hilgeman was re-elected treasurer. Hilgeman farms near Oklee in northwest Minnesota. He also serves on the Budget and Research committees and recently was appointed to the Cattlemen's Beef Board by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Gary Purath of Red Lake Falls was elected executive committee member-at-large and is the new Promotion & Education Committee Chair. Mel Kuehn of Aitkin was re-elected Research Committee Chairman.

New directors seated at the annual meeting include: John Meagher of Elbow Lake (Grant County) and Burton Fruechte of Swanville (Morrison County). Council members are elected in March by fellow beef and dairy producers and serve a three year term. The Beef Council approved the 2001-2002 budget with projected income of $799,863 from the checkoff revenue, interest and contract income. Projected program investments total $796,358.

The Minnesota Beef Council is a promotion and research board organized under state statute and certified by the Beef Promotion & Research Board to collect a mandatory $1 per head assessment on all cattle sales. The Council is directed by an elected board of 16 beef and dairy producers who invest funds in research, promotion, and educational programs on behalf of Minnesota's 36 thousand cattle producers.

AAL Chapter #2444 of Redeemer Lutheran Church met on Sunday following services. They had received a check of $800 from AAL for the re-shingling that was done a while back on the church building. The chapter's annual meeting will be on September 16 with a potluck picnic in the park, weather permitting. The Branch will be supplying chicken from the Third Base restaurant.

Harot Ollie, Bernice Peterson and Esther Walter spent Sunday afternoon with Clara Hesse, enjoying card games.

Birthday for Karleigh

Karleigh Sorenson was guest of honor on Sunday at a birthday party to celebrate her fifth birthday. She is the daughter of Rita and Karl Sorenson of Plummer, who hosted it at Tindolph Park of Thief River Falls. Attendees were her siblings Kassondra, John and Jeffery, Grandma Wevell Sorenson, Great-grandmother Willa Prestegaard, aunts Bec and Tom Willett and Sheila Gerardy, Mallory, Brett and Abigail, and Virginia Berns. A Barbie cake was the highlight of the lunch.

Sunday was a special day for Kern and Alice Tillman, as it was their anniversary and also Kern's birthday. Friends who stopped by with greetings were Burton and Joyce carlsen, Don and Shar fox, Jason, Paula and Adam Cater, Howard LaFayette, Don and Glenyce Harrington.

Dale and Lisa Carlson, Daniel and Andrew of Owatonna spent the weekend at parents Merlin and Judy Carlson. The boys stayed on a little longer and then were taken to Grand Forks to their other grandparents. They had come to attend the Stoltz reunion.

Visitors the past week of Frances Schlotort, who is in CNC in Thief River Falls, have been Zella Schlotort of Red Lake Falls, her daughter Roberta of Dallas, Texas and Elaine of Bismarck, N.D., Lucille Pahlen of Red Lake Falls, Vic Schlotort, Sandy Osbjornson, John and Mary McBicom of Maple Grove, Dora Dorosler.

Noreen and Merle Johnson of Leedsburg, Fla., arrived on Monday at her brother Jerry and Carol Gerardy's home. Ken and Doris Loiberte of Mesa, Arizona, were there too. On Sunday they all visited Celeste Gerardy at Northwestern Medical Center.

Inga Linder was a Tuesday visitor of Avis Froland.

Hazel Ollie spent Monday and Tuesday with her daughter Sharon Iverson of rural Thief River Falls.

Redeemer Lutheran Ladies Aid met on Tuesday, with Loretta Hesse presiding, in the absence of the president. Pastor Brockopp presented a study on the Masonic organization and their work. Loretta also served lunch.

Stacy Swanson of Moorhead with children Amy, Erica and Katie brought dinner to Edna Hyde, and everyone had a good visit.

Ruth Wilkens visited on Wednesday with Dorothy Myhre and her son Larry of California and daughter Shirley Wheaton of Las Vegas, Nev., who are here for a few days.

Tuesday supper guests of Tony and Sheila Gerardy were Lloyd and Wevell Sorenson, Carol and Jerry Gerardy, Merle and Noreen Johnson of Leedsburg, Fla., Doris and Kenny Loiberte of Mesa, Ariz.

And now I must report the death of Celeste Gerardy, wife of Ronnie Gerardy, who died on Tuesday at the Northwestern Medical Center in Thief River Falls. Heart-felt sympathy is extended to her family and friends. She had been a patient at the CNC for a number of years.

The weather in northwest Minnesota brought us a couple of beautiful days for the last weekend of August. It is absolutely incredible the way the months slip away from us; there were so many things we wanted to do this summer and now we are facing fall with many of those things yet undone. The farm news this morning said that if we had no frost until the 15th of September, the bean crop would be okay.

Speaking of bean crops, Roy's bean stand is doing just fine, and now is getting in full swing. It's great to go out and pick and serve them for dinner any day of the week. Thinking of growing string beans reminds me of one of my earliest recollections of the bean industry.

In the spring of the early 20s, Isaac and I were given a kettle with about 3 quarts of small brown dry beans and a 2- or 3-inch stick to measure the distance between each seed. When we were done planting them all, we were promised time off to go to play with the Gustafson children.

We planted row after row, but the procedure was slowed down with having to move the stick for each bean to be accurately spaced. I'll never guess on beans in a jar to this day because it is difficult to realize how many can be in one quart, much less in 3 quarts. Realizing we had an all day job assignment on our hands and the day was far spent, and we were barely half done, we had to devise a plan to get rid of the beans. We chose a spot near the edge of the garden and planted them in a pile about a foot across and piled a couple inches of soil over it. Everything went well until the day that Mother spied what she thought was a huge gopher pile and sent someone to examine it. If they had been more resourceful or into "natural foods," they might have started the bean sprout industry 50 years earlier. Every bean had sprouted and formed a pile over a foot high. There were definite consequences for our deception, the worst one was — no visiting for a long time.

The Strandquist seniors met on Thursday at the Center, but only had lunch and talked shop because there were others getting ready for a garage sale the next day. They will meet again this next Thursday to discuss a quilt to sell. The Bethesda Lutheran Church held their sale at the Center on Friday.

Tuesday dinner guests at Isaac Thompson's were Peter Thompson and Elsie Lofrooth. Later Hazel Anderson accompanied Isaac to Donaldson to attend the funeral for Carl Arvoson.

Morris and Hazel Anderson spent the weekend with Jim and Cindy Walterlund in East Grand Forks. They enjoyed the Heritage Days, watching the wood carvers and all the "goings on." They also went through the judge's house, which had been restored.

Judy Kleinvachter isn't at home today, so I can't relate who her visitors have been this week. I saw her at the Center for dinner last week and she is feeling fine again. You can be sure she always has company because she's the hostess with the ability to make everyone comfortable.

Richard and Carol Thompson of Red Lake Falls had early Saturday morning breakfast at Isaac and Betsy Thompson's.

Peter and Pearl Thompson visited Elsie Lofroath on Wednesday. It's so nice to see Peter well enough to get around again. It must be this nice weather in northwest Minnesota.

Isaac and Betsy visited with Nelson LeDoux in Thief River Falls on Thursday.

The dahlias are blooming and we enjoy cutting and arranging them to bring to the churches and to the nursing home. We saw some of them on the TV and and realize they were becoming the decorator's first choice.

Bear hunters warned to be on the look-out for diseased animals

Wildlife officials are reminding bear hunters that it's important to take proper precautions when handling bear carcasses and they say that advice is especially timely for northwestern Minnesota hunters following a recent outbreak of anthrax among some cattle in that region.

Minnesota's bear season opens Aug. 22. Although the chances of a hunter contracting anthrax from bear meat are remote, officials believe that bears could get the disease if they have eaten cattle that died of anthrax. State health officials emphasized that routine precautions for the safe handling of bear meat should greatly reduce any small risk that does exist.

As of Aug. 14, approximately 70 dead cows had tested positive for anthrax at 12 sites among Marshall, Roseau and Kittson counties. It is possible that bears may have eaten some of the dead cows before the cattle were incinerated. Also, a dead deer found in Kittson County tested positive for anthrax, and another dead deer in Roseau County apparently had anthrax, according to field tests. These are the first cases of deer contracting the disease in Minnesota in recent history.

One of the oldest diseases known to humans, anthrax is caused by a type of bacteria known as Bacillus anthracis. Anthrax bacteria reproduce by producing spores, which can survive for many years in soil, and then grow rapidly in warm, wet conditions. Animals become infected when bacteria or spores enter the body.

Any warm blooded animal can contract the disease, but it is most common in cattle and sheep. Outbreaks among cattle occur occasionally in Minnesota.

The risk of anthrax infection in humans is remote. No human cases have been reported in Minnesota for at least 20 years. When people do become infected, it is almost always because bacteria or spores have entered the body through a cut or an open sore. Most anthrax infections in humans are easily treated with antibiotics.

Because they may be handling the carcasses of infected animals, bear hunters may face a slightly higher than normal risk of being infected themselves, although the risk is still extremely low, say state health officials. In Minnesota, infected bears are most likely to be found in permit area 12, and the northwestern part of the "no-quota" area in Roseau, Lake of the Woods and Kittson counties.

It is very unlikely that hunters will actually encounter a diseased bear, said Joe Marcino, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources pathologist, because any bears that do become infected will get sick and die very quickly. An anthrax outbreak among cattle in southern Manitoba in August of 2000 concerned wildlife and health officials because bears were seen eating the dead cattle. However, there were no reports of bears having contracted anthrax.

Hunters and others spending time in the outdoors in the affected counties can reduce risk by taking precautions.

■ If you see a dead bear or deer, do not handle the animal. Note the location and report it to the DNR by calling Joe Marcino at 651-296-3043, or the local DNR area wildlife office.

■ Hunters should not shoot any bear that is staggering or otherwise behaving strangely, or that has an unusual appearance.

■ Do not open up the carcass after shooting a bear if you see possible signs of illness, such as a swelled neck, open sores or lesions, or bleeding from the mouth, nose or anus. Leave the carcass and report the location to the DNR.

■ Even if a killed bear seems normal, wear rubber gloves when cleaning it, to reduce risk of infected fluids getting into open cuts and sores.

■ To further reduce any potential health risks, cook the meat thoroughly before eating it, in order to kill any disease causing organisms that may be present.

Minnesota health and wildlife officials are continuing to monitor the anthrax outbreak, and will advise hunters of any new developments that may affect their health and safety.

Minnesota duck season opener is Sept. 29...

Waterfowl regulations in place

For 2001, Minnesota waterfowlers will generally see similar hunting regulations as last year, except that the canvasback season will be trimmed to 20 days and the Canada goose hunting season in the Lac qui Parle and West-Central goose zones will be extended by 10 days.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is allowing states a liberal duck season of 60 days with a six-duck daily bag limit again this year. Minnesota's regular waterfowl seasons are scheduled to open Saturday, Sept. 29, except for Canada goose seasons in the Lac qui Parle and West-Central goose zones, which will open Oct. 6.

According to Tim Bremicker, director of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Division, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has reported that duck breeding population numbers on North America's major duck breeding grounds are lower than last year, but the numbers are still higher than long-term averages.

"In Minnesota, May habitat conditions were better than in 2000," Bremicker said. "But the weather conditions during the next six weeks will influence fall migration habitat before the regular duck opener."

Bremicker said that the regulations proposed by the DNR and will not be formally approved by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service until late September.

Duck Season

Minnesota's duck season will be Sept. 29 to Nov. 27. Minnesota and other states were offered liberal limits and season length because mallard breeding populations and habitat conditions in the major breeding range will support this level of hunting opportunity.

Estimated total duck breeding population in the Dakotas, Montana, Alaska and much of Canada of 36 million birds was 14 percent below last year, but remained 9 percent above the 1955-2000 average.

In Minnesota, the number of breeding mallards was unchanged at 321,000 and remains at relatively high levels. Blue-winged teal in Minnesota were 39 percent below the long-term average, but teal numbers in other North American breeding areas were 29 percent above the long-term average.

Canvasback season is being trimmed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in response to a continent-wide population decline of 18 percent from 707,000 to 580,000. Season length for canvasbacks varies among the flyways, but is 20 days for Minnesota and other Mississippi Flyway states. The canvasback season will be Oct. 13 - Nov. 1 and will be closed for the remainder of the duck season.

"What we're trying to do with this season timing is protect our locally raised 'cans' while allowing hunters a chance to bag migrating canvasbacks, which come through the last two weeks of October," Bremicker said. "Minnesota-raised canvasbacks tend to be taken early in the season, so having the season closed for the first two weeks will favor the local birds and better time the open season with the peak of migration. We have had closed canvasback seasons in the past. Waterfowl hunters need to be aware of the open and closed season dates so they do not take a canvasback by mistake."

To help hunters identify canvasbacks and other diving ducks, the DNR has included illustrations of these species in the 2001 Minnesota Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Supplement.

Scaup population estimate decreased 8 percent compared with last year. The daily bag limit of three scaup will be maintained this year.

Except for opening day, when shooting hours will be noon to 4 p.m., shooting hours will be from one-half hour before sunrise to 4 p.m. daily through Saturday, Oct. 6, and from one-half hour before sunrise to sunset beginning Sunday, Oct. 7, through the close of the season.

The proposed daily bag limit is six ducks, and may not include more than four mallards (only two of which may be females), three scaup, two wood ducks, two redheads, one black duck and one pintail. One canvasback may be taken during the open season noted above. Possession limits are double the daily bag limits.

Goose Season

Regular Canada goose season will be the same as last year, except for the increased number of days in the Lac qui Parle and West-Central goose zones. Also, the harvest index is being reduced in the Lac qui Parle Goose Zone.

This will be the third year of the expanded December Canada goose seasons, intended to provide more hunting pressure on Minnesota's resident goose flock.

Minnesota proposes to increase season length in the Lac qui Parle and West Central Goose zones by 10 days. The migrant Eastern Prairie Population Canada geese, which influence goose hunting regulations in Minnesota's western goose zones, have been coming through the area later than they used to and Minnesota hunters have not harvested as many of these geese as they once did.

Though there was a slight decline in the EPP breeding population size this spring, production conditions this summer were reported to be good. "All indications are that there should be more young in the fall flight than we have had the past few years," Bremicker said.

To ensure that Minnesota doesn't over harvest EPP geese with the extended season, the DNR is lowering the harvest index there from 16,000 to 12,000.

Regular goose season will begin the same day as the duck opener, Saturday, Sept. 29, except in the Lac qui Parle and the West Central zones, where the season will open Saturday, Oct. 6, to better coincide with peak goose numbers in these zones.

In the Lac qui Parle Zone and the West Central Zone, the expanded 40-day goose season will be Oct. 6-Nov. 14. The harvest index in the Lac qui Parle Goose Zone will be 12,000; the season may close earlier than Nov. 14 if the index is reached. The daily bag limit will be one Canada goose in these zones.

In the West Goose Zone (outside of the West Central and Lac qui Parle goose zones) and in the Northwest Goose Zone, the regular goose season will be 40 days from Sept. 29-Nov. 7. The daily bag limit will be one Canada goose in these zones.

Remainder of the state will have a 70-day goose season, Sept. 29-Dec. 7, with a bag limit of two Canada geese daily.

Experimental December Canada goose season will include the entire state except for the Lac qui Parle and West Central goose zones.

Late-season hunters must have the $4 Special Goose Hunt Permit. The same permit will work for both the early and late special goose seasons. The December season will be Dec. 8-17, except in the Southeast Goose Zone, where the season will be Dec. 14-23. Bag limits for Canada geese during this late season will be five per day, except in the Southeast Goose Zone, where the bag limit will be two. The Southeast Goose Zone includes an area south of the Twin Cities along the Mississippi River extending westward to the Rochester area.

A map of the goose hunting zones is in the 2001 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook and in the Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Supplement.

The season for light geese (snow, blue and Ross' geese), white-fronted geese and brant will be Sept. 29-Dec. 23. The only exception is in the Lac qui Parle Zone, where the season for all geese closes the same date as the Canada goose season.

Daily bag limit will be 20 light geese, two white-fronted geese and one brant. The daily bag limit for light geese was increased last year to help control increasing snow goose problems. These species make up a small portion of Minnesota's total goose harvest.

Other Information

Waterfowl seasons will not be finalized until after the comment period closes on the proposed federal migratory waterfowl rules in early September. However, it is unlikely that the federal waterfowl season frameworks will be different from those noted above.

To comment on the proposed seasons, write Chief, Division of Migratory Bird Management, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior, ms 634 - ARLSQ, 1849 C Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20240.

Individuals wanting more information about waterfowl status or Adaptive Harvest Management should go to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Division of Migratory Bird Management Web site at www.migratorybirds.fws.gov.

The DNR will announce the final season dates and limits in early September.

Waterfowl hunters should consult the 2001 Minnesota Hunting and Trapping Regulations Handbook, which is now available from license agents and DNR offices, for basic waterfowl regulations and September seasons. For details on regular and December season waterfowl regulations, consult the 2001 Minnesota Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Supplement, which will be available in early September.

Bremicker noted that all migratory bird hunters, including waterfowl hunters, must be enrolled in the Harvest Information Program.

"To legally hunt migratory birds, you must answer 'yes' to the question on your small game hunting license about whether you will hunt any migratory birds this year and your license must say 'HIP certified,'" Bremicker said.

Hunters who did not check "yes" when they bought their small game license, but who later wish to hunt migratory birds, may visit an Electronic License System agent to obtain HIP certification. There is no fee.

72-year-old artist wins state's Trout, Salmon Stamp contest

Louis Raymer of Minneapolis is no quitter. But after failing to win in more than a dozen tries to have his art featured on a state trout, duck or wild turkey stamp, he told himself his recent entry into the Minnesota 2002 Trout and Salmon Stamp contest would be his final bid for stamp fame.

"I've missed so many times that I decided this was it," said the 72-year-old retired commercial artist.

So it was especially gratifying for Raymer when he received a phone call Aug. 9 from a Minnesota Department of Natural Resources official informing him that his scene of a rainbow trout caught on a royal coachman streamer was the top pick among 18 entries.

"I couldn't believe it," Raymer said. "God knows how many times I've entered these stamp contests. I've had a few thirds and even a second place, but I figured I'd never come in first."

Raymer's acrylic-casein mix close-up of the rainbow trout's head will be featured on the 2002 Minnesota Trout and Salmon Stamp.

Trout anglers are no longer required to have a stamp in their possession. However, a stamp can be purchased for an extra $2 printing and handling fee. Anglers must also purchase a Minnesota fishing license.

The DNR sells approximately 98,000 stamp or stamp endorsements every year, according to Mark Ebbers, DNR Fisheries Trout and Salmon Program consultant. He said proceeds are used for trout and salmon habitat improvement and stocking programs for streams and lakes.

The DNR, which conducts the annual stamp contest, offers no prizes. However, the winner retains print reproduction rights to the work, which is sometimes reproduced as a limited edition print.

Raymer said he's been trout fishing in Minnesota since he was a boy, when his parents would take him to Lake Superior's North Shore. "I've been fishing the Manitou and those streams for decades," he said. "That royal coachman streamer has always been a dandy for me on trout."

In recent years Raymer has had the pleasure of introducing his grandson to the joys of trout fishing at northern trout streams and lakes.

Finalists for the art contest, held at the DNR headquarters in St. Paul, were David Brandon, Eagan, who finished second; Richard Goodkind, St. Louis Park and Laurence D. Huls, Avon, who tied for third; and Todd Juberien, LeSueur, fourth.

Judges this year were Tom Helgeson, editor of Midwest Fly Fishing; Elliott Olson, chair of Minnesota Trout Unlimited; David Mass, Creative Publishing international; Dr. Bruce Vondracek, University of Minnesota; and Jack Wingate, DNR Fisheries Division research manager.

Asked if he'd consider entering another stamp contest now that he'd finally struck gold, Raymer replied, "Nope, that's it. I'm 72 and my time's up."

TRF Courage Day Camp is a success

This year's Thief River Falls Courage Day Camp ran from July 22 through August 3, which was held at Oakland Park.

Courage Day Camp is for children ages 5-14 with physical and/or sensory disabilities.

On July 22 a treasure hunt for campers and their families kicked the event off. Rootbeer floats were donated by Land O' Lakes for the treasure hunt.

"Camping Around the World" was the theme for this year with one director, four counselors and 15 campers. During the week of July 23-27, the campers learned about different countries including Greece, Mexico, Japan, China, and Costa Rica. Campers also enjoyed LaFave Park Beach, a pontoon ride courtesy of Milt Burstad, Agassiz Wildlife Refuge, games, and fishing.

An overnight trip to Valley Fair in Shakopee and Courage Camp in Maple Lake was taken on July 31 and August 1. The campers were able to enjoy five hours of fun while at Valley Fair. Roasting marshmallows, a song session, and a bonfire were a few of the activities enjoyed at Courage Camp. The campers also learned how to put up tents, groom horses, and feed the animals at the farm.

Sara Oviatt, Heidi Young, Beth Mattson, Seth Eckstein, and Jenny Novak enhanced the program with their assistance as staff counselors.

"Without the support of local businesses and the United Way, Courage Day Camp in Thief River Falls could not be as effective as it was. The programs that the camp offers are beneficial in numerous respects to the children. The campers see what the community has to offer and what exists outside of the area too," said Courage Day Camp Director Jamie Kalsnes.

"My child goes to other camps, and the day after he returns he asks, 'When is Camp Courage?' This program means a lot to my kids," said a parent after the awards banquet held on August 3.

Local businesses that helped make Courage Day Camp possible include: Land O' Lakes, Taco John's, Hardee's, Domino's, Super One Foods, McDonald's, Danny's Pizza, Pamida, Ace Hardware, Annette's Fabrics, Petro Pumper, Pepsi, Pennington Main, Gary's Rainbow Bakery, Master's Bread Outlet, John's Riverside Boarding Home, Jim Dagg Insurance, Northern Pride. Other contributors include Paint and Glass, Diamonds and Design, Northwest Auto Body, Nelson Implement, Falls Liquor, Nelson Chiropractic, Thrifty White Drug, Black Cat, and Budget Electronics.

First lab tests point to equine encephalitis

Early laboratory results strongly suggest that a mosquito-borne virus is to blame for the deaths of up to 18 horses in a swampy region of northwestern Wisconsin. The Minnesota Department of Health is alerting residents because many Minnesotans spend time in western Wisconsin during the summer months.

The initial results of blood tests for antibodies were positive, and Wisconsin's state veterinarian said they provide a "presumptive diagnosis" of the eastern strain of equine encephalitis (EEE), which mosquitoes may also transmit to humans. Health officials are awaiting further results to confirm the diagnosis, but are proceeding on the presumption that their original diagnosis was correct.

Since initial reports last week of 12 horses dying between July 27-30, veterinarians have reported another nine cases of suspected EEE – the most virulent strain of equine encephalitis in horses - going back to July 12 or earlier. Of the 21 horses, three have recovered. Most of the cases have occurred in southern Rusk County, with 14 spanning the area from Weyerhauser to Ladysmith. There has been one in Chippewa County near Cadott, and six in Barron County near Chetek.

The EEE virus is transmitted when an infected mosquito bites a human or horse. EEE infections in people can range from mild flu-like illness to severe and sometimes fatal illness.

Definitive laboratory results are not yet in, but initial results from two horses suggest the presence of antibodies to the virus. Antibodies could develop from vaccination rather than infection, but neither horse had been vaccinated against the disease. Further test results for the presence of the virus itself should be ready by the end of this week.

"These two animals, and most of the other horses, showed classic signs of eastern equine encephalitis. It's the right time of the year, there's no reason to suspect other causes, and we have positive lab results. We're presuming that our initial diagnosis was right," said state veterinarian Clarence Siroky, DVM, of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection.

Because it is mosquito-borne, the infection typically occurs in midsummer to early fall, and often near swampy or wetland areas. Isolated cases have been reported sporadically in horses from various areas of the state over the past 30 years, but only three human cases have been reported in Wisconsin in the same time.

Most EEE cases in humans do not cause any symptoms. When symptoms do occur, they generally appear five to 15 days after being bitten by an infected mosquito. Symptoms include high fever, fatigue, muscle ache, stiff necks, and tremors of confusion. In severe cases, inflammation of the brain (encephalitis) occurs, which may lead to convulsions, coma and death.

Symptoms in horses include appetite loss, drooping eyelids and lower lip, aimless wandering and circling, blindness, and inability to stand. The infection is fatal to horses in more than 90 percent of cases, and death usually occurs in two to three days.

"If you're concerned about mosquito-borne illness, we urge you to take precautions," said chief medical officer and state epidemiologist Jeffrey Davis, MD, of the Wisconsin Department of Health and Family Services. "Use effective repellants on your clothing and on exposed skin, wear long sleeves and long pants, and be sure you have window screens that keep insects out. Don't provide a breeding ground for mosquitoes - remove containers, old tires, birdbaths, any objects from your property where water can collect and mosquitoes can lay eggs. Finally, try to avoid outdoor activity at dawn and dusk, when mosquitoes are most likely to be feeding."

Siroky recommended again that horse owners consult their veterinarians about vaccinating their animals, even if they were vaccinated earlier this year. "Of the 21 suspected cases, two horses made complete recoveries. Both were foals born from mothers that had been vaccinated. A third animal that recovered, but with some lingering neurological problems, was vaccinated 18 months ago. We have seen very few cases of equine encephalitis in Wisconsin until now, but horse owners cannot afford to be complacent. Get those vaccines every year, preferably before the first mosquito hatch."

The area where the infections have occurred is sparsely populated, but is home to many recreational lakes and campgrounds. Davis reminded visitors to the area to be aware of possible signs and symptoms of infection within two weeks of returning home.

The Department of Health and Family Services is working with medical facilities in the area to track any possible cases of EEE infection in humans, while veterinarians from the state agriculture department and the U.S. Department of Agriculture trace suspected cases in animals. In addition, a mosquito survey is planned to learn what types of mosquitoes are transmitting the virus.

More information about mosquito-borne encephalitis is available on the Wisconsin Department of Health and Family Services website at http://www.dhfs.state.wi.us/healthtips/BCD/ ArboviralInfections.htm and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention website at http://www.cdc.gov/ncidod/dvbid/arbor/ eeefact.htm.

State makes dramatic strides in immunizing preschoolers

Minnesota is making great strides in immunizing its preschoolers against vaccine-preventable diseases, according to a new survey conducted by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

The latest results from CDC's National Immunization Survey found Minnesota in second place - behind North Carolina - in immunizing children 19-35 months of age against a list of eight different diseases. According to the survey, a little over 86 percent of children in that age group were fully immunized against diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (whooping cough), polio, measles, mumps, rubella, and Haemophilus influenzae type B (Hib).

Survey results were for calendar year 2000. Minnesota's current ranking represents a dramatic improvement over results from as recently as 1995, when only 76 percent of Minnesota's preschoolers were fully immunized. At that time, Minnesota trailed behind 20 other states in the national rankings.

If the list of diseases is expanded to include Hepatitis B - a relatively recent addition to the standard recommendations for childhood immunization - Minnesota drops to third place in the year 2000 survey results, behind North Carolina and Iowa, with just over 82 percent of all children fully immunized.

These improvements in the preschool immunization rate were the result of a community-wide effort, according to Dr. Harry Hull of the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH).

"We had a lot of partners in this effort," said Dr. Hull, who is Minnesota's state epidemiologist. "Private health care providers, local public health agencies, and community groups all across the state can all claim a share of the credit for what has been accomplished.

"This also represents an important vote of confidence on the part of parents," he added. "They have a critically important role to play in getting their children immunized. These survey results would suggest that they know what's at stake, and they are committed to doing the right thing for their kids."

The improved immunization rates represent an important step forward in protecting the health of Minnesota's children, Dr. Hull emphasized.

"Because we are able to protect children through immunization, many people - including many physicians - have had little direct experience with the diseases involved," Dr. Hull said. "When you've never seen a disease like polio or measles first hand, it's easy to underestimate the importance of immunization. But in fact, we're talking about diseases that can kill, or leave children with permanent disabilities."

To underscore the importance of immunization, Dr. Hull points to the state's experience with the Hib vaccine. Before the vaccine was introduced in the late eighties, Hib was a major cause of meningitis in very young preschool-age children, responsible for as many as 200 or more cases of illness - and an average of four deaths - every year. By the early nineties, the number of reported Hib cases was down to four or five a year.

Despite its recent successes, Minnesota can't afford to rest on its laurels when it comes to immunizing its preschool age children, Dr. Hull noted.

"We still have work to do," Dr. Hull said. "We know that there are still segments of the population where immunization rates are unacceptably low - particularly in some rural areas, in some inner city neighborhoods, and in our state's populations of color.

"It's also important to remember that, every year, a new group of kids gets born, and we have to start the immunization process all over again," he said. "We can't afford to let our guard down. We have to keep working at it."

The National Immunization Survey is based on a sample of 30,000 households nationwide. Once the results are broken down by state, the margin of error for Minnesota is plus or minus 4.5 percent.

Pathology and Laboratory Service awarded accreditation

The Pathology and Laboratory Medicine Service at the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical and Regional Office Center in Fargo, N.D., has been awarded an accreditation by the Commission on Laboratory Accreditation of the College of American Pathologists (CAP), based on the results of a recent on-site inspection.

The laboratory's director was advised of this national recognition and congratulated for the "excellence of the services being provided." Veterans Affairs Medical and Regional Office Center Pathology and Laboratory Medicine Service of Fargo is one of the more than 6,000 CAP-accredited laboratories nationwide.

The CAP Laboratory Accreditation Program, begun in the early 1960s, is recognized by the federal government as being equal to, or more stringent than, the government's own inspection program.

Inspectors examine the records and quality control of the laboratory for the preceding two years, as well as the education and qualifications of the total staff, the adequacy of the facilities, the equipment, laboratory safety, and laboratory management to determine how well the laboratory is serving the patient.

The College of American Pathologists is a medical society serving nearly 16,000 physician members and the laboratory community throughout the world. It is the world's largest association composed exclusively of pathologists and is widely considered the leader in laboratory quality assurance. The CAP is an advocate for high-quality and cost-effective medical care.

Hunting season fast approaching, outlook for deer is excellent

by Senator Roger Moe

With the extremely hot days of summer lately, it's surprising to realize hunting season is just around the corner. This year the Legislature made a few significant changes to the hunting laws that will affect hunters.

In an effort to more clearly define the law and strike a balance between the concerns of landowners and hunters, trespass rules applying to lands enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program and Reinvest in Minnesota Program have been clarified. Specifically, planted native or introduced grassland or hayland, and short-rotation woody crops are defined as agricultural land for purposes of the outdoor recreation trespass law. This means permission is necessary to enter these lands to hunt, whether the lands are posted or not.

In addition, changes were made in laws relating to the taking of fur-bearing animals which go into affect this fall. Site-tagging for fisher, pine marten and otter has been repealed by the Legislature for the next two years, but registration within 48 hours after the close of the season is still required. The opening date for fisher, pine marten and bobcat is now standardized to always fall on the Saturday after Thanksgiving, which means that those seasons will open November 24 this year. The muskrat, mink, beaver and otter seasons open statewide on October 27.

Deer

When it comes to opportunities for hunting deer, population reports are some of the best we've seen in years. The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will authorize the second-highest number of antlerless deer permits ever offered.

The firearms deer season will open Nov. 3, archery deer Sept. 15, and muzzle loader deer Nov. 24. Deer hunters seeking to obtain antlerless or special area permits will apply through terminals at Electronic Licensing System (ELS) agents again this year and are encouraged to apply early. The application deadline for antlerless and special hunt permits is Thursday, Sept. 6. Hunters interested in these permits may apply at any of the 1,700 ELS license agents throughout Minnesota, or apply by ELS-telephone by calling 1-888-665-4236 for a $3.50 additional fee.

Waterfowl

The DNR will again hold an expanded early September Canada goose hunting season this year. Hunting on or near water will be allowed in the West Goose Zone for the entire early September season. Controlled hunt zones will be open at Talcot Lake and Thief Lake for the early September Canada goose seasons. These zones are subject to controlled hunt regulations. The early Canada goose season will open Sept. 1. The season in the Northwest Zone will close Sept. 15. The season in the remainder of the state will run approximately three weeks, with the specific closing date announced after the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announces the final proposed late season waterfowl framework dates. The daily bag limit will be five geese per day in most of the state and two geese per day in the southeast and northwest zones.

Based on duck population status and duck regulation packages proposed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the duck season this fall should be similar to last year's 60-day, six-duck daily bag limit season. The tentative opening date will be Sept. 29, but the final date will not be announced until the final late-season framework proposals are announced.

The special youth waterfowl hunting day is planned for Sept. 15.

Pheasant and Gray Partridge

Pheasant survival and production have likely been hurt by the deep snow that blanketed agricultural areas of Minnesota for much of last winter, and by cool and very wet weather in many areas during the early part of the nesting season. The pheasant season will be Oct. 13-Dec. 16. The gray partridge season will be Sept. 15-Dec. 31.

Additional up-to-date information on hunting seasons and regulations from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is available on the Internet at www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Many opportunities remain for MN jobseekers

Despite the current economic slowdown, many jobs remain unfilled within Minnesota. Furthermore, workforce shortages still exist, but they do not affect all fields or work equally. In particular, several healthcare occupations are in need of qualified workers. These are just two of the findings detailed in a second statewide Job Vacancy Survey released today by the Minnesota Department of Economic Security (MDES).

During second quarter (April to June) 2001, employers across Minnesota were surveyed about their current hiring needs. From their information, MDES estimates a job vacancy level of 97,000, which translates to a job vacancy rate of four percent–or four vacancies for every 100 filled jobs in the state. Two out of three of these open-for-hire positions are located in the seven-county Twin Cities metro region.

"This job vacancy survey has become an important tool for understanding workforce supply and demand in Minnesota," said MDES Commissioner Earl Wilson. "A record number of employers participated and made this second round of the Job Vacancy Survey even more informative than the first."

This job vacancy survey identifies occupations with the greatest need for workers. Based on survey findings, the following occupational groups continue to have a need for workers: healthcare practitioners and technical (registered, licensed and practical nurses), personal care and service (child care workers, personal and home care aides), healthcare support (nursing aides, orderlies and attendants, and home health aides), and construction and extraction (carpenters and construction laborers).

MDES plans to partner with Minnesota businesses and firms for a third round of the Minnesota Job Vacancy Survey during fourth quarter (October to December) 2001 in order to continue tracking workforce trends.

The Minnesota Job Vacancy Survey major findings are available at www.MnWorkForceCenter.org/lmi/public.htm or by calling (651) 296-6545.

Minnesota firms lead nation in food safety

Minnesota made history a year ago when Chandler-based Huisken Meats became the first processor in the nation to use electricity to eliminate the threat of E. Coli in its products. From an initial distribution in 84 stores located totally within the Twin Cities, the availability of Huisken "Be Sure" brand products has rapidly grown to literally thousands of supermarkets in 23 states.

This bold step taken by a family-owned business has reaped significant rewards.

"Response so far has been outstanding," Huisken regional sales manager Cliff Albertson said. "Sales during June and July are up over 35 percent compared to a year ago."

Huisken Meats is leading a wave of food processors also attempting to ensure the quality of their products. Minnesota-based Schwan's, the nation's distributor of premium frozen foods via home delivery, and Omaha Steaks are also successfully marketing irradiated ground beef products nationally. As with Huisken, Schwan's has also reported increasing sales.

The growing number of national food recalls and outbreaks of food borne disease – coupled with the unique process being employed by Huisken – appears to have fueled consumer demand. More and more companies are turning to SureBeam electronic pasteurization technology, Huisken Meats' technology of choice. SureBeam irradiates food using ordinary electricity. Several other processors are also using the technology, including Excel, a division of Minnesota-based Cargill. Excel, in fact, will be the first company in the nation to install SureBeam's electron beam technology in two of its meat processing plants located in Nebraska and Texas.

The idea of irradiated foods is not new. Scientists have known for decades that exposing food to x-rays, high-energy electrons or cobalt-60 could kill deadly bacteria. While some consumers have been wary of irradiated foods — largely because of unfounded fear mongering hawked by activists opposing the use of nuclear energy — many irradiated products have become commonplace. Commercial spices used as ingredients in ready-to-eat foods, for example, have been irradiated to kill pests and other contaminants for over a decade. Of course, the real pioneers are our astronauts who have been eating irradiated food since the early 1970's.

Albertson, who has been criss-crossing the nation touting the benefits of SureBeamed ground beef, notes that retailers are responding favorably to the notion of using high energy electricity rather than radioactive materials — and so have consumers. A few weeks ago, Huisken announced the expansion of its product line with a promotion launched in a St. Paul city park. Some 2,000 people came and enjoyed free irradiated hamburgers, while snapping up coupons.

Thousands of consumers will have another chance to sample irradiated beef when the Minnesota Beef Council distributes free samples this month at the Minnesota State Fair. "Research shows that education is the key to consumer acceptance of irradiated food products," says Minnesota Beef Council executive Ron Eustice. "We began informing consumers about the benefits of irradiated ground beef nearly four years ago, and our efforts — like those of Huisken Meats and the Minnesota Department of Public Health — are paying off."

Minnesota has been the focal point as the demand for irradiated ground beef spreads nationwide.

"Our goal is to make beef the safest food on the dinner table and irradiation is helping us do that. Improved food safety clearly benefits Minnesota's 35,000 beef and dairy producers, as well as consumers nationwide," said Eustice. "By helping to increase consumer knowledge and confidence in beef, we expand demand. Irradiated beef will do the beef industry what pasteurized milk did for the dairy industry a half century ago: improve quality and help stop the spread of food borne diseases."

Improving Oakland Park for RV use is a good idea

Improving the park may promote tourism to TRF

Far be it for me to ask the city or county to spend more money. I'm a taxpayer and frankly, I'd rather not pay more in taxes. Another taxpayer and resident, however, recently proposed that something be done to enhance Oakland Park. It's a good idea for a number of reasons, but it would require study.

A local taxpaying resident suggested that Oakland Park be turned into a first class RV park to capitalize on the Canadian and other RV tourists. The current campground, he explains, fills up quite a bit of the time, and with the Casino now up and running, we need to expand and try to capitalize on the increase in tourism to the area.

The current campground located near the National Guard Armory and above Hartz Park is probably one of the best campgrounds I've ever seen. The sites may be a little close, and it fills up quite frequently, but the services and facilities offered are top notch. Soon, the campground will benefit from proposed improvements planned for Hartz Park. If approved, I'm sure that story on the improvements will appear in The Times in the near future.

The current campground does fill up frequently. It seems that it doesn't fill up as quickly as it has in the past, but I think that may have something to do with the Canadian economy. The city also has expanded its current campground to the point where there's little or no more space for an expansion, and if it did expand, I doubt the beautiful new washrooms the city built would be able to accommodate such a crowd

Several local civic-minded organizations deserve praise for efforts to improve park facilities in the community.

Several local civic-minded organizations deserve praise for efforts to improve park facilities in the community. Lions Park, the Roller Park, Elks Park, and Hartz Park are, or soon will be, shining gems in the community. The effort put into improving these parks has actually been quite impressive.

By comparison, Oakland Park, which is one of our larger parks and requires constant mowing and attention, is inadequate, possibly pitiable. Over the years, numerous people have commented on the sad shape of the trail that winds through the park. It definitely needs to be replaced or removed. And, although it is a large park, it lacks in many of the nice playground equipment that other parks have. The park, however, is used extensively because it's a large park and can accommodate large groups. That's something to consider, but even with an RV Park I think it's large enough to still accommodate all interests.

As an RV Park, Oakland Park would provide an ideal, picturesque setting. It would increase the number of travellers the community could accommodate, enhance income opportunities, and improve chances of attracting even more visitors to the community.

A number of questions would have to be answered before a venture like this is undertaken: Where would the money come from?, Would an RV Park be compatible with current uses, specifically with the nearby residential area and Oakland Park Nursing Home?, Would the city be better served if a private entrepreneur opened an RV Park?, Is this the best location for an RV Park? Would it take away customers from local motels? Who and how would the park be managed and maintained? (The park is owned by the county,but the city cuts the grass); are there water and sewer hook ups available or would the city or county have to put in lines to the park?; and how much of the park is in a flood control zone?

These and other questions would have to be addressed in a study of the proposal by local officials. I'm never disappointed in our officials when they address such issues. To be quite honest, they are the people who are held responsible for such actions, and because they are, I think they are very good at asking questions that need to be answered. Of course, not everyone agrees with the answers they settle on.

As city and county officials brace for budget committee meetings, I don't think that adapting Oakland Park to accommodate an RV Park should be their top priority. Regardless, the idea has merit and should be left to percolate. Maybe, if left to percolate long enough, another local civic organization will take it on as a project. Maybe a generous benefactor will make it possible. Maybe someone will come up with an entirely convincing, yet different take on the subject. Nevertheless, at first glance improving Oakland Park sounds like a good idea.

Stadium task force should set parameters

by Sen. Roger Moe

In recent years, there has been considerable banter, posturing and rhetoric surrounding the need for new professional sports facilities in Minnesota. While many people have expressed strong opinions on the topic, no one group has put together an organized, neutral process and gathered all of the appropriate information.

Given the strong public interest in the sports facilities issue, it only makes sense to move forward with a straightforward approach that involves the public and considers the full array of options available.

Frankly, this public process was overdue. Speaker of the House Steve Sviggum finally has opened the door to a stadium task force, and Governor Ventura has also indicated a willingness to more fully consider the various possibilities.

No plan of action is firmly in place, but the prospects for setting up a stadium task force are very good and the outline is taking shape. Senate and House leaders are ready to move forward with a broad, bipartisan task force, and the Governor has been invited to participate by appointing his own representatives.

It is important to stress that the task force will not be asked to determine a site for a stadium or to reach firm conclusions. Instead, the process will be broad and inclusive, designed to reach agreement on principles and parameters to be used as a guide for future legislation.

Specifically, the task force will be asked to analyze existing reports and proposals, and look at legislation previously introduced. Testimony will be taken from all interested parties, including the Twins, Vikings, league officials, the Metropolitan Sports Facilities Commission (which operates the Metrodome), the University of Minnesota Athletic Department, opponents of public involvement and others.

The task force will be the designated entity to consider sports facility needs of the state's professional baseball and football teams, and the U of M football team. By studying the level of state and local involvement in other stadiums across the country, the task force will be in position to recommend an appropriate balance of public and private participation.

In addition to reviewing proposals for potential new facilities, the task force is expected to consider the remodeling and renovation of the Metrodome. Another possible option would be construction of a joint stadium to be shared by the university and pro football teams.

During the 2001 Session, the proposal for a new baseball stadium moved through the entire committee process, reaching the floors of both the House and the Senate. The task force will be asked to consider the proposed legislation along with various options for a new baseball park, including open-air, roof-ready, and retractable roof.

Beyond a doubt, our pro sports teams add a significant value to the state. Besides the direct economic activity related to the teams, they add intrinsic value through the entertainment and enjoyment they provide. This summer I have been particularly impressed by the number of people in our part of the state who have followed the Twins so closely, and say they would feel a great loss without the team. For them, listening to the ball games on the radio or watching on TV is a daily event, whether the team wins or loses.

It won't be easy to put a price on the non-economic benefits of sports teams at the college and professional levels, but the task force will be asked to do its best to measure the value and calculate an appropriate amount of public participation.

The task force is expected to begin meeting in September. It is my hope that at least two meetings will be scheduled in Greater Minnesota, away from the Twin Cities area. The task force will be asked to wrap up its work early next year, prior to the convening of the 2002 Legislative Session in late January.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Manitobans thank friendly Minnesotans

To the Editor:

On June 23, 2001 my wife and I were travelling with three other couples from Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, on Highway 1 just west of Effie, Minnesota, at approximately 4:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon when our motorcycle shut down of all power. After gliding to a stop and wondering what we were going to do, two gentlemen Daryl and Del Beito, driving a pickup truck pulling a 5th wheel flat bed trailer stopped to lend us a hand.

After about 45 minutes of trying to get the motorcycle started, the two brothers, Daryl and Del suggested that we could tie the motorcycle down behind the small tractor on the flat bead trailer that they were already carrying. They were returning to Thief River Falls, as it happens the same place that we were heading to, and would gladly give us a ride. With their expertise, we finally got the motorcycle secured and we were on our way.

During the next three hours and a couple of discussions with the Winnipeg Harley dealership, it was determined the battery was shot. Upon hearing that, Del called his son at home and had him locate a battery, put it on a charger and them make arrangements to drop the battery off at the hotel we were staying at in Thief River Falls.

Once again with their help, we got our 700 pound motorcycle down off the flat bed trailer at the hotel in Thief River Falls. Daryl and Del provided us with their phone numbers and addresses in case we needed any more help. Fortunately the problem turned out to be only the battery.

This letter is to publicly and personally thank Daryl and Del Beito for all their efforts to get us to Thief River Falls. This kindness was well beyond something we ever expected and much appreciated.

Sincerely,
Keith & Cindy East
Winnipeg, Manitoba

Daryl and Del Beito provided roadside assistance to visitors from Canada when their Harley Davidson motorcycle broke down. Keith and Cindy East (pictured second from left in the top photo) wrote a letter to The Times to express their appreciation to the Beitos for the assistance they provided.

Individual rights backed by decision

by Sheldon Richman
Future of Freedom Foundation

Attorney General John Ashcroft has let it be known that it is the official position of the executive branch of the U.S. government that individuals possess the right to keep and bear arms.

Hallelujah! As the anti-self-defense lobby says, this is a reversal of a position held for about 30 years – but it is a good and long-overdue reversal. It was under President Richard Nixon -- a Republican -- that the Department of Justice pronounced the right referred to in the Second Amendment as something other than an individual right. The Clinton Justice Department repeated that position explicitly a few years ago during an appeal in a gun case.

The issue is this: What did the authors of the Bill of Rights mean when they wrote, "A well-regulated Militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms shall not be infringed."

The anti-self-defense lobby says it refers only to today's version of the militia: the National Guard. That is absurd on many levels. For one thing, in the Founders' day the militia meant every able-bodied male, not a specially organized body. More fundamentally, the gun controllers' argument is ridiculous because the right to keep and bear arms can only be an individual right. As the Founders knew, there are no collective rights. A more un-American concept could not be imagined. A group has a particular right only insofar as the individual members possess it.

Furthermore, there is no hint of collective rights in the Constitution. Throughout the Bill of Rights it is patently obvious that "right of the people" means rights of individual persons. The First Amendment refers to the "right of the people to peaceably assemble and to petition the government for redress of grievances." The Fourth Amendment refers to "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects." The Ninth Amendment warns that "the enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people." These are clearly individual rights.

And so it is with the Second Amendment. The idea that the right to own guns belongs to an agency under the control of government mocks the Founding Fathers and insults the intelligence of all Americans. One of the amendment's chief intentions was to recognize that the people have a right to protect themselves against tyranny perpetrated by their own government. Giving government control of all guns is like having to ask King George if it's okay to revolt.

The gun controllers try to sound harmless when they insist that they do not wish to threaten "sportsmen and hunters." But the Second Amendment is not primarily about sportsmen and hunters. It's about self-responsibility and self-defense. Those virtues are directly threatened by the gun controllers and anyone else who believes possessing firearms is not an individual right. Sarah Brady, chairman of the Brady Center to Prevent Gun Violence, has criticized Ashcroft because his position reverses previous government policy. She added, "His position is also dangerous, as it would only make defending reasonable gun laws -- laws that Americans overwhelmingly support -- more difficult."

Notice she didn't say Ashcroft's position is wrong. Believe it or not, Mrs. Brady, the government can make a mistake and even persist in it for more than three decades. Is it really "dangerous" to correct that error because Americans might change their minds about the reasonableness of gun laws? Maybe when they understand that rights can only belong to individuals they will see that those laws are in fact unreasonable because they interfere with self-responsibility and self-defense.

The use of guns to violate rights should be dealt with harshly. The mere possession of guns and use of them to defend innocent life should be respected and praised. Otherwise we Americans have no claim to the title "free people."

Inge Shetler To Open Grocery And Cafe On Saturday

"Mrs. Inga Shetler today announced the grand opening Saturday, August 25, of Inga's Restaurant and Grocery at 811 Atlantic Avenue North. She added that free coffee and doughnuts will be served Saturday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Mrs. Shetler has operated for the past seven years the Main Sandwich Shop."

Johnson Brothers Buy Sportsmen's Store

"A transaction was completed last weekend by which Gordon and Raymond Johnson, proprietors of the Western Auto Supply store here, take over the ownership of the Sportsmen's Store, operated in the Hartz building since 1945 by Fred Wengeler. The new owners stated that they plan to continue operation of the store in its present location, in addition to the Western Auto store on East Third Street. Wengeler said Tuesday his future plans are indefinite at this time, other than that he and Mrs. Wengeler will make a trip to the West Coast."

G. N. Would End its Passenger Service To City

"The Great Northern Railway announced today that it is petitioning the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse commission for authority to discontinue operation of passenger trains Nos. 135 and 136 between Crookston and Warroad through Thief River Falls. Heavy losses for the past several years, due to patronage lost to private cars and other highway transportation are given as the chief reason for the railroad's request to discontinue passenger service. The statement points out that in 1920, previous to the construction of the all-weather highway, which parallels the line, Trains 135 and 136 carried 88,181 passengers, bringing in a revenue of $110,070. In 1950 the trains carried only 5,733 passengers, with a revenue from this service of $5,616. For the first four months of 1951, the statement says $2.20 was paid out in expenses for each dollar of revenue from operation of the trains."

Two Local Groups To Be In Festival Parade At Duluth

"Among outstanding parade attractions entered in the 1951 Duluth Fall Festival grand parade at 4 p.m. Saturday, September 22, is the Thief River Falls Marching Majorettes' drum and bugle corps with Mrs. David L. Carlson directing, plus the Lincoln high school band, directed by Robert S. Harman. This band is the largest unit of its kind ever entered in a festival parade, and will be given a prominent position in the line of march.

"The units will be among approximately 150 attractions in the mammoth two-hour parade. According to parade chairman Ben Chessen, nearly 100,000 will see the spectacle. In three years, the Duluth Fall Festival grand parade has attained top-most rank in national outdoor pageantry. It enjoys more out-of-town participation and support than any other major parade in the northwest."

Strandquist News

The weather in northwest Minnesota acts like a TV in summer with reruns and more reruns. Almost every 24-hour period we have been getting some rain. The sun can be shining and along comes a cloud and gives us a dousing. At least it is enough moisture to wash that expensive spray off the flowers and leave them exposed to the egg-laying moths. The white cabbage moths got busy as soon as the rain has washed the dust off the broccoli. Regardless what I try to swat them with, be it broom or kettle, they change their flying course faster than a PT fighter plane dodging bullets, and I miss them by an inch or less. At last I just cut the broccoli and will destroy the plants myself.

The Strandquist seniors met on Thursday and checked out some materials for quilting. Iris Borggren took some home to cut for pieces. She is planning a rummage sale for next weekend and John Lofstrom is also having a sale. This will keep the area busy.

The annual dinner at Zion Church is on Sunday to keep the cemetery in shape. Because very few old timers buried there have friends or relatives, the proceeds help in the maintenance.

On Thursday evening the Women's missionary group from the Assembly of God Church had a "Singspiration" at the Karlstad Nursing Home and then went to Marie Jahnson's home for their meeting. After the meeting Marie, assisted by her daughter Denise Aakre, served a delicious luncheon.

While Judy Kleinvachter is recuperating the following have been to visit her this week: Pat Larson, Betty Pietruszewski, Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, Father John Kleinvachter of Oklee, Jim and Josie Kleinvachter of Sauk Center, Marie Stefion, June, Kari and Marcus Kasprowicz. Judy is still a happy hostess, regardless of the circumstances.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson drove to Red Lake Falls to see the damage the storm had inflicted on that town. Luckily only a big tree had gone down on Robert's property. Most places were less fortunate.

Dean and JoAnne visited Elsie Lofrooth and brought her a passel of home-grown veggies on Thursday.

Ditches Will Be Made

"The board of the County Commissioners met at Red Lake Falls on Monday and the most important matter up for their consideration was the hearings on the various ditch petitions. The ditch designated as the Wyandotte and River Falls Ditch No. 2 was acted upon favorably and ordered constructed.

"This ditch commences just east of the iron bridge over the Red Lake River here and runs straight east a distance of over eight miles to section 10 of Wyandotte where it connects with Wyandotte ditch No. 1 which runs thence almost due south to the Clearwater river. This latter ditch was also ordered to be constructed. The specifications call for all the dirt excavated to be placed on the south side for the purpose of making a roadway, which when completed will be, without exception the best road in Red Lake county. These ditches will drain the big swamp out east of town, which has always been a drawback and menace to the prosperity of this community and will prove to be the best thing that ever happened for the development of the country east of here.

"Owing to a mistake in the advertising of the Wyandotte and River Falls Ditch No. 1, designed to drain the southern portions of the towns named, this project was knocked out on a technicality. This was a most unfortunate occurrence as the ditch is badly needed. There was considerable opposition offered this ditch by residents of the vicinity through which it was to run, they claiming that it was not located to the best advantage. In this case it is probable that a new petition will be presented and considered. It is likely that it will be constructed later on and probably in a more suitable location.

"Bids for work on the ditches ordered constructed will be advertised for at once and the work will be pushed this fall as far as practicable.

"The village of St. Hilaire was represented by a crowd of enthusiasts who pushed and pulled their best for the construction of the ditches. Among those who went down were: Hon. C. G. Rapp, Onn Patterson, Julius Pleth, Wm. Eickhoff, K. O. Gigstad, Nels Otterness, Alfred Dainard, W. A. Sorsoleil, A. R. Jones, H. W. Peterson, Leonard Holmes and Harry Ives.

"One old fossil, who lives in River Falls township, was down with the intention of heading off the improvements. He has opposed every good thing that has been suggested in the last ten years and in this instance he seems to have made a nuisance of himself from mere force of habit and without reason. He is a chronic kicker and obstructionist and was very properly treated as such by the board. It is too bad that he can't pick up sense enough to kick himself out of the county, which action on his part would prove a decided relief and permanent benefit to this community at large."

HIGH SCHOOL

Brick Building Will Be Built Next Spring.

"E. Strassburger, the Crookston architect, was in the city Tuesday and submitted the plans to the school board for the proposed new school building. It is not the intention to erect the building this fall, although it is badly needed, but to wait until next spring. The cost of the proposed building will be $14,000 complete. It will be 72 by 62 feet, built of brick, and steam-heated. The first floor will contain four school rooms, while the upstairs will be devoted exclusively for high school purposes. It will contain a general assembly room, and two recitation rooms, one room for the principal, one for the teachers, a laboratory and a library. It will be modern in every respect, and a building that will in every way be a credit to the city."

Improving Oakland Park for RV use is a good idea

Improving the park may promote tourism to TRF

I'd be the last one to ask the city or county to spend more money. I'm a taxpayer and frankly, I'd rather not pay more in taxes. Another taxpayer and resident, however, recently proposed that something be done to enhance Oakland Park. It's a good idea for a number of reasons, but it would require study.

A local taxpaying resident suggested that Oakland Park be turned into a first-class RV park to capitalize on the Canadian and other RV tourists. The current campground, he explains, fills up quite a bit of the time, and with the Casino now up and running, we need to expand and try to capitalize on the increase in tourism to the area.

The current campground located near the National Guard Armory and above Hartz Park is probably one of the best campgrounds I've ever seen. The sites may be a little close, and it fills up quite frequently, but the services and facilities offered are top notch. Soon, the campground will benefit from proposed improvements planned for Hartz Park. If approved, I'm sure that story on the improvements will appear in The Times in the near future.

The current campground does fill up frequently. It seems that it doesn't fill up as quickly as it has in the past, but I think that may have something to do with the Canadian economy. The city also has expanded its current campground to the point where there's little or no more space for an expansion, and if it did expand, I doubt the beautiful new washrooms the city built would be able to accommodate such a crowd.

Several local civic-minded organizations deserve praise for efforts to improve park facilities in the community.

Several local civic-minded organizations deserve praise for efforts to improve park facilities in the community. Lions Park, the Roller Park, Elks Park, and Hartz Park are, or soon will be, shining gems in the community. The effort put into improving these parks has actually been quite impressive.

By comparison, Oakland Park, which is one of our larger parks and requires constant mowing and attention, is inadequate, possibly pitiable. Over the years, numerous people have commented on the sad shape of the trail that winds through the park. It definitely needs to be replaced or removed. And, although it is a large park, it lacks in many of the nice playground equipment that other parks have. The park, however, is used extensively because it's a large park and can accommodate large groups. That's something to consider, but even with an RV Park I think it's large enough to still accommodate all interests.

As an RV Park, Oakland Park would provide an ideal, picturesque setting. It would increase the number of travellers the community could accommodate, enhance income opportunities, and improve chances of attracting even more visitors to the community.

A number of questions would have to be answered before a venture like this is undertaken: Where would the money come from?; Would an RV Park be compatible with current uses, specifically with the nearby residential area and Oakland Park Nursing Home?; Would the city be better served if a private entrepreneur opened an RV Park?; Is this the best location for an RV Park?; Would it take away customers from local motels? Who and how would the park be managed and maintained? (The park is owned by the county, but the city cuts the grass); are there water and sewer hook ups available or would the city or county have to put in lines to the park?; and how much of the park is in a flood control zone?

These and other questions would have to be addressed in a study of the proposal by local officials. I'm never disappointed in our officials when they address such issues. To be quite honest, they are the people who are held responsible for such actions, and because they are, I think they are very good at asking questions that need to be answered. Of course, not everyone agrees with the answers they settle on.

As city and county officials brace for budget committee meetings, I don't think that adapting Oakland Park to accommodate an RV Park should be their top priority. Regardless, the idea has merit and should be left to percolate. Maybe, if left to percolate long enough, another local civic organization will take it on as a project. Maybe a generous benefactor will make it possible. Maybe someone will come up with an entirely convincing, yet different take on the subject. Nevertheless, at first glance improving Oakland Park sounds like a good idea.

Stadium task force should set parameters

by Sen. Roger Moe

In recent years, there has been considerable banter, posturing and rhetoric surrounding the need for new professional sports facilities in Minnesota. While many people have expressed strong opinions on the topic, no one group has put together an organized, neutral process and gathered all of the appropriate information.

Given the strong public interest in the sports facilities issue, it only makes sense to move forward with a straightforward approach that involves the public and considers the full array of options available.

Frankly, this public process was overdue. Speaker of the House Steve Sviggum finally has opened the door to a stadium task force, and Governor Ventura has also indicated a willingness to more fully consider the various possibilities.

No plan of action is firmly in place, but the prospects for setting up a stadium task force are very good and the outline is taking shape. Senate and House leaders are ready to move forward with a broad, bipartisan task force, and the Governor has been invited to participate by appointing his own representatives.

It is important to stress that the task force will not be asked to determine a site for a stadium or to reach firm conclusions. Instead, the process will be broad and inclusive, designed to reach agreement on principles and parameters to be used as a guide for future legislation.

Specifically, the task force will be asked to analyze existing reports and proposals, and look at legislation previously introduced. Testimony will be taken from all interested parties, including the Twins, Vikings, league officials, the Metropolitan Sports Facilities Commission (which operates the Metrodome), the University of Minnesota Athletic Department, opponents of public involvement and others.

The task force will be the designated entity to consider sports facility needs of the state's professional baseball and football teams, and the U of M football team. By studying the level of state and local involvement in other stadiums across the country, the task force will be in position to recommend an appropriate balance of public and private participation.

In addition to reviewing proposals for potential new facilities, the task force is expected to consider the remodeling and renovation of the Metrodome. Another possible option would be construction of a joint stadium to be shared by the university and pro football teams.

During the 2001 Session, the proposal for a new baseball stadium moved through the entire committee process, reaching the floors of both the House and the Senate. The task force will be asked to consider the proposed legislation along with various options for a new baseball park, including open-air, roof-ready, and retractable roof.

Beyond a doubt, our pro sports teams add a significant value to the state. Besides the direct economic activity related to the teams, they add intrinsic value through the entertainment and enjoyment they provide. This summer I have been particularly impressed by the number of people in our part of the state who have followed the Twins so closely, and say they would feel a great loss without the team. For them, listening to the ball games on the radio or watching on TV is a daily event, whether the team wins or loses.

It won't be easy to put a price on the non-economic benefits of sports teams at the college and professional levels, but the task force will be asked to do its best to measure the value and calculate an appropriate amount of public participation.

The task force is expected to begin meeting in September. It is my hope that at least two meetings will be scheduled in Greater Minnesota, away from the Twin Cities area. The task force will be asked to wrap up its work early next year, prior to the convening of the 2002 Legislative Session in late January.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Manitobans thank friendly Minnesotans

To the Editor:

On June 23, 2001 my wife and I were travelling with three other couples from Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, on Highway 1 just west of Effie, Minnesota, at approximately 4:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon when our motorcycle shut down of all power. After gliding to a stop and wondering what we were going to do, two gentlemen Daryl and Del Beito, driving a pickup truck pulling a 5th wheel flat bed trailer stopped to lend us a hand.

After about 45 minutes of trying to get the motorcycle started, the two brothers, Daryl and Del suggested that we could tie the motorcycle down behind the small tractor on the flat bed trailer that they were already carrying. They were returning to Thief River Falls, as it happens the same place that we were heading to, and would gladly give us a ride. With their expertise, we finally got the motorcycle secured and we were on our way.

During the next three hours and a couple of discussions with the Winnipeg Harley dealership, it was determined the battery was shot. Upon hearing that, Del called his son at home and had him locate a battery, put it on a charger and then make arrangements to drop the battery off at the hotel we were staying at in Thief River Falls.

Once again with their help, we got our 700 pound motorcycle down off the flat bed trailer at the hotel in Thief River Falls. Daryl and Del provided us with their phone numbers and addresses in case we needed any more help. Fortunately the problem turned out to be only the battery.

This letter is to publicly and personally thank Daryl and Del Beito for all their efforts to get us to Thief River Falls. This kindness was well beyond something we ever expected and much appreciated.

Sincerely,
Keith & Cindy East
Winnipeg, Manitoba

Daryl and Del Beito provided roadside assistance to visitors from Canada when their Harley Davidson motorcycle broke down. Keith and Cindy East (pictured second from left in the top photo) wrote a letter to The Times to express their appreciation to the Beitos for the assistance they provided.

Individual rights backed by decision

by Sheldon Richman
Future of Freedom Foundation

Attorney General John Ashcroft has let it be known that it is the official position of the executive branch of the U.S. government that individuals possess the right to keep and bear arms.

Hallelujah! As the anti-self-defense lobby says, this is a reversal of a position held for about 30 years -- but it is a good and long-overdue reversal. (It was under President Richard Nixon -- a Republican -- that the Department of Justice pronounced the right referred to in the Second Amendment as something other than an individual right. The Clinton Justice Department repeated that position explicitly a few years ago during an appeal in a gun case.

The issue is this: What did the authors of the Bill of Rights mean when they wrote, "A well-regulated Militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms shall not be infringed."

The anti-self-defense lobby says it refers only to today's version of the militia: the National Guard. That is absurd on many levels. For one thing, in the Founders' day the militia meant every able-bodied male, not a specially organized body. More fundamentally, the gun controllers' argument is ridiculous because the right to keep and bear arms can only be an individual right. As the Founders knew, there are no collective rights. A more un-American concept could not be imagined. A group has a particular right only insofar as the individual members possess it.

Furthermore, there is no hint of collective rights in the Constitution. Throughout the Bill of Rights it is patently obvious that "right of the people" means rights of individual persons. The First Amendment refers to the "right of the people to peaceably assemble and to petition the government for redress of grievances." The Fourth Amendment refers to "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects." The Ninth Amendment warns that "the enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people." These are clearly individual rights.

And so it is with the Second Amendment. The idea that the right to own guns belongs to an agency under the control of government mocks the Founding Fathers and insults the intelligence of all Americans. One of the amendment's chief intentions was to recognize that the people have a right to protect themselves against tyranny perpetrated by their own government. Giving government control of all guns is like having to ask King George if it's okay to revolt.

The gun controllers try to sound harmless when they insist that they do not wish to threaten "sportsmen and hunters." But the Second Amendment is not primarily about sportsmen and hunters. It's about self-responsibility and self-defense. Those virtues are directly threatened by the gun controllers and anyone else who believes possessing firearms is not an individual right. Sarah Brady, chairman of the Brady Center to Prevent Gun Violence, has criticized Ashcroft because his position reverses previous government policy. She added, "His position is also dangerous, as it would only make defending reasonable gun laws -- laws that Americans overwhelmingly support -- more difficult."

Notice she didn't say Ashcroft's position is wrong. Believe it or not, Mrs. Brady, the government can make a mistake and even persist in it for more than three decades. Is it really "dangerous" to correct that error because Americans might change their minds about the reasonableness of gun laws? Maybe when they understand that rights can only belong to individuals they will see that those laws are in fact unreasonable because they interfere with self-responsibility and self-defense.

The use of guns to violate rights should be dealt with harshly. The mere possession of guns and use of them to defend innocent life should be respected and praised. Otherwise we Americans have no claim to the title "free people."

Johnson Brothers Buy Sportsmen's Store

"A transaction was completed last weekend by which Gordon and Raymond Johnson, proprietors of the Western Auto Supply store here, take over the ownership of the Sportsmen's Store, operated in the Hartz building since 1945 by Fred Wengeler. The new owners stated that they plan to continue operation of the store in its present location, in addition to the Western Auto store on East Third Street. Wengeler said Tuesday his future plans are indefinite at this time, other than that he and Mrs. Wengeler will make a trip to the West Coast."

G. N. Would End Its Passenger Service To City

"The Great Northern Railway announced today that it is petitioning the Minnesota Railroad and Warehouse commission for authority to discontinue operation of passenger trains Nos. 135 and 136 between Crookston and Warroad through Thief River Falls. Heavy losses for the past several years, due to patronage lost to private cars and other highway transportation are given as the chief reason for the railroad's request to discontinue passenger service. The statement points out that in 1920, previous to the construction of the all-weather highway, which parallels the line, Trains 135 and 136 carried 88,181 passengers, bringing in a revenue of $110,070. In 1950 the trains carried only 5,733 passengers, with a revenue from this service of $5,616. For the first four months of 1951, the statement says $2.20 was paid out in expenses for each dollar of revenue from operation of the trains."

Two Local Groups To Be In Festival Parade At Duluth

"Among outstanding parade attractions entered in the 1951 Duluth Fall Festival grand parade at 4 p.m. Saturday, September 22, is the Thief River Falls Marching Majorettes' drum and bugle corps with Mrs. David L. Carlson directing, plus the Lincoln high school band, directed by Robert S. Hannum. This band is the largest unit of its kind ever entered in a festival parade, and will be given a prominent position in the line of march.

"The units will be among approximately 150 attractions in the mammoth two-hour parade. According to parade chairman Ben Chessen, nearly 100,000 will see the spectacle. In three years, the Duluth Fall Festival grand parade has attained top-most rank in national outdoor pageantry. It enjoys more out-of-town participation and support than any other major parade in the northwest."

The weather in northwest Minnesota acts like a TV in summer with reruns and more reruns. Almost every 24-hour period we have been getting some rain. The sun can be shining and along comes a cloud and gives us a dousing. At least it is enough moisture to wash that expensive spray off the flowers and leave them exposed to the egg-laying moths. The white cabbage moths get busy as soon as the rain has washed the dust off the broccoli. Regardless what I try to swat them with, be it broom or kettle, they change their flying course faster than a PT fighter plane dodging bullets, and I miss them by an inch or less. At last I just cut the broccoli and will destroy the plants myself.

The Strandquist seniors met on Thursday and checked out some materials for quilting. Iris Berggren took some home to cut for pieces. She is planning a rummage sale for next weekend and John Lofstrom is also having a sale. This will keep the area busy.

The annual dinner at Zion Church is on Sunday to keep the cemetery in shape. Because very few old timers buried there have friends or relatives, the proceeds help in the maintenances.

On Thursday evening the Women's missionary group from the Assembly of God Church had a 'Singspiration' at the Karlstad Nursing Home and then went to Marie Johnson's home for their meeting. After the meeting Marie, assisted by her daughter Denise Aakre, served a delicious luncheon.

While Judy Kleinwachter is recuperating the following have been to visit her this week: Pat Larson, Betty Piotrowszewski, Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, Father John Kleinwachter of Oklee, Jim and Josie Kleinwachter of Sauk Center, Marie Slotten, June, Kari and Marcus Kasprowicz. Judy is still a happy hostess regardless of the circumstances.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson drove to Red Lake Falls to see the damage the storm had inflicted on that town. Luckily only a big tree had gone down on Robert's property. Most places were less fortunate.

Ditches Will Be Made

"The board of the County Commissioners met at Red Lake Falls on Monday and the most important matter up for their consideration was the hearings on the various ditch petitions. The ditch designated as the Wyandotte and River Falls Ditch No. 2 was acted upon favorably and ordered constructed.

"This ditch commences just east of the iron bridge over the Red Lake River here and runs straight east a distance of over eight miles to section 10 of Wyandotte where it connects with Wyandotte ditch No. 1 which runs thence almost due south to the Clearwater river. This latter ditch was also ordered to be constructed. The specifications call for all the dirt excavated to be placed on the south side for the purpose of making a roadway, which when completed will be, without exception the best road in Red Lake county. These ditches will drain the big swamp out east of town, which has always been a drawback and menace to the prosperity of this community and will prove to be the best thing that ever happened for the development of the country east of here.

"Owing to a mistake in the advertising of the Wyandotte and River Falls Ditch No. 1, designed to drain the southern portions of the towns named, this project was knocked out on a technicality. This was a most unfortunate occurrence as the ditch is badly needed. There was considerable opposition offered this ditch by residents of the vicinity through which it was to run, they claiming that it was not located to the best advantage. In this case it is probable that a new petition will be presented and considered. It is likely that it will be constructed later on and probably in a more suitable location.

"Bids for work on the ditches ordered constructed will be advertised for at once and the work will be pushed this fall as far as practicable.

"The village of St. Hilaire was represented by a crowd of enthusiasts who pushed and pulled their best for the construction of the ditches. Among those who went down were: Hon. C. G. Rapp, Dan Patterson, Johns Pleth, Wm. Eickhoff, K. O. Gigstad, Nels Otterness, Alfred Damard, W. A. Sorsoleil, A. R. Jones, H. W. Peterson, Leonard Holmes and Harry Ives.

"One old fossil, who lives in River Falls township, was down with the intention of heading off the improvements. He has opposed every good thing that has been suggested in the last ten years and in this instance he seems to have made a nuisance of himself from mere force of habit and without reason. He is a chronic kicker and obstructionist and was very properly treated as such by the board. It is too bad that he can't pick up sense enough to kick himself out of the county, which action on his part would prove a decided relief and permanent benefit to this community at large."

HIGH SCHOOL.
Brick Building Will Be Built Next Spring.

"F. Strasshinger, the Crookston architect, was in the city Tuesday and submitted the plans to the school board for the proposed new school building. It is not the intention to erect the building this fall, although it is badly needed, but to wait until next spring. The cost of the proposed building will be $14,000 complete. It will be 72 by 62 feet, built of brick, and steam-heated. The first floor will contain four school rooms, while the upstairs will be devoted exclusively for high school purposes. It will contain a general assembly room, and two recitation rooms, one room for the principal, one for the teachers, a laboratory and a library. It will be modern in every respect, and a building that will in every way be a credit to the city."

REGULAR BOARD MEETING
INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT #564
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA
July 9, 2001, 6:00 p.m.
S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A regular meeting of the Independent School District #564 was held on Monday, July 9, 2001, in the conference room of the District Service Center. Chair Steve Young called the meeting to order at 6:00 p.m.

The following Board members were present: Carl Clark, Jean Larson, Barb Kalinoski, Mike Spears, Randy Twistol, Mike Barry and Steve Young. Clerk Jean Larson established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by R. Twistol and seconded by M. Spears to approve the agenda as amended. Motion carried unanimously.

Steve Young welcomed Superintendent Irv Peterson to his first official Board meeting.

Steve Young recognized the TRF Band Boosters for their donation of $297.00 to Franklin Middle School, for the purchase of instruments.

Harry Nelson clarified the bond issue, which is on the current agenda.

Irv Peterson notified the Board that there will be no Truth & Taxation Meeting held this fall. These meetings have been suspended for the current year, but will resume next year. Irv asked the Board about having a Board Retreat this summer/fall to discuss goal setting. This will be scheduled for some time in August or September.

A discussion was held regarding the hiring of either a new assistant principal at Challenger Elementary School or the hiring of a media generalist. After a lengthy conversation it was the consensus of the Board that the district hire a media generalist. No final decision will be made until Irv has had the opportunity to discuss the situation with Patrick Marolt.

A motion was made by J. Larson and seconded by B. Kalinoski to approve the minutes of the June 25, 2001 regular Board meeting as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by J. Larson and seconded by B. Kalinoski to approve the bills as submitted and on file in the School District Business Office. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by J. Larson and seconded by B. Kalinoski to accept the resignation of Roger Hindan as a cleaner, effective June 27, 2001. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by J. Larson and seconded by B. Kalinoski to approve the family/medical leave of absence without pay for Elise Row effective approximately September 4, 2001 through December 10, 2001. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by J. Larson and seconded by B. Kalinoski to approve the transfer of Paula Praska from .5 FTE 5th grade teacher to 1 FTE 4th grade teacher at Challenger Elementary effective the 2001-2002 school year. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by J. Larson and seconded by B. Kalinoski to approve the employment of Dawn Coauette as a reading teacher at Challenger Elementary School effective August 27, 2001, with salary and benefits per negotiated contract. This is a one-year assignment. Motion carried unanimously.

New technology revolutionizes the auction industry

At the opening of the National Auctioneers Convention Trade Show in Boise, Idaho on July 17, Barry White (C.E.O.), Roe Peterson (Software Engineer), and Clark Sather (U.S. Sales and Marketing Manager) of Live Global Bid.Com unveiled their real time streaming video, audio, and bidder participation technology via internet in the United States.

Unlike some online auctions, referred to as "static auctions" that may have a picture of the item being sold and bidding lasting up to several days, Live Global Bid enables buyers to watch live streaming video with audio and interact with the bidders at the actual auction site. When an online bidder wants to bid he/she simply clicks on the bid button with their mouse, and within 6/10's of a second the online bid will be on the auctioneer's screen where ever the auctioneer or bidder is in the world.

"The auction industry basically hasn't changed since it's beginning hundreds of years ago," said Clark Sather, U.S. Sales and Marketing Manager for Live Global Bid.Com and owner of the Clark A. Sather Auction and Realty Company of Greenbush. "The world is changing and the auction industry must change with it or the auction method of marketing will cease to be a viable way of marketing assets. This technology benefits both buyer and seller. Time is valuable, whereas many of today's buyers are managing large operations and are not willing or able to travel, sometimes several hundred miles, to an auction and then possibly not going home with what they came for only to end up with a wasted day."

"This technology gives buyers access to items that may not be available in their area, without ever leaving their home or office. The seller benefits are obvious in that instead of selling to a regional crowd of buyers, they are now offering their assets to a worldwide audience where economic conditions may be more favorable than in the area the auction is being conducted. More often educated sellers are asking what the auctioneer can offer them in the way of marketing to a larger group of buyers and insuring a successful auction. The enormous power of the internet utilizing this revolutionary technology is going to provide the seller with the qualified bidders it takes to have a successful auction regardless of unfavorable weather or economic conditions," said Sather.

Live Global Bid technology has been in development for almost three years and actual auction site testing at equipment, vehicle and livestock auctions has been ongoing since October of 2000. Patents are pending in the United States, Canada, and Europe.

For more information, contact Clark Sather at 1-800-950-3832.

Cindy Watterlund and Kathy (Snookie) Britten planned and had 29 cousins together for a reunion at the Jim and Cindy home in East Grand Forks over the weekend. Everyone had a great time and decided to keep up the practice in future years.

Roy caught the bus from the hospital in Thief River Falls, and went to Fargo today leaving all the things he does around here like chauffeuring folks around and running errands and answering the phone, giving me a chance to write. I'm amazed at all he does and still gets time to read the news.

A few years ago, a very nice lady brought us an amaryllis, which had bloomed for her one time and she had read that Ray had a way of getting them to bloom again and again. Well, I wish she could see it now. It bloomed in the fall like amaryllis do and after being out this summer, when I came to put them to rest for a couple of months in the basement, it was blooming again!! She should come to see it. I'd like to see her again. I'd also love to have her see the big dahlia odds, they are lovely.

Satellite images help show water quality changes in Minnesota lakes

Pictures taken from space are helping University of Minnesota researchers monitor lake water quality in Minnesota.

Satellite imagery is a new way of providing information on lakes. And its big advantage is that it measures water quality in all regional lakes from a single satellite image, says Patrick L. Brezonik, program director of the U of M Water Resources Center.

A newly released study that Brezonik worked on measured water quality in the Twin Cities metropolitan area lakes over the last 25 years. Of the roughly 500 lakes in the seven-county area, most have not changed significantly.

However, water quality in 31 of the Twin Cities area lakes, including Lake Minnetonka, improved in the course of the 25-year study. But the water became less clear in about 20 of the lakes.

"The satellite imagery agreed closely with ground level observations," Brezonik says. Water clarity is closely related to algae growth, and lake water deemed more clear by the satellite imagery had fewer algae in ground level observations. In the study, the light reflected from lakes in satellite images was calibrated using water samples collected on lakes by local citizen monitoring groups and government agencies.

Brezonik says using satellite imagery to monitor lakes that aren't included in ground-based monitoring programs will greatly increase the lake water clarity information available to regional decision-makers. Presently, only 20 percent of the lakes in the seven-county Twin Cities metropolitan area are included in ground-based monitoring programs.

The Metropolitan Council funded the Twin Cities lakes project. Brezonik and co-workers have also recently concluded a similar statewide study expanding the satellite technique to survey over 10,500 Minnesota lakes. This study, funded by the NASA Upper Midwest Regional Earth Science Applications Center, will also classify lake water clarity in Wisconsin and Michigan.

You can learn more about the study, including how your favorite lake fared, by going to http://resac.gis.umn.edu on the Internet. You can also check the U of M Extension Service Water Quality site at www.extension.umn.edu/water. There's information on drinking water quality, water quality and agriculture, soil and water conservation, sewage treatment, waste management and recreation.

Sixth Annual Small Business Survival Index ranks the states

The Small Business Survival Committee (SBSC) has released its sixth annual rankings of the states according to their respective policy climates for small business and entrepreneurship in the "Small Business Survival Index 2001."

According to SBSC chief economist Raymond J. Keating, author of the study, "'The Small Business Survival Index 2001' offers a gauge by which to measure and compare how government in the states treat small businesses and entrepreneurs. Since small business serves as the backbone of the U.S. economy — for example, by providing the bulk of new jobs and majority of innovations — every state and local lawmaker should be concerned with the well-being of small business."

"In an increasingly mobile and competitive national economy, differences in government-imposed costs of doing business can make a huge difference between whether a state grows economically or falls behind," said SBSC president Darrell McKigney. "The purpose of the 'Small Business Survival Index 2001' is to let citizens and lawmakers know how they stack up with the rest of the country in terms of being friendly to small businesses and economic growth."

The "Small Business Survival Index 2001" ties together 17 major government-imposed or government-related costs impacting small businesses and entrepreneurs across a broad spectrum of industries and types of businesses – personal income taxes, capital gains taxes, corporate income taxes, property taxes, sales taxes, death taxes, unemployment taxes, health insurance taxes, electricity costs, workers' compensation costs, crime rates, right to work status, number of bureaucrats, tax limitation status, Internet taxes, gas taxes, and state minimum wages. These measures are combined into one index number — the Small Business Survival Index.

Keating notes: "The Small Business Survival Index manages to capture much of the governmental burdens impacting critical economic decisions — particularly affecting investment and entrepreneurship — state by state."

The most entrepreneur-friendly states under the "Small Business Survival Index 2001" are: 1) Nevada, 2) South Dakota, 3) Washington, 4) Wyoming, 5) Florida, 6) Texas, 7) New Hampshire, 8) Alabama, 9) Mississippi, 10) Tennessee, 11) Colorado, 12) Michigan, 13) Illinois, 14) Alaska, and 15) Virginia. In contrast, the most anti-entrepreneur policy environments are offered by the following: 37) New Jersey, 38) Montana, 39) Iowa, 40) Ohio, 41) West Virginia, 42) Vermont, 43) New York, 44) California, 45) New Mexico, 46) Minnesota, 47) Kansas, 48) Maine, 49) Hawaii, 50) Rhode Island, and 51) District of Columbia.

Keating concludes: "The best policy environment for entrepreneurship consists of low taxes, limited government, restrained regulation, and government protecting life, limb and property. States following such a governing philosophy will reap great rewards from America's entrepreneurs, including faster economic growth and increased job creation."

Outdoor education at the Sanctuary

Elementary students from Warren/Alvarado/Oslo recently visited the Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon Sanctuary for an afternoon of outdoor fun and education.

The children, belonging to the after-school program "kids.com" and lead by their instructor Rachel Peterson, enjoyed environmental education programming administered by Sanctuary director Blane Klemek.

Following a picnic lunch at the Visitor Center, Klemek lead the students on a trail hike around the Sanctuary ponds and woodlands. The children learned about goldenrod galls and the insects that cause the growths; they learned about purple loosestrife and the problems that the plant is associated with; and about milkweed plants and the insects that feed on them. They were also delighted to observe a white-footed mouse inside one of the many "mouse houses" that are found on the Sanctuary, along with being treated to panoramic views from the tops of the Sanctuary's scenic overlooks.

The hike concluded with a pond study to learn about aquatic life in one of the many Sanctuary wetlands. Here the students used dip nets to capture such insect life-forms as backswimmers, water boatmen, dragon and damsel fly larvae, and stonefly larvae. Some students were lucky enough to capture wood frogs and small minnows, too. The captured creatures were placed inside an aquarium filled with clean water where all students were able to observe close-up what everyone had captured.

Veterans receive medals

■ Two area residents honored Monday night in TRF

Monday night Howard Ross of Warren and Ernest Nelson of Thief River Falls received medals awarded to them for their military service during World War II.

Both men avoid the limelight as much as possible, but Monday's ceremony, conducted by staff of Sen. Mark Dayton, placed them both squarely in the limelight.

"Someone said I am a hero," said Nelson who served in the Army during World War II. "No, I don't consider myself a hero, but I can say I fought beside heroes, buddies who died for our country. They should certainly be considered heroes. I think of them on days like this," said Nelson.

Nelson explained that over the years he had lost track of his medals. He admitted that he really didn't want to dwell on his time in the service, but recently his grandchildren began asking questions about his time in the service. He feels it is important that they understand the importance and underlying reasons for serving in the military.

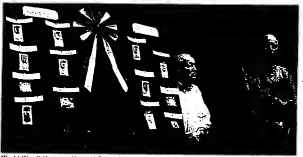
Monday night, the medals he lost were replaced.

Howard Ross of Warren never received a number of medals he earned during World War II. Like Nelson, Ross says little about his service.

Ross was a gunner/radio operator on a B-17 in the Airforce during World War II. He was shot down and was a prisoner of war for 17 months. Of that experience, Ross says they treated him relatively well. The biggest thing, he said, was a shortage of food.

Ross was awarded the Good Conduct medal, the World War II Victory medal, European-African-Middle East Campaign medal, the Honorable Service Lapel button for World War II, the PDW medal, the American Campaign medal, and the meritorious unit emblem. Ross was also awarded the Purple Heart, but it didn't arrive in time.

Nelson was presented the Good Conduct medal, World War II Victory medal, European-African-Middle East Campaign medal, American Campaign medal, Honorable Service Lapel button for World War II, and Expert badge with carbine bar.



World War II Veterans Howard Ross of Warren and Ernest Nelson of Thief River Falls were awarded medals for their service during World War II Monday. The ceremony, conducted by staff for Senator Mark Dayton, was held at Lincoln High School Auditorium.

Back to School Night on Thursday

How involved should parents be in their child's education?

by David Hill
Editor

Being involved in your child's education is one way to help ensure his or her success in school; but, how involved should parents be in their child's education, and in what activities?

Bob Wayne, principal of Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls, believes it's important for parents to be involved in their child's education. One of the first, and best ways to participate is to attend the "Back to School Night" at Franklin Middle School from 6 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, August 30.

Each year Franklin Middle School holds "Back to School Night," which is designed as a mock "day at school." "It has really worked well," said Wayne. Parents, he explained, get a feel for what students go through each day, and get to visit with teachers.

The night will consist of a structured mini day with the first bell ringing at 5:56 p.m. Parents and students then follow their students' class schedule, going from class to class.

The event is mostly informational. During the short periods, teachers will discuss expectations, classroom rules, and supplies the students will need. Other issues, such as the Graduation Rule, may also be discussed.

Students won't receive the school handbook, which is a compilation of school rules, policies and procedures, until the first week of school. Wayne said he has found that students respond better if he or the assistant principal deliver the handbooks to students during a presentation to each classroom.

The event on August 30 gives parents an opportunity to ask questions and find out what they need to know. Parents should never be afraid to ask questions.

Wayne encourages parents to be open with teachers. When report cards are handed out, for example, he suggests constant, and open communication with teachers. Use their voice mail and e-mail, he said.

Volunteering at, and participating in school programs is another important opportunity for parents to learn more about what takes place at their school. Wayne said the school district has a wonderful volunteer program, and volunteers are always needed. Wayne said he's never heard a student complain that their parent is too involved.

Wayne also believes it's important for parents to encourage students to participate in extracurricular activities. He said he finds that students do much better in school

Pretty in Pink

While each of the other members of her family have his or her favorite flower, four-year-old Makayla Peterson simply declares, "I love pink!" Makayla is the daughter of David and Betty Peterson, winners of this year's Pennington County Soil Water Conservation District Rural Beautification award. A story about the Petersons appears on Page 4 of this issue with color photos of their flower beds appearing on the back page of this section.

Mail service draws many complaints

■ Many are upset with service since move to Grand Forks

by David Hill
Editor

Representatives of Sen. Mark Dayton, Sen. Paul Wellstone and Congressman Collin Peterson heard complaints of poor mail service from several constituents in Thief River Falls Monday night.

With over 100 people in attendance at the meeting, representatives were honest in stating that it would be very difficult to reverse the decision made to move the processing operation from Thief River Falls to Grand Forks, N.D., completed last spring. But the staff representatives said the congressional delegation was united in its determination to improve mail service to the area. They promised to compile the comments they received at the meeting in a report and present them to the Post Master General.

Thief River Falls and a portion of northwestern Minnesota is included in the Dakota Division of the United States Postal Service, a quasi-public agency. Mail from this region goes to Grand Forks and Fargo, not Minneapolis for sorting. Until last spring, Thief River Falls operated as a processing center.

Last spring, all three of northwest Minnesota's congressional delegation and a delegation from Thief River Falls, met with the Post Master General. Officials from Thief River Falls said they came away from the meeting with a positive impression. As a result of this meeting they had hoped that northwestern Minnesota would be included in the Minneapolis district for the United States Postal Service, and had in addition, secured a number of promises that mail would not be delayed.

Monday night, some of the city officials and people in attendance called the promises outright lies.

For nearly an hour and a half after introductions, citizen after citizen repeated stories of mail delayed beyond postal standards. Banks and business leaders reported assessing late payments against customers, who in good faith and in a timely manner, had mailed their bills, which were subsequently delayed en route. Lawyers and doctors reported delays in delivery of important documents and prescriptions. Newspapers reported late deliveries and declining subscriptions. According to a representative of Digi-Key, a second study of postal service indicated that 20 percent of their mail was delivered outside postal service standards. A representative of a bank noted that in some instances it now takes between four to eight days for mail to travel between nearby cities. The City of Thief River Falls Utilities Department identified a number of bills that had been mailed to the utilities office in a timely fashion, but had arrived in Thief River Falls anywhere between eight and 11 days after they had been mailed.

Of course, there were reports of mail being routed to places like Hawaii. One gentleman said he would not have attended the meeting but for the fact that it took seven days for a birthday card to arrive at his residence.

Several people presented representatives at the meeting with actual documentation in the form of cancelled envelopes. Officials encouraged citizens to send them their cancelled mail, and to fill out the "Consumer Service Cards" they can find at the post office. In addition, they provided those in attendance with copies of the "Consumer Service Cards."

Postal officials were informed of the meeting taking place Monday night but not requested to be present. When postal officials in Civil Air Patrol cadet program helps dreams of flight happen

by Jeff Achen
Reporter

As local Kiwanis Club members watched a short PR video on the Civil Air Patrol (CAP) early one morning, Cadet Jeff Blakely grinned. A participant in the CAP cadet program, he had attended one of the "camps" shown on the tape, but had a slightly less charming experience.

"They didn't show all the activities at camp," Blakely said. "We were all pretty scared to get out of the van (when we first got there). There was a lot of yelling."

Blakely and fellow cadet, Cassie Hagman, each remember the military-style strictness with which they were inspected, trained, and expected to adhere to during the one-week CAP camp. But, they weren't in the military. In fact, they're only 15 years old.

They are part of a CAP program that helps young people learn about aviation, military life, emergency services and teamwork. A little like the Boy Scouts of America or other similar organizations, the cadet program helps young aviation enthusiasts learn skills, get oriented with aircraft, attend camps that teach survival and search and rescue techniques, and participate in a National Cadet Competition.

Attendance at the camps is not required to participate in the cadet program. Instead, a yearly fee of $22 is required and a book package must be purchased for $15, which contains information on aviation education and leadership. There are meetings once a week at the Thief River Falls airport. Currently, there are five cadets and 21 adult

Effective rural senior meal service requires the involvement of neighbors working together. This need is currently being met by the combined effort of many individuals. Each weekday in the Viking and Holt communities, meals for seniors are prepared, transported and home-delivered by local persons concerned for their neighborhood seniors. Volunteers also contribute time as mealsite host/hostesses and in meal ticket sales. Recently, a donation from Lutheran Brotherhood/West Valley Branch provided new containers for use in transporting and delivering senior meals. Tri-Community Living at Home/Block Nurse Program, which coordinates service for the Viking and Holt LSS Senior Meal sites extends a sincere thank you to each person who has contributed in any way to this valuable service and urges continued community support. For more information call 874-2256.

Police answer 9-1-1 call and cite youth for drinking alcohol

A 9-1-1 call answered at the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center resulted in tickets for drinking under age to four youth.

Speed dialing justice. At 10:33 p.m. on August 21, the law enforcement center received a 9-1-1 call. The dispatcher answered the call, but although he could hear voices in the background, he couldn't get anyone to answer. After listening to the voices in the background, the dispatcher was able to determine that the call was coming from a cell phone in a car and that the occupants were drinking alcohol. When an officer, who had been dispatched to locate the source of the 9-1-1 call, passed the vehicle, the dispatcher heard the occupants in the vehicle say "there goes the police," naming the officer. The officer was informed by the dispatcher that he had just passed the vehicle. The officer identified the vehicle and made a traffic stop. In doing so, he noticed that there was a cooler in the back seat of the vehicle. When asked to step out of the car, one of the occupants did so with a beer can in his hand. The occupants questioned the officer on why he stopped the vehicle, and the officer informed them of the 9-1-1 call whereupon he picked up a cellular phone on the floor of the car that he had noticed. Speaking into the cell phone, the officer spoke to the dispatcher who was still listening to the cell phone. Through the officers' radio, the dispatcher informed the officer that this was, indeed, the telephone used in the 9-1-1 call.

All occupants of the vehicle were underage and had been drinking alcohol. Charges of consumption under age are pending against three of the occupants: 18-year-old Stephanie Jo Stelton, a 16-year-old female and a 16-year-old male, all from Thief River Falls. A charge of consuming alcohol while driving is pending against the 16-year-old male driver from Thief River Falls.

Marijuana in a car. On August 22 at 7:34 p.m. the law enforcement center received a call from a convenience store clerk who said he had noticed a marijuana plant in the front seat of a car parked in the store parking lot. Upon arriving at the scene, officers located the vehicle and observed one of the two occupants trying to hide the plant in the front seat of the car. When the officer asked what the plant was, the occupant allegedly said, "Isn't it obvious?"

Dustin Richard Lamppa, 21, Thief River Falls, faces a charge of possession of a small amount of marijuana.

Burglary. On August 22 at 9:22 a.m., the Pennington County Sheriff's department received a report of a burglary at a residences in Rocksbury township. Taken in the burglary were a compact disc player, a receiver, speakers, a dart case and darts, a skill saw, an eight ball from a pool table, and two 12-packs of beer. The total theft loss was estimated at $800. The incident remains under investigation.

On August 25 at 9:44 a.m. police received a report of a burglary at a residence in Greendale Manor. The resident reported that someone broke into the residence and took over $400 in cash from a purse.

Alcohol. On August 22 at 3:31 a.m. police received a complaint of loud noise coming from occupants at a house in the 300 block of North Kendall. Charges of consumption under age are pending against: Joni Marie Green, 19, Thief River Falls, Amber Natasha Roger Fogelson, 19, Thief River Falls; Kyal Scott Brandt, 19, Thief River Falls; and Jade Asten Gores, 19, Thief River Falls.

On August 22 at 3:55 a.m. police cited Kent Justin Guderjahn, 19, Sarles, N.D., for minor in consumption and obstruction of the legal process after he ran from police. Also cited was Stephen Joseph Allery, 19, Grand Forks, N.D.

On August 21 at 10:28 p.m. police investigated a report of minors drinking alcohol at a location in the 100 block of East Fourth Street. Charges of consumption under age are pending against a 15-year-old male from Thief River Falls, and a 16-year-old male from Badger.

On August 22 at 10:15 p.m. Morris Floyd Johnson, 18, Chicago, was cited for consumption under age after an officer on bike patrol noticed that he was drinking alcohol.

On August 25 at 12:18 a.m. Myron Dean Sunram, 24, Thief River Falls, was stopped by police while driving in the area of Eighth Street East. A charge of second degree driving while intoxicated is pending against Sunram.

On August 25 at 3:30 a.m. a sheriff's deputy received two calls about a man in a vehicle stopped on County road 26, two miles north of Highway 1 east. Upon investigation, the driver was identified at Jeffrey Peter Dahlen, 47, Goodridge. Charges are pending against Dahlen for driving while intoxicated.

Theft. On August 12 at 12:05 p.m. law enforcement received a report of a theft from a car parked near Countryside Trailer Court. Music equipment and CDs valued at $730 were taken from the vehicle.

Accidents. On August 23 at 11:32 a.m. police received a report of an accident in the 100 block of West First Street. Anthony Ross Hultgren, Karlstad, was driving a car east on First Street and was stopped in traffic, when another car, driven by Kenny Allan Lubarski, Thief River Falls, collided with the rear of the Hultgren vehicle. Damages were estimated at $1,000 to the vehicle driven by Hultgren, and $2,000 to the vehicle driven by Lubarski. There were no injuries, and no citations were issued.

Vandalism. On August 25 at 2:43 p.m. police received a complaint of children playing in a building under construction. Upon arrival police located the youth who had sprayed shaving cream and other substances on walls, floors and ceilings of the rooms that were under construction. In addition, they allegedly poured glue down some drains. The damage loss is still being determined. Charges are pending against two 13-year-olds, and one 12-year-old.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Steam Engine Operators Ward Sinn of Thief River Falls, and Kent Broten of Newfolden enjoy operating the steam engine at Old Mill State Park every year. Both are licensed operators, who have operated the mill at the event for the past 20 years or so. During the remainder of the year, Sinn is a custodian at Franklin Middle School, and Broten is a farmer. Both noted that the steam engine at the park is in good operating condition. About 600 people attended Grinding Days at Old Mill State Park last weekend.

LaVonna Forsberg was a special guest at Grinding Days at Old Mill State Park in Thief River Falls. LaVonna was selected last year to create the design for the Minnesota State Park Vehicle Permit. The image captured the Snowy Lady Slippers, the Larson Mill at Old Mill State Park and the Northern Lights. LaVonna is pictured standing in front of a print of the image. Forsberg noted how many people who visited with her on Sunday have very strong feelings about the mill.

Grinding Day at Old Mill attracts a large crowd

Over 600 park visitors had a glimpse of history at Old Mill State Park when the Case 359 Steam engine fired up and the granite mill stones started turning during Grinding Day at Old Mill State Park on Sunday.

The whistle blew and the stones turned, and flour was made and sold. In fact, the Marshall County Historical Society sold 52 bags of flour and 34 of bran. Fresh wheat bread, homemade butter and Aunt Cookies Red Rhubarb Spreadable Fruit were available to try at the event, thanks to the Friends of Old Mill State Park and Terry Potucek. A special surprise guest on site was "Lena," (a.k.a. Ethel Thorlacius of Stephen) who told visitors about the good old days and offered them a little jam. Lena will be making other appearances in the "nordvest" in the near future. Demonstrating the old fashioned craft of weaving was Vicki Gast of Newfolden; and, LaVonne Forsberg of Thief River Falls displayed her artwork, which featured the 2001 Annual Minnesota State Park Vehicle Permit, which includes the image of the Larson Mill at the park. Old fashioned food, including fresh home-made doughnuts, also was sold by the Viking Volcanoes 4-H Club all afternoon.

Grinding Day is a cooperative event between Old Mill State Park, the Friends of Old Mill State Park volunteers, and the Marshall County Historical Society.

Vicki Gast of Newfolden demonstrated loom weaving to visitors attending Grinding Day at Old Mill State Park on Sunday, August 26.

Flowers, vegetables, trees, grain, even children — David and Betty Peterson enjoy growing it

Petersons are winners of SWCD Rural Beautification Contest

■ Petersons will be honored at annual SWCD banquet next spring

Their yard and garden has been shared with others in the past as it was one of the first homes featured in 1999 by the local Master Gardener group for what has become its annual tour.

Flowers, vegetables, trees, grain, even children. . You name it. David and Betty Peterson enjoy growing it.

The Petersons have been named as this year's Soil Water Conservation District's pick for its annual Rural Beautification Award. Nominations were sought from township officials as well as the general public for the 2001 award which included the townships of Norden, Silverton, North and Rocksbury townships.

The Petersons will be honored at the annual SWCD banquet next spring. Named honorable mention winners in this year's contest were Tim and Connie Miller of North township.

David and Betty and their three children, Katrina, 10, Ethan, 8, and Makayla, 4, reside in Silverton township about four and one-half miles northeast of Thief River Falls. They built their home in 1991 across the road from the rural farm home where David grew up. David farms with his brother, Rick, and dad, Arnold, in addition to being a math and computer instructor at Lincoln High School.

As their home is not located along a major highway, it's evident that the Petersons' yard and gardens have not been created for show but rather for their own enjoyment. "We enjoy it," is the simple statement that one can expect to hear either Betty or David make.

"We" extends to the children, too. While, as one would expect, they don't get too excited about the weeding, Betty reports that they enjoy watering and, of course, harvesting garden produce. The traditions that the Peterson children are enjoying did not begin with their parents but rather generations ago. David says his grandmother was an avid gardener, and Betty, who grew up in the Oklee area, learned her canning skills from her mother.

Family traditions also include exhibits at the annual county fair where this year David earned a grand champion ribbon with his seed samples and Betty won the top award for her pear jam entry. In future years, the fair will include more entries by the youngsters. Katrina and Ethan are already members of the Silverton 4-H Club, and Makayla is sure to follow in their footsteps.

While their building site was nothing more than an open field 10 years ago, it is now surrounded by trees. The tall shelter belt tree provide protection for the pines that David and Betty nurtured from six-inch seedlings. The soil around the pines has been kept tilled, contributing to their rapid and uniform growth. "I call it 'tickling their toes or roots,'" David says as he points out how much bigger the pines in the cultivated areas are compared to those in the landscaped yard. In their early stages, the pines also frequently required watering, an arduous task the couple remembers vividly but considers worthwhile as they look at the fruits of their labor with well-deserved pride.

The assortment of flowers that surround the house and occupy places in several beds around the yard provide a kaleidoscope of color throughout the warm weather season.

After everyone had his or say about which tulip bulbs to purchase, the Petersons found themselves planting about 400 tulip bulbs. The tulips along with bright yellow daffodils and colorful and aromatic hyacinth offer the first bold splash of color in the spring.

Color in bright splashes can be found in beds around the family's home and in the yard throughout the summer and into fall. A variety of old farm implements and tools have been artfully placed among the flowers and plants, creating additional visual interest in the setting.

As the bright colors fade and summer turns to fall, produce in the Petersons' vegetable garden provides excitement for the family, and David compares the pumpkins, gourds and squash that seem to magically appear to gifts.

By that time, Betty has been busy for weeks making jams and jellies from the strawberries, raspberries and grapes, salsa with the tomatoes and of course, pickles with the multitude of cucumbers grown in the garden.

In recent years, the family has expanded their Christmas decorations, and as the evergreen trees have grown so has the number of lights required. David has also enjoyed making the 50 to 60 wood decorations that adorn various locations of the yard, and the spot near the road that was built up to feature the family's nativity scene became another flower bed this year.

To keep their holiday lighting tradition from becoming an electrical nightmare, the couple has had a number of electrical outlets installed in several locations. Like their off the beaten trail gardens, the family doesn't necessarily put up the holiday display for show but is happy when others have the opportunity to enjoy it.

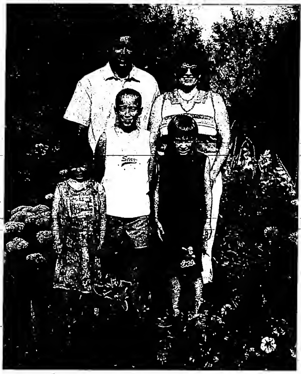
Their yard and garden has been shared with others in the past as it was one of the first homes featured in 1999 by the local Master Gardener group for what has become its annual tour.

Whether they're flower gardening, raising fruits and vegetables or planting trees, David and Betty Peterson are receptive to trying new things and consider their gardening hobby to be a "learn as you go" adventure.

Each member of the family has his or her own favorites.

Each member of the family has his or her own favorites to when it comes to what's good to eat and what flower is the most beautiful.

Katrina likes roses, and Ethan enjoys tiger lilies. David is clear about his preference for gladiola. Betty, although partial to roses, has a more difficult time choosing the flower she loves the most. Four-year-old Makayla, however, is adamant about her choice. "I love pink!" she declares. That will include numerous varieties of flowers which will, of course, match her carefully chosen dress and shoes.



Gardening and yard work is a family affair for David and Betty Peterson and their children, 10-year-old Katrina, eight-year-old Ethan and four-year-old Makayla. The Petersons were recently named the 2001 winners of the Rural Beautification contest of the Pennington County Soil Water Conservation District. The Petersons live about four and one-half miles northeast of Thief River Falls in Silverton township.

Misconceptions about lawn seeding are common

Late summer grass seeding is more likely to be successful if some common misconceptions don't get in the way. Deb Brown, horticulturist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service, cites these misconceptions:

- Spring is the best time to seed grass.
- If you seed thickly, new grass will choke out weeds.
- Don't fertilize-it will burn newly-seeded grass.
- You must keep grass seeds and young grass constantly wet.
- You shouldn't mow young, thin-bladed grass.

"Spring is actually the second-best time to plant grass seed," says Brown. "In Minnesota, the best chance for success occurs when you seed between mid-August and mid-September."

Warm daytime temperatures during late summer and early fall encourage rapid sprouting, Brown points out. This means there should be plenty of time for good root development before hard frosts end growth. Longer and cooler nights are good for the new grass, and rainfall is likely to increase in September.

While too much fertilizer can burn grass, Brown recommends incorporating mild fertilizer into the soil when you plant grass seed. She says the best time to work phosphorus and potassium into the root zone is before planting.

"If you've never had your soil tested, this would be a good time to find out what nutrients you need to add for good grass growth," says Brown. "Or you could simply apply a starter fertilizer or mild organic fertilizer such as Milorganite or Sustane. Don't use 'weed and feed' products, which are fertilizers containing a weed-killer."

It's not necessary to keep grass seeds constantly wet, says Brown, and would be almost impossible to do anyway. Watering lightly a couple of times a day is sufficient in all but the hottest weather. As seeds sprout and begin to grow, gradually shift to deeper but less frequent watering. Overwatered, saturated soil leads to root rots and other problems.

Brown says it's okay to mow young grass. "When it reaches a height of three and one-half to four inches, cut it back an inch," she says. "Just be sure your lawnmower blade is sharp so it doesn't rip the grass. Gradually reduce the height as temperatures cool. If you've overseeded thin areas of existing lawn, mow whenever the more established grass needs it. It shouldn't hurt your new grass."

Secretary of State introduces new Web site for kids

Minnesota Secretary of State Mary Kiffmeyer today introduced her office's new Web site for elementary students, just in time for the new academic year.

The site can be viewed at http://www.sos.state.mn.us/Kids/index.html.

"I think it's important to engage students at an early age," Kiffmeyer said. "Kids are curious about many things when they're young, and we want their natural curiosity to lead them to being proud of their state and eager to participate as good citizens. I hope the new Web page helps to accomplish that."

The new Web site includes sections about Minnesota, state government and the secretary of state's office. The site features a variety of puzzles designed to engage students in actively learning about Minnesota and government. The Office of the Secretary of State previously constructed a site for older students at http://www.sos.state.mn.us./Kids/kidshome.html.

"Much of the information included on the new kids' Web site came about in response to the recommendations of an elementary student focus group we convened beforehand. I hope our Web site reflects the great suggestions brought forth in the focus group session," Kiffmeyer said.

"We welcome suggestions, especially from young people and teachers, on how we can make our kids' web site even more valuable and more interesting for them in the future," she concluded.

Down On The Farm

Eric Bergeson

When school cranks up in September, I sometimes feel a couple of pangs of nostalgia. For more than twenty autumns I either clambered onto the school bus or dragged my stuff back to the dorm.

It has been years since I felt the adrenaline of the first day of class. New bus route. New classmates. New teachers. Old classmates with new looks. New books. Very exciting times.

Maybe too exciting. Memories from school years are seared on my brain. Even as my 20-year class reunion approaches, I still have dreams that I miss the school bus, flunk algebra tests, forget to go to class for weeks on end, or find myself on the football field with an entire town's happiness on my shoulders and no clue where to turn.

I never played football, so I don't know where that nightmare comes from. But I did act in several school plays.

Every few nights I end up back on stage with a very small role. It is the evening of the first performance. I don't know my lines and I have lost my copy of the script. I try to wing it. My improvisation ruins the plot. The crowd leaves in disgust. The wrath of the play director awaits me off-stage.

Unlearned lines are a small embarrassment compared to finding one's self back in seventh grade wrapped in a skimpy afghan. All night I question: Do you think anybody will notice that I forgot to get dressed? You try to act as if nothing's wrong and so does everybody else, but you know what they're thinking.

What a relief to wake up in the morning and realize that I never have to go to school again. Never again will I have to take a test, learn lines, try to be athletic, or search my locker in vain for clothing. Never again will I miss a school bus, fall off the merry-go-round, or get picked last for dodgeball.

By comparison, the daytime rigors of adulthood are minor. Death, taxes, bankruptcy, traffic tickets, blizzards, serious illness, tragedy, loss of hair—I can handle all those things, just don't make me face my English teacher after I've skipped her class for the last two months.

Some adults tell kids to enjoy their school years. "These are the best times of your life!" they say.

Really. Have these people forgotten the Darwinian realities of elementary school, the merciless teasing, the cliques, the social anxiety, the fear of not wearing the right clothes, the pressure to be good at sports you hate? Don't these people have dreams at night which remind them of how terrifying school really was?

No, in September I wake up every morning thankful that I can't miss the bus any more because I have my own in the garage. I can't flunk because I am not in any classes. And I can't forget my lines because I am not in the play. The nightmare is over.

SPEAKING OF . . .

...Did You Have A Busy Day?

I just wanted to let you know I have recently been diagnosed with AAADD (Age-Activated Attention Deficit Disorder).

This is how it goes...I decide to do the laundry..I start down the hall and notice the newspaper on the table. Ok. I'm going to do the laundry...

But first I'm going to read the newspaper. After that, I notice the mail on the table. Ok. I'll just put the newspaper in the recycle stack...

But first I'll look through the pile of mail and see if there are any bills to be paid. Yes, now where is the checkbook? Oops...there's the empty glass from yesterday on the coffee table. I'm going to look for that checkbook...

But first I need to put the glass in the sink. I head for the kitchen, look out the window, notice my poor flowers need a drink of water. I put the glass in the sink and there's the remote for the television on the kitchen counter. What's it doing there? I'll just put it away.

But first I need to water those plants. I head for the door and.. aaaagh! I stepped on the cat (dog)! Cat (dog) needs to be fed. Ok, I'll put the remote away and water the plants....

But first I need to feed the cat (dog).

End of day: laundry is not done. Newspapers are still on the floor. Glass is still in the sink. Bills are not paid. Checkbook is still lost, and...the cat (dog) ate the remote control.

And when I try to figure out how come nothing got done today, I'm baffled because...I know I was busy all day.

I realize this condition is serious. I'd get help...

But first I think I'll check my e-mail..

My cousin e-mailed this to me. Isn't it just the way the day goes for most of us? My weekends are mostly spent this way. Sometimes I wonder how I get anything done, what with all the time I spend getting to what needs doing.

I don't know who wrote it - probably some poor soul like me who comes to Monday morning wondering where the weekend went and why nothing got done. And how was your weekend?

Honey products were among the sweet offerings at Bountiful Harvest at Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village on Saturday. In addition to the farmers market-like sale, the event included pie, ice cream and coffee served in the Engelstad building.

PARENTING TIPS
Preparing Your Child For School

Starting school is a big step in a life of a child (and his or her parents). Parents of young children often ask about what they can do to prepare their child for school; the first day and all the rest. These parents need to know that preparing children for school is like preparing them for life.

It happens little by little over a long period of time. It's not something you sit down and do in one hour.

Experts recognize that what you, the parent, do during the first years of your child's life will greatly influence his learning and his ability to learn. Parents, who are actively involved in their children's lives, help their children become more successful in and out of school. They can do this by spending time with them, talking with them, listening to them, and taking them places. If you would like to know more about what parents can do to stimulate their child's desire to learn, contact the Early Childhood Family Education program by calling 681-8670.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Have conversations with your child. In other words, exchange ideas, encourage your child to express his/her thoughts, listen as well as talk to your child.

Community Technology Leadership seminars in Greenbush, Crookston

Small rural communities can't afford to be on the wrong side of the digital divide - lacking the telecommunications and information technology their businesses and citizens need in the 21st Century.

A series of Community Technology Leadership seminars in September for community leaders will emphasize education and cooperative action to help communities gain market strength.

"Community leaders know that a top reason why businesses come, stay or grow in their communities is telecommunications and information technology capacity," said Jane Leonard, a course instructor and chair of the Minnesota Rural Partners board.

"Leaders need to plan ahead and consider the issues proactively, instead of waiting until there's a crisis," Leonard says. "In the 21st Century you can't sustain most businesses, schools, hospitals or governments for very long without high capacity information and telecommunications technology."

Whether you're a veteran of digital divide battles or new to the scene, Leonard said the seminars will provide fresh insights and a deeper understanding of market complexities that can work for or against you. Regulatory, social, economic, leadership and technological dynamics will be discussed.

Two seminars will be offered in each of Minnesota's economic development regions. In the northwest, the locations are: Greenbush, Senior Citizens Center, Sept. 11, 1:30 to 4:30 p.m., and Crookston City Hall on Sept. 12, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. The cost of the seminar is $40.

Detailed information on seminar topics, instructors, schedule, benefits, who should attend, and registration procedure can be found at www.extension.umn.edu/techleadership. The University of Minnesota's College of Continuing Education and the U of M Extension Service are sponsoring the seminar.

Registration is available online via that Web site, or call the Pennington County Extension office at 218-683-7030 or 1-800-681-2116 for a brochure, which has the registration form included for mail-in registration.

Farmers urged to work for new farm bill during state fair

"Many farmers talk to their elected officials during the state fair, and farmers should use that opportunity to ask for a better federal farm bill," according to Minnesota Farmers Union President Dave Frederickson. "Congress will return to work on the farm bill after Labor Day so the timing is important for farmers who want real change."

To help farmers make that point, the Minnesota Farmers Union will have a petition for citizens to sign at its booth located one block west of the Snelling Avenue gate on Dan Patch Avenue.

The Farmers Union is asking Congress to adopt a new farm bill with a better marketing loan program, counter cyclical payments, more support for dairy producers and a good conservation program. Improved marketing loans would mean better crop prices, and a counter cyclical plan would help farmers through the times of lowest prices.

"The so-called 'Freedom to Farm' plan has been a disaster for farmers and actually increased farmers' reliance on government payments," Frederickson said. "A new farm bill should help farmers get a good price from the marketplace, not the government. That's an idea we believe everyone can support — from farmers to main street business people — because it is important to rural communities."

Details of the Farmers Union bill can be found on the National Farmers Union' web site at www.nfu.org.

MN Meat program supports business

by Gene Hugoson
Commissioner
MN Dept. of Agriculture

Farmers typically get less than 30 cents of every dollar an American consumer spends on food. Those of us who farm in Minnesota need to do what we can to capture more of that consumer dollar, and our State Meat Inspection Program has become a wonderful tool to help us do that.

Introduced by the Minnesota Department of Agriculture in January 1999, the program has proven to be a big winner for farmers and small-scale meat processors. By shortening the distance from farm gate to dinner plate, the program gives farmers a profitable alternative to more traditional marketing options. Consumers, meanwhile, can get the freshest and tastiest beef, pork and poultry products.

The program is designed to maximize food safety while also making it easier for the state's producers to sell their homegrown beef, pork and poultry directly to consumers. The state inspection program focuses on small to medium-sized meat processors, supplementing the U.S. Department of Agriculture's focus on the largest processors. By taking their livestock to smaller facilities, farmers can receive more individualized service. The farmer can also retain ownership of the meat, marketing it directly to consumers under his or her own brand name.

In January 1999, only one meat processor had volunteered to register with the MDA program, and the state was inspecting 100 pounds of meat per month. Today, the program has jumped to 45 plants, representing a monthly processing volume of more than 400,000 pounds of meat. That is nearly double the level of January 2001.

I believe we're seeing this impressive growth because livestock producers want to take control of their own destiny by marketing their own product. Producers are finding that state-inspected plants are small enough to give personal service, but big enough to provide a variety of services and a high volume of top-quality products.

Now that they have the option of direct marketing, producers are finding creative ways to market their specialty meats to consumers. Many choose to sell the meat directly to consumers. Some work out deals with local grocery stores to get their products on the shelves. One farmer from northwestern Minnesota even bought a refrigerated trailer to truck his meat into the Twin Cities.

Farmers say they love the marketing flexibility the program offers, and meat processors are attracted to the program because state inspectors can help them update their food handling procedures and technologies. The program's food safety standards are equal to those of the USDA, and the state program even goes a step further by focusing on helping small processors comply with food safety regulations.

The program also generates business and high-paying jobs in rural communities that need both. For example, an average-size state-inspected meat processor can employ five or more people full time, and generate around $100,000 in business per month. The larger facilities can generate much more.

Consumer demand will ultimately determine how big the program gets. With a public that is increasingly selective when it comes to food, one key will be for direct-marketing farmers to tap into growing consumer markets such as the Twin Cities suburbs and Rochester.

The next step for the program will be to ship Minnesota meat products into neighboring states. A federal law passed in 1967 prevents the interstate commercial shipment of any meat not processed at a USDA facility. However, we are planning to meet with members of Minnesota's Congressional delegation to get their support for lifting this ban. When that happens, the State Meat Inspection Program will be able to offer even more lucrative marketing opportunities to Minnesota livestock producers.

For more information about the MDA's State Meat Inspection Program or to find the processor nearest you, contact Kevin Elfering at 651-297-7453 or by e-mail at Kevin.elfering@state.mn.us.

Dairy producers take aggressive position

Minnesota Milk Producers Association (MMPA) board of directors met August 15 and 16 at the University of Minnesota to discuss actions the producer association can take for its members. The association of nearly 3,000 dairy producers has seen a drastic reduction in milk production across the state. "If we are going to stop the loss of milk production in Minnesota, it must start with producer leadership, that is why we have decided to take action," said Larry Amundson, Thief River Falls dairy producer and board member of MMPA.

The 15-member board, which is made up of dairy producers from across Minnesota, adopted a new mission: "To promote and help create a positive image of the Minnesota dairy industry while being a voice for Minnesota dairy producers in protecting their business interests and rights." The development of a mission statement was only the beginning of a session that turned out significant results.

MMPA will be setting up at least 11 meetings across the state this winter. The meetings will identify funding resources and educational resources available to producers to meet and exceed environmental regulations and help producers with the registration process so they can begin the process of meeting the 7020 feedlot rules.

"We felt, as a producer organization, MMPA should be the ones getting Minnesota Department of Agriculture, Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, county officials and other regulatory agencies together with the producers to proactively address environmental issues. In order to protect dairy producers' business interests and rights, we must provide environmental support to dairymen. The environmental rules affect every farmer, regardless of what type of producer they are, and as a dairy producers, I must be a good steward of the environment," said Amundson.

MMPA is also in the process of making changes in their structure to allow for more input from dairy producers and others in the industry. The board established several committees including a legislative committee and membership and marketing committee. The committees will allow for more input and a quicker decision making process. "We did not want to just come up with a new mission statement and go home. We wanted to do something that will immediately add more value to our dairy farmers," said Larry Amundson.

Washington were informed of the meeting, representatives for congressional leaders were told by postal authorities in Washington that they were unaware of a problem. In fact, based on the small number of "Consumer Service Cards" filed with the United States Postal Service, they were under the impression that all was proceeding smoothly, and that there had been minimal impact on the quality of mail service as a result of the move. Postal employees were in attendance, and expressed displeasure with the current system. One individual observed that postal service employees are frustrated, and their attitudes have deteriorated because of the complaints, the fact that they aren't able to do their job, a lack of equipment, and because they are working for an employer who only seems interested in cost reduction, not fulfilling their obligations and congressional mandate.

members. David Odette, their deputy commander, said they are always looking for new recruits.

CAP History

The cadet program is only one of the three primary missions of the CAP, the other two being the provision of emergency services and the administering of aerospace education. The CAP began over fifty years ago, during World War II, as a means of employing civilian pilots and air crews in the war effort at home. They would patrol the borders and perform vital duties on search and rescue missions around the U.S.

Today, the CAP provides disaster relief services, does drug reconnaissance flights, and participates in other humanitarian services. It is a non-profit organization and, although not part of the armed forces, is an auxiliary of the United States Air Force. The CAP also runs a chaplaincy program.

The Petersons are the winners of the 2001 Soil Water Conservation District Rural Beautification award. In addition to flowers, the Patersons enjoy raising fruits and vegetables and growing the trees that surround their yard and home.

Over 100 people attended a Postal Service meeting conducted by staff for Sen. Mark Dayton, Sen. Paul Wellstone, and Congressman Collin Peterson. Information about the problems resulting from the recent transfer of mail processing from Thief River Falls to Grand Forks, N.D., is being collected and will be compiled and delivered to the Post Master General.

First game foe will be tough for Prowlers

■ Thief River Falls will open football season at Albany Friday

First-ever meeting between Thief River Falls and Albany will kick off the 2001 high school football season for the two teams Friday. And according to head coach Jeff Mumm, the Prowlers would be hard-pressed to find a tougher opener.

Game time at Albany is 7:30 p.m.

The Huskies won 13 straight games a year ago before losing in the Class AAAA state playoff finals, and a number of those players return this fall. "They're big and very skilled," pointed out Mumm. "They're the real deal. They're going to be one of the strongest teams in the state this year – probably the best team we'll face all season. It's going to be a tough opener; I don't know if we could ask for a tougher one."

And the Prowlers take on the task with an inexperienced team. The roster is full of seniors, but most Thief River Falls teams are, and since upperclassmen get most of the playing time each fall, an almost entirely new cast steps into starting rolls the following year.

Playing a strong opponent to start the year is nothing new for the Prowlers. Detroit Lakes was a first-game foe for years. And they faced a similar situation two years ago when Spring Lake Park was coming off a big year and had high expectations before being upset by the Prowlers 13-7.

Jeff Mumm

While acknowledging the strength of the first-game foe, Mumm is more concerned about getting his team ready to play its opener than he is about what the Huskies will do. "We can't worry about Albany," he said. "We have to get our team ready to play a football game."

The Prowlers hosted the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview Saturday. "Typical scrimmages," offered Mumm. "Sometimes things went pretty smooth. At other times it didn't look like we had a clue. But we play a lot of kids in those things. We use it as a way of seeing what kids can play. Sometimes we don't have our best combinations out there."

Mumm repeated comments made when practice began by saying the Prowlers have the makings of a strong offensive backfield behind quarterback Robby Anderson, fullback Trent Christensen, and halfbacks Dan Almquist and Jon Swanson, but the search continues for linemen to block for that group.

"We need to develop some consistent play in our offensive line – that's our biggest concern right now," said Mumm. "We're not very big, and we don't have a lot of experience."

Mumm also admits to being a bit nervous converting to a true option offense this fall, where people are left unblocked and the backs have to read the plays before making a decision. "The option is taking a little longer to put together than I thought it would," he explained. "We just have to be patient with it. We still have confidence in it. We really believe it'll work, and it'll make us a better football team."

Albany is the only nonconference regular season game on the Prowlers' 2001 schedule. Thief River Falls will make its debut as a Sea Range Conference member with a Week 2 trip to Duluth Denfeld for a 5:15 p.m. game. The home opener is Friday, Sept. 14, vs. Duluth East.

The Prowlers named their 2001 captains at practice Monday, a group that includes Trent and Trevor Christensen, Anderson, and Jon Forney.

Keith Anderson will get shot at the pros

by Mike Lundgren

Keith Anderson will be playing hockey someplace this winter. Where is yet to be decided.

The Lincoln High School graduate who completed his four-year hockey career at St. Cloud State University in 2000-01, is looking at several different options relating to his future in the sport.

Initially Anderson signed a contract with the Florida Everblades of the East Coast Hockey League – the first player signed by new Blades coach Gerry Fleming. Anderson had played for Florida assistant coach P.K. O'Handley at North Iowa of the United States Hockey League before heading to St. Cloud.

At 6-2, 200 pounds, Anderson fits the stature of the physical forward Florida is looking for, according to the Blades' coaching staff. "He's a big power forward that has some pretty good offensive skills," said O'Handley. "He plays physical for his size, and he'll play the power forward well. I like the fact that I know the guy, and he's a great kid. He's what our organization is all about – an opportunity for a quality guy that's going to be loyal to the organization."

Everblades team president Craig Brush saw Anderson play only once, during the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs, and liked what he saw. "He was playing with a shoulder injury and still filled his role as the power forward," Brush said. "He's a physical forward and the kind of player Gerry's going to like."

However, Anderson has a couple of stops to make before heading to Florida, and if things go well, he may never put on an Everblades jersey.

After signing with Florida, Anderson got an invitation to attend training camp of the Lowell

Keith Anderson

(Mass.) Lock Monsters of the American Hockey League – a step up from the ECHL, and the primary farm system of the National Hockey League. The Everblades and Lock Monsters are both affiliated with the National Hockey League Carolina Hurricanes.

However, a more recent call was even more intriguing to Anderson, who was asked to attend the New York Rangers rookie training camp that will precede reporting dates for the Lock Monsters or Everblades.

Anderson, who has been working for the City of Thief River Falls this summer while running and lifting weights in preparation for his try at professional hockey, will spend a week in St. Cloud to Pioneers' volleyball team opens 2001 season in impressive fashion...

Northland is 4-1 at Dallas tournament

Hoping to compete for Minnesota Community College Conference honors this fall, the Northland Community and Technical College volleyball team found out it certainly could be a title contender in Texas after opening the 2001 season with a 4-1 showing at the Dallas-area Richland Invitational Saturday.

Northland wound up third in a 12-team field that included eight National Junior College Athletic Association Division I teams and four NJCAA Division III schools.

The Division III Pioneers went 4-0 in the round-robin qualifying pool, beating three Division I programs in the process. That earned Northland one of the three spots in the championship pool, where the Pioneers lost to eventual tournament winner Hill 30-22, 30-21.

"We really didn't know what to expect," said Northland coach Mike Zachow, "but we played really well. We exceeded my expectations."

While the tournament also included teams from Georgia, Florida, Kansas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico, all five Northland foes were Texas schools.

In the qualifying pool, the Pioneers posted wins over Grayson 30-18, 30-22; Collin 30-29, 30-24; Richland 30-28, 30-24; and Claredon 30-17, 30-23.

Collin, the pre-tournament favorite, and Hill, the champion, were were Division I top-20 preseason picks.

"The competition was really good," pointed out Zachow, "but we were up for the challenge. Everybody got a chance to play, and they played well."

While everyone on the 20-member roster that made the trip saw court time and contributed to the Pioneers' strong showing, Zachow was quick to single out the play of Kylie Rogalla, a freshman from Thief River Falls, and Amanda Spong, a sophomore from Oklee. "Kylie really played well at the net," he said. "She blocked well and hit the ball hard. Amanda had a great day hitting."

Northland makes its home debut Thursday with the Pepsi Invitational.

Pioneers start year with strongest MCCC football opponent

Given a choice, Guy Finstrom would insert a bye that appears on the schedule of every Minnesota Community College Conference football team near the end of the season as an insurance policy – anticipating the wear and tear that a roster experiences through the course of the year. But the Northland Community and Technical College head coach says the Week 2 bye awaiting the Pioneers isn't all that bad, either.

Northland drew defending state champion Rochester as a foe Friday in the second annual MCCC Kickoff Classic at the University of Minnesota-Duluth, a game won by the Yellowjackets 48-6. While the rest of the league will be right back at it this weekend, the Pioneers will be idle until their Saturday, Sept. 8, home opener against Central Lakes.

"I would rather have it later in the season, but having the bye now isn't such a bad thing, either," said Finstrom. "It'll give us a good chance to sit back and evaluate the kids. We'll study the films and see how they did that first game, then get ready for Central Lakes."

Finstrom figured his staff would have plenty of personnel to monitor. The game plan for the opener was designed to get as many people on the field as possible.

"We play to win," said Finstrom, "but we have a lot of kids to look at in the first game. We want to give them a chance and see how they do in a game situation.

Liberal substitution may become common place for the Pioneers because of the depth they have at several positions, according to Finstrom. "We have 16-18 No. 1 players," he said. "I feel very comfortable playing a lot of kids."

Finstrom figures the Pioneers should be competitive. "I think we're going to be able to score some points," he said. "We can do some good things on offense. Defensively, we'll probably be the old bend-but-not-break kind of team. We'll try to make some plays. We may get caught a few times, but we're going to be aggressive."

Sophomore quarterback Jeremy Cost (Fordville, N.D.) was expected to miss the opener due to a knee injury, but after being fitted for a brace, he was penciled in as the starter. Freshman Justin Skjerven (Thief River Falls) is also expected to get his share of playing time at quarterback.

They will be handing the ball off this fall to the likes of Steve Crummy (Argyle), Jaime Miramontes (Bemidji) and Maurice Johnson (Chicago) who will try to recoup yards lost with the departure of fullback Scott Olsen and halfback Kris Scherer from last year's Northern Division championship team. Olsen had back-to-back 1,000-yard rushing seasons for the Pioneers and Scherer, as a freshman, provided the speed on the outside to complement Olsen's inside running. Scherer wanted to play another year at Northland, but the 4.0 student simply ran out of courses to take here that would have counted toward his engineering degree, according to Finstrom.

In addition to the Central Lakes contest, the Pioneers will have home games against Fergus Falls, Mesabi Range and Rainy River. Rest of the road foes will be Minnesota West, Hibbing, Vermilion, and Itasca.

Rochester, Central Lakes, Minnesota West, and Fergus Falls are all Southern Division teams. Mesabi Range, Hibbing, Vermilion, Rainy River, and Itasca are Northern Division opponents. In the MCCC standings, games against teams in the other division are worth one point, while games against divisional rivals are two-point match-ups.

Top two finishers in the Northern and South Division regular season standings earn spots in the MCCC state playoff semifinals Oct. 27. State championship game will be played Nov. 3 at St. Cloud State University.

A year ago the playoff semifinals produced a 45-7 Rochester win over Vermilion and a 12-7 Minnesota West victory over Northland. Rochester handled West 48-12 in the title game.

Rochester winner in Kickoff Classic

It took 30 minutes for an inexperienced Northland team to become acclimated to the level of football played by the best teams in the Minnesota Community College Conference. On the other hand, a veteran Rochester squad was ready at the opening kickoff. The result was a 38-0 halftime spread and a 48-6 Yellowjackets victory over the Pioneers Friday in the opening game of the second annual MCCC Kickoff Classic at the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

Rochester was 12-0 a year ago, winning the state playoff title and then tacking on a bowl game victory. Back from that team are all-state players in two skill positions – runningback Rod Malone, wide receiver Rasheem Sharpe – and four returning starters in the offensive line.

"Rochester is good," acknowledged Guy Finstrom following his debut as the Pioneers' head football coach. "They've got an All-America runningback, and their entire offensive line is back. They've got a lot of good football players on both sides of the ball."

Northland just wasn't ready for a first-game opponent of that caliber, admitted Finstrom. "We were a little fuzzy right away," he said. "We were mixed up on our assignments."

But while the big halftime spread might have taken the edge off the Yellowjackets, it didn't stop the Pioneers from coming back to play two solid quarters of football.

MCCC Kickoff Classic - at UMD
■ Friday, Aug. 24 - Rochester 48, Northland 6; Itasca 32, Fergus Falls 25.
■ Saturday, Aug. 25 - Vermilion 28, Minnesota West 7; Ridgewater 31, Hibbing 6; Mesabi Range 46, Central Lakes 7.

"The kids played hard in the second half," noted Finstrom. "We basically won the second half. It was too little, too late, but we were very happy with their effort when they came back on the field."

A couple of bright spots, according to Finstrom, were supplied by Maurice Johnson, a halfback from Chicago, and Steve Crummy, a fullback from Argyle. Johnson carried 10 times for 51 yards and Crummy had 11 carries for 46 yards. The Pioneers netted 136 yards on 41 running plays. Jeremy Cost, a sophomore from Fordville, N.D., and Justin Skjerven, a freshman from Thief River Falls, shared the quarterbacking duties. They were a combined 4-for-13 passing for 60 yards.

Northland will be idle this week. The Pioneers will make their home debut Sept. 8 against Central Lakes.

"We can use the time," said Finstrom. "We have a lot of things to work on. But the encouraging thing is that all the mistakes we made that first game – we can correct."

Other teams in the league came from Crookston, Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, Red Lake Falls, Marshall County Central, Red Lake County Central, Warren-Alvarado-Oslo, and Thief River Falls. Members of the championship squad were Bree Stoltman, Nichole Dodd, Megan Dufault, Nichole Peterson, Rachel Sang, and Brittany Stoltman.

day Kickoff Classic, Itasca beat Fergus Falls 32-25, Vermilion defeated Minnesota West 28-7, Ridgwater stopped Hibbing 31-6, and Mesabi Range handled Central Lakes 46-7.

"I watched all the other teams in the conference, and the level of play is definitely up," reported Finstrom. "There is a lot of talent out there. There are teams with an awful lot of speed in the league this year."

skate before reporting to Rangers' camp Sept. 4. The week-long tryout will feature games matching the New York rookies against first-year players from Toronto, Carolina and Boston.

Anderson will then find out if he figures into the Rangers' plans.

If not, it's off to the Lock Monsters training camp Sept. 20. The AHL season starts Oct. 5 when Lock Haven plays Manchester.

And if he's not with Lock Haven, then Anderson will be in Florida for the start of the Everblades' training camp the first week of October. They open their season Oct. 12 against the Greenville Grrowl.

"I'm pretty excited about the opportunity," said Anderson. "I was all set to go to Florida, then the AHL thing opened up, and out of the blue – totally unexpected – the Rangers called."

Anderson said surgery performed in July should clear up the shoulder problem that plagued him as a senior with the Huskies.

"I had a great time in St. Cloud," Anderson said. "It was a good experience, and it really helped that my senior year was our best season."

Anderson has two brothers also busy in athletics, with Kyle returning for his second year with the Lake Superior State hockey team and Robby entering his senior year at Lincoln High School as the Prowlers' starting quarterback in football before putting on skates this winter.

Northland golf teams open 2001 schedules

Men's and women's golf teams at Northland Community and Technical College will open their 2001 seasons with back-to-back meets hosted by Central Lakes today (Wednesday) and Minneapolis Thursday.

Rick Nikunen-coached Pioneers will be headed by Shane Peterson and Jenni Gonsorowski, a pair of sophomores from Thief River Falls who were National Junior College Athletic Association Division III national tournament qualifiers as freshmen.

"We'll be a lot better than we were a year ago," said Nikunen. "Our men's team has a lot more balance. We have no dominant No. 1 golfer; on any given day, our 1-2-3 kids could lead us, and our 4-5-6 golfers will be more competitive, too."

Meanwhile, Gonsorowski, the only female playing golf for the Pioneers last fall, will have company on the women's roster this year, giving Northland a chance to compete in the team standings.

Joining Peterson on the Northland men's roster are Chad Hanson, Bailey Nordin, Derek Gustafson, and Brady Anderson, Thief River Falls; Brandon Carlson, Lake Park; Cory Hanson, Detroit Lakes; Wallie Lang, Dave Jurina and Derek Neisen, Mahnomen; Chad Latvaca and T.J. Christianson, Deer River; Nathan Moen, Stephen; and Travis Byberg, New Rockford, N.D.

Gonsorowski's teammates include Brenda Fritz, Win-E-Mac, Kate Gervais, Red Lake Falls; and Nicole Wiseth, Thief River Falls.

Dustin's uncle, Jim Gaatz, finished second in the walleye division. It was the first fishing tournament for Dustin, who credited many hours on the water with his dad, Gordy Myklebust, and his uncle for teaching him the proper techniques. GREENBUSH RACE PARK

(from Bob Hultgren)

Greenbush Race Park held it's annual Track Championship Friday. The tide of champion and trophies were up for grabs and the atmosphere at the track reflected the importance of the evening for the racers on hand. The track itself was fantastic – smooth and fast.

Mini-Sprints feature provided a good deal of excitement for the fans and the racers. Points leader Dennis Rantanen (Thief River Falls) led the first two laps before Robbi Peterson (Middle River) took the lead. Peterson built a good-size lead before Rick Bates (Badger) reeled him in by Lap 9. On the next lap, while trying to pass in the second corner, Bates drove over the left-side tires of Peterson's car and flipped end-over-end before landing upside down on the track. Bates was uninjured and Peterson would race for the feature win. Rantanen finished second, with Dan Wiskow (Roseau) wrapping up third.

Dave Meyer and Rod Peterson, both of Thief River Falls started the evening tied for the Street Stocks point standings and side-by-side for the feature race. They raced wheel-to-wheel for the opening lap and a half, before Peterson would take the lead and go on for the win. Meyer finished second, with Jamen Foss (Greenbush) third. With the win, Peterson takes a three-point lead over Meyer heading into the Aug. 31 season finale.

Jim Hilman (Lancaster) raced to the Truck Championship feature win in the Pure Stocks. Hilman would lead flag-to-flag, but not without company. Steffan Snare (Hallock) had his No. 71 car glued to the rear of Hilman the entire 15-lap event. Snare tried several times to position himself for a pass, but Hilman held off the challenge for the win. Justin Peterson (Lancaster) finished third in what was a very exciting, hard-drive, clean feature.

Gordie Lancaster (Bemidji) maintained his 15-point lead in the Super Stocks class by racing to the feature win. Lancaster led green to checkered for the title, with Bryon Berger (Badger) second and Dean Wensloff (Roseau) third.

Outside of the red flag for Bates' roll-over, the Track Championships were caution-free until the Modifieds when three caution flags flew before the first lap of the feature was completed. Dave Riopelle (Argyle) started on the pole and led the entire race, holding off a final charge over the final two laps from Nolan Olmstead (Badger), with Dean Forst (Thief River Falls) third. The race ended at the right time for Riopelle since the right rear tire on his car was flat as he pulled up to accept his championship trophy. Riopelle continues to lead the Mod points race.

Greenbush Race Park will wrap up its 2001 season Friday. The final points race of the season will begin at 7 p.m. The annual awards presentation will follow the races.

The Race Park is located north of Greenbush on County Road 7.

September goose hunt in northwest will start Saturday

Goose hunters in northwest Minnesota will once again have the opportunity to participate in the early September Canada goose hunt in the Northwest Goose Zone scheduled Sept. 1 - 15.

The Northwest Goose Zone includes all of Kittson County, plus most of Marshall and Pennington counties, and portions of Roseau, Red Lake and Polk counties.

Early September goose hunts are aimed at controlling local populations of giant Canada geese around the state. In many rural areas, rapidly expanding populations have caused severe crop depredation problems.

"In the past, the northwest area of Minnesota has not had the severity of goose depredation problems as experienced in other portions of the state where September goose hunts were established several years ago," said John Williams, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Area Wildlife Manager at Thief River Falls. "By including the Northwest Goose Zone in the early September hunt, we hope to keep local goose populations at levels that do not result in severe crop depredation in the future."

The northwest Canada goose season will run from Sept. 1 - 15, with a bag limit of two Canada geese per day and four in possession. Hunters may not take geese within 100 yards of surface water. Because this is the third year of the experimental three-year hunt, the DNR will once again set up goose check stations at several locations within the Northwest Goose Zone to collect data on the subspecies of Canada geese being harvested. Data from the check stations will be used to determine the proportion of local geese and migrant geese harvested during the September season.

Check station procedure takes only a few minutes. Some stations will be self-serve, with diagrams and printed instructions, allowing hunters to simply drop off the appropriate parts of their geese. At others, wildlife workers will determine the age and sex of each goose, and take measurements to differentiate locally reared birds from migrant geese.

"The reason the Northwest zone was originally established was to lower the harvest of migrant geese from the Eastern Prairie Population which breed in northern Manitoba and are not as productive as our local giants," said Steve Maxson, goose specialist with the DNR Wetland Wildlife Populations and Research Group in Bemidji. "During the September season, hunters will be allowed to harvest either subspecies; but the intent of the early season is to encourage the harvest of local, giant Canada geese before the smaller subspecies from the EPP begin arriving in Minnesota."

According to Maxson, EPP geese begin arriving in northwest Minnesota around the middle of September; and, for that reason, the Northwest season will close on Sept. 15.

September goose hunt in northwest will start Saturday

Hunter participation at goose check stations is voluntary. However, hunters are strongly encouraged to present their geese in order to provide good management data. In the Northwest Goose Zone, hunters who check birds in during the September hunt will have their names entered into a raffle for a Remington 870 Express 12-gauge shotgun and 12 Herter's Full-body Goose Decoys, donated by the Minnesota Waterfowl Association. Other prizes donated by local merchants will also be included in the raffle. A drawing will be held at the end of the September season to determine the winners.

Geese harvested in the Northwest Zone can be checked in at any site where a check station is located. For hunters on or in the vicinity of the Roseau River Wildlife Management Area or the Thief Lake WMA, check-in will be at the WMA headquarters.

Other check station locations include: the Karlstad DNR Area Wildlife Office - located one block west of the Prime Security Bank in Karlstad, Gatzke Country Store - located on Highway 6 in Gatzke, Boze's Cenex C-Store - located on Highway 11 in Greenbush, Roseau County Co-op. Association - located on Highway 11 in Badger, Bernstrom Oil - located on Highway 59 in Lancaster, Express Mart - located on Minnesota Street in Newfolden, and Petro Pumper - located at Highways 59 and 1 in Thief River Falls.

Hunters are reminded that a special $4 dollar permit is required for the September hunt, in addition to the regular small game license and stamps needed to hunt waterfowl. With the Electronic Licensing System now in effect, the permits and stamps can be purchased wherever licenses are sold. The use of selected blinds within the Controlled Hunting Zones at the Roseau River and Thief Lake WMAs will be allowed on a first-come first-served basis. Open blinds will be posted at the access points; or information can be obtained by contacting the WMA headquarters.

All questions regarding the September goose hunt and hunting on state WMAs may be directed to local area DNR Wildlife Managers at the following numbers: Thief River Falls - 218 681-0946, Crookston - 218 281-6063, Karlstad - 218 436-2427, Roseau River WMA - 218 463-1557, and Thief Lake WMA - 218 222-3747.

Grouse opener Sept. 15

Days are getting shorter and the nights are cooler. Asters and goldenrods outnumber dandelions and roses. Fall is just around the corner and with it the start of hunting seasons. While anticipation for the Sept. 15 ruffed grouse season opener is high, expectations for success are more moderate. DNR grouse population indices are down 40 percent statewide. Rick Horton, biologist for the Ruffed Grouse Society explains, "Grouse follow a fairly predictable 10-year population cycle, and we are on the downward side of the trend. The last peak was in 1998, and the lowest population is expected in 2002 or 2003," according to Horton.

The grouse cycle is a natural event dictated by predator/prey relationships in Canada and the northern portions of the Great Lakes states. Weather patterns, particularly snow conditions, also effect grouse numbers. Grouse burrow into deep snow for warmth during cold weather. If there is not enough snow, or if it gets a hard crust on it, the birds are exposed to winter winds and predators, increasing mortality. Cold, rainy springs, like this year's, can also lead to losses of chicks. Researchers even speculate that aspen trees themselves may play a role in the cycle by utilizing chemical defenses to stop grouse from feeding on their buds in winter.

The DNR has established five grouse management zones based mainly on forest cover. Grouse numbers in the oak forests of southeast zone have stabilized at a relatively low population and do not follow the cycle. Most likely this is because northern predators do not travel that far south, but it could also be because there is little aspen in the southern forest. Populations are now 3-6 times lower than they were in the 1970s and 80s. "The oak forests have matured in that area to the point where the whole region is better turkey habitat than grouse habitat," says Horton. The Central Hardwoods Zone, from Detroit Lakes to the Twin Cities, also has a lot of oak forest. Grouse populations there are down 46 percent from last year. Horton suggests, "Hunters in the Southeast and Central Hardwoods would do best seeking out oak clearcuts, stands of young trees and other tangled spots that may hold grouse."

Core of the grouse range is in the northern aspen forests. Numbers are down significantly from previous peaks, but there are still plenty of grouse to allow very enjoyable hunting. "In general, birds will be more abundant in prime habitat of 15-20 year old aspen and few and far between in older stands," according to Horton. He adds, "Alder strands and swamp edges can be productive during hot, dry periods."

While humans cannot prevent the cycle from occurring, we can ensure that populations will continue to return to their highs during peak years by maintaining good grouse habitat. Horton says, "Ruffed grouse, woodcock and many other species of game and non-game animals need young forests for food and cover." Grouse in particular like thick young aspen for raising their young secure from hawks, owls and other predators. But young forests are short-lived, often offering the security of dense growth for only 15-25 years. Land managers must continually create these young stands through timber harvesting projects to replace stands that have become too old and open.

So waterproof your boots, exercise the dogs and get in some time at the range tuning up your shooting skills. The grouse opener is just around the corner and you'll have to work a little harder to enjoy that grouse dinner this fall.

Rick Horton is the RGS biologist for Minnesota and lives near Grand Rapids. He is available to answer questions regarding grouse populations and management at 218-697-2820 or at rgshort@uslink.net.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota gave us a lovely summer Sunday today. We spent the afternoon at the Heritage Farm at Roseau. First we watched the parade of antique tractors and other farm machinery before we had a delicious lunch topped by old fashioned "doughboys," that is, stretching bread dough and deep-fat frying it and putting butter, cinnamon and sugar on it. While they were threshing grain we were listening to the music in the park until it was time to have potato dumplings for early dinner. On the way home we stopped and visited Edna Hvidsten at the Greenbush Nursing Home. Needless to say, we were not hungry when we came home.

The Strandquist seniors met on Thursday with one guest, who came to have lunch with them. They brought material to make a memorial quilt for Kelly Lofrooth. They also played bingo and all went home with a can of corn, beans or peas, won playing the game. They will meet again next Thursday.

Richard and Carol Thompson of Red Lake Falls and Elmer Holmstrom visited Isaac and Betsy Thompson on Sunday afternoon. Isaac and Betsy had breakfast with Nelson LeDoux in Thief River Falls on Thursday morning.

Mike and Betty Johnson of Warroad visited Elphie Adlis on Tuesday. As nice and cool as it was in Minnesota, it was over 95 degrees in Florida at her daughter Jan Hilton's home in Florida.

Greg, Ramona and Austin Lofrooth visited Elsie Lofrooth Sunday evening.

Judy Kleinvachter was one busy lady last week, making up for the days she was recuperating. Her guests were Vance and Kelly Lofrooth with Amanda and Jessica, Marie Stollen of Argyle, Kristen Kleinvachter, June and Brian Kasprowicz from the Twin Cities, Tracy Folland, Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, Pat and Rebbecca Larson, Joan Gehrls and grandsons Lane and Austin from Inkster, N.D.

Thursday Dori and Carol Gossenberger from California and Beverly Rassmusson from Frazee visited at Peter and Pearl Thompson's while LaVerne Rassmusson was mowing on the farm. They had been to Cloquet for the 50th wedding celebration for Delbert and LuAnne Grandstrand. Later, LaVonne Johnson came to Peter and Pearl's and took them all out for dinner. Her guests were Peter and Pearl, LaVerne and Beverly and their granddaughter, Don and Carol Gossenberger.

Becky Johnson and Jake went to Barnsville to visit Sherrill Stewart and family over the weekend.

Elaine Grovum of Thief River Falls took her mom, Elsie Lofrooth, on a trip to visit with her children and grandchildren in the Park Rapids area on Tuesday. They returned Wednesday evening after an enjoyable trip. First they visited Morris and Marcelyn Lindstrom in Park Rapids. Morris and Marcelyn and Elsie and Elaine went to Akley and had supper with Jeff, Peggy and Jarod Lindstrom.

Wednesday they went to Osage to visit Tod, Lori, Andy and Alyse Johnson and did some shopping before returning home.

Paul and Shirley Anderson drove to New Ulm Saturday to visit David, Jenny and Baby Bethany Janssen. Monday Shirley drove to Chatfield to pick up Eva Bernard and that evening they attended a baby shower for Bethany Janssen. On Tuesday Paul, Shirley and Eva returned home.

Wednesday evening Kristopher Anderson had supper at the Paul Anderson home and visited with his grandparents Morris and Hazel Anderson and Eva Bernard before heading to Phoenix, Ariz. with the same.

On Monday afternoon, Ruth Sustad's brothers, Walter Peterson from Blaine, and Bob (George) from Brooklyn Park, arrived to do some visiting in the area. That evening, Dan, Donna and Bradley Sustad, also Doyne and Alexia Melvie enjoyed fellowship at the Sustad home. Walter and Bob would sure like to have seen a moose along the way, so, to satisfy their visit, on Tuesday morning the Sustads took them sightseeing on the historic Pembina Ridge Road and eventually to the Wallace Hansen elk farm, which is very interesting if you don't know the life of an elk. Walter is also a golfer so, off to the "greens" in Thief River Falls for a while. Tuesday evening, Walter and Bob experienced a northern Minnesota storm, not severe, but strong, that left the area as fast as it came. Dan enjoyed more visiting with his uncles. Then LeRoy, Ruth, Bob and Walter called on granddaughter Holly, Jeremiah, McKayla and Halley Vad at their home west of Thief River Falls, after which they drove into town to visit Dawn and Corey Gustafson, Dylan and Tyson, so it was a full and enjoyable day. On Wednesday, Walter and Bob left for their homes in the Minneapolis area. Hope they see a moose!

Gene and Debbie Copeland and Jeff Ebertowski arrived Saturday night from Malta, Mont. to spend several days at the Liz Swenson home. Sunday afternoon was spent at the Allen Swenson home for a cookout. Michael and Michelle Johnson and Justin from Roseau were also guests.

Corrie Nickolson was a Monday afternoon caller at Liz Swenson's home.

Should older drivers be required to retake drivers license exam?

Driver inattention and distraction appears to be the largest contributing factor for crashes among drivers age 65 to 79. Drivers in this category appear to contribute to only a small part of the total number of accidents, according to Minnesota Crash Facts for 2000. Many visitors to our informal and unscientific Web site poll, believe drivers, age 70 and over, should be required to take a driver's license test before being re-issued a driver's license.

This poll is the latest in a number of questions we have asked visitors to our Web site (trftimes.com). This question specifically asks: Should the state require mandatory driving tests for people over the age of 70? Yes or No. As of Monday, August 27, 150 or 67.57 percent said yes, and 72 voters or 32.43 percent, said no.

Frankly I was a little surprised no one wrote to complain. I think the question infers that older drivers are worse drivers. Additionally, I think a proposal to restrict older drivers' right to drive would face charges that it unfairly discriminates against older drivers and would unfairly restrict their freedom. The flip side of the coin, however, is that public safety is the real issue.

Statistics seem to support the opposite conclusion the public has reached. During the year 2000, 180,545 drivers were involved in accidents in Minnesota. Only a small percentage of those drivers, 3,118, were in the 70 to 74 age group, while 28,006 of those drivers were in the 15 to 19 year age group. So whom should we fear more?

> Few relationships in human behavior are as simple and clear as that between age and motor vehicle crash involvement.

There are at least a couple of other factors that need to be examined before we conclude that we were all wet: first, what percentage of all drivers are over 70, and second, whether older drivers put on as many miles on the road as younger drivers.

Minnesota Crash Facts 2000 made the following statements: "Few relationships in human behavior are as simple and clear as that between age and motor vehicle crash involvement. Crash involvement decreases with age and driving experience and, in a word, teenagers tend to be terrible drivers. In 2000, one in 10 licensed teenage drivers was in a reported motor vehicle crash. Among 20-to-24 year-olds, the number was one in 12. The number declines steadily across successive five-year age groups: one in 16 for 25-to-29 year-olds, one in 29 for 50-to-54 year-olds, and one in 52 among those over 85. (For the oldest driver age groups, experts recognize that the low crash involvement rate comes more from reduced driving than from increased driving skill.)"

There are so many statistics in Minnesota Crash Facts 2000 that it is easy to get mired down, but I'll add another tidbit of information: driver's between the age of 65 and 69 account for four percent of all licensed drivers and two percent of all crashes; driver's 70 to 74 account for 3.7 percent of all licensed drivers and 1.7 percent of all crashes; drivers 75 to 79 account for 3.1 percent of all drivers and 1.5 percent of all crashes; and drivers 80 to 84 account for 2.1 percent of all licensed drivers and 0.9 percent of all crashes.

I would think it would be extremely hard to nail down and do something legislatively about a "contributing factor" to crashes. After all, there are many reasons people are involved in crashes, some of which we may be able to do absolutely nothing about, like weather. We may be able to do something about making sure older drivers are capable drivers, but the correlation between old age and accidents may not be as clear as the general consensus appears to be.

What do you think about the downtown construction project?

Judging by the number of comments I've heard, and the current sentiment about road construction in Thief River Falls, the next unscientific poll question I've chosen to put on our Web site is: Do you think the Highway 59 project is taking too long to complete?

To participate in this poll log onto our Web site at trftimes.com and answer yes or no to the question. We'll print the results in the near future.

Anthrax outbreak is a cause for concern among farmers, hunters

by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

As has been thoroughly reported in the past few weeks, Kittson, Marshall and Roseau counties have seen a surprising number of animal anthrax cases this year.

Sen. Stumpf

'About 80 cows have died from anthrax at 16 different sites in recent months. Also, one dead deer each in Kittson and Northwest Roseau counties have tested positive for anthrax, as has one dead horse in Roseau county.

According to the Minnesota Board of Animal Health, anthrax is a bacteria and is spread through spores that can survive indefinitely in the soil. Live animals catch the bacteria only when they come into contact with soil where dead animals infected with anthrax have died and have discharged bodily fluids into the soil. Outbreaks usually occur during drought years that follow floods, but the warm, wet conditions we've experienced this year have brought the most cases of anthrax in the state in over 40 years.

Because the disease is so fatal to animals and very infectious, the proper method of disposing of diseased carcasses is very involved. The Board of Animal Health requires carcasses to be burned, and the ashes to be buried as deep as possible, usually in a pit dug by a backhoe. Even with these precautions, the anthrax spores will still live in the soil indefinitely. Area farmers who discover an unexpected death in their animal herds area have been advised to assume that the cause of death is anthrax and to contact a veterinarian for confirmation. Animal herds can be treated with penicillin and a vaccine to prevent the onset of the disease.

In 2000, there were at least 30 cases in seven animal herds in our area. Since at the time this was by far the largest outbreak in recent history, I authored legislation this spring to reimburse farmers for their anthrax-related costs. My bill was approved by the State Senate, but the measure did not survive during conference committee negotiations with House of Representatives. Given the severity of this year's outbreak and the expensive measures required to dispose of the carcasses, I will author another bill in the 2002 session.

Even though there have been no reported cases of anthrax-infected bears, the Department of Natural Resources has issued a warning to bear hunters that they should take precautions when handling bear carcasses. It is unlikely that hunters could contract anthrax from bear meat, but DNR recommends wearing rubber gloves when cleaning killed bears, to prevent the risk of infected fluids coming into contact with open sores on a hunter's hands.

Any bear that is staggering, behaving strangely or that has an unusual appearance should not be shot. Any killed bear that has a swelled neck, open sores or lesions, or bleeding from any body orifice should not be cleaned. Instead, contact Joe Marcino with DNR at (651) 296-3043, or the local DNR wildlife division office.

As always, meat from game animals should always be thoroughly cooked. It's especially important this year to obey this rule.

Hunters and farmers have the responsibility to keep themselves, their neighbors and their families safe. Luckily, the risk of anthrax infection in humans is remote, and the few cases are usually not life-threatening. In the rare instances when someone does become infected, a course of antibiotics can be given as treatment.

As we come upon the deer hunting season, I'll keep people informed through this column as to any warnings issued by DNR or the Board of Animal Health about anthrax infections in the deer population. In the mean time, I'm happy to answer any questions you may have about anthrax, or any other topic in which you have an interest.

Special farewell column:

Breaking the BIG story this summer

by Jeff Achen
Times Reporter

Isn't it incredible how fast the present becomes the past and how slow the future seems to become the present?

Jeff Achen

Way back in April, I would have told you I was hoping to hear from Time magazine or the Washington Post about a summer journalism internship. Yeah, I was that ambitious ... why not? Little did I know that my application to the smaller, area newspaper, The Times of Thief River Falls, would land me in a position to break the biggest story of my career to date.

It's a story not too many people know about. It also happens to be a story I don't think the larger papers would care to cover, but that hasn't stopped me.

You should also understand that this story isn't under the shadow of a banner headline or strewn across the front page of the paper. It wasn't an event that rocked the town or upset any neighbors in the middle of the night. It's a much simpler story than that.

Thief River Falls was just another town to me until this summer. I suppose it's just an average little town to anyone who hasn't taken the time to meet the people I've met recently. People like Mayor Mark Borsheim, whose warm personality and frankness represent this town well. People like Sheriff Mike Hruby and Police Chief Jim Haugen, whose personalities and gentle manners could land them jobs as stand-ins on the "Andy Griffith Show" as opposed to "Cops." People like KTRF's Chris Melby, whose sense of humor and sincerity make you forget about the fact that he works in radio, not print journalism. (Just kidding Chris. I had to get one jab in there.)

Then there's people like Bunny Malberg, whose personality could bring a smile to Scrooge himself. People like School District 564's Curriculum Coordinator Carol Ihle, whose bright and cheerful attitude make any day brighter. People like Senator LeRoy Stumpf who make time for anyone who wants to talk and always wears a smile. People like Lacy Dahl and Katie Jorde who both look great in their swim suits, even if my editor won't let me put their picture on the front page.

Those that think Thief River Falls is just average certainly haven't heard. I guess that's why I'm so proud to break this big story. I want people to know about people like the ones at The Times.

The personalities that fill the office are best described as friends to this community. They print the facts about the things that matter to the mind, and print news about the people and events that matter to the heart. And, I won't forget how goofy they all can get, when provoked by some silly intern like me.

Some might wonder why I'm so impressed with the citizens here. If you'd had my experience, that wonder would evaporate. Yeah, the biggest story of the summer wasn't the storm or the county fair. It's that right here in Thief River Falls you've got a lotta great people. And you know that, as a journalist, I always report fairly and objectively.

So, as I move on, back to UND and Grand Forks, I thank Thief River Falls and The Times for a wonderful summer and an important lesson in journalism: the spice of life is what transforms the facts into a story.

MN Workforce still setting an example for the nation

by Earl Wilson
Commissioner
MN Dept. of Economic Security

Despite recent evidence of a national economic slowdown, the Labor Day finds the Minnesota economy and its workforce in relatively good health. Although this links between the state and national economies have led to a clear slowing of Minnesota's economic growth and hiring, we continue to outperform the nation in many respects. Our unemployment rate, for example, stands at 3.5 percent for July, and while this is up since the first of the year, it's still well below historical norms and a full percentage point under the national level. Another recent indicator of the strength of our economy: Minnesotans' personal income grew at the second-fastest rate in the country for the first three months of the year. Also, despite the slowing rate of employment growth, we have continued to add jobs since last July. And, the latest U.S. Census data show that Minnesota has the second-lowest poverty rate in the nation.

All of the labor market news is not positive, however. This is obvious to those who have recently been laid off. While jobs continue to be created in some sectors, our state's mining and manufacturing industries, for example, have been hard-hit by the slowdown. But some state industries have weathered the recent economic uncertainty in better shape. The construction and services industries have added jobs over the past year, with each sector growing at a faster rate in Minnesota than in the country as a whole.

Also, results from a recent study by the Minnesota Department of Economic Security show that many job vacancies remain in various parts of the state's economy. The study found that statewide, there are almost 97,000 job vacancies. These opportunities are found across the board in different areas of the state and in different industries. Minnesota still needs all types of workers.

What's more, when the economy rebounds and employers' hiring picks up again, we expect the recent worker shortage problem to reappear and intensify. In fact, we project that by 2008, Minnesota will need about one-half million more workers than are working today.

The challenge is to make sure Minnesota's workers will have the skills they need to fill the jobs available. To that end, Governor Ventura last year proposed a major overhaul of the state's workforce development system. As an important beginning, two state agencies — the Department of Economic Security and the Department of Trade and Economic Development — will be merged to better coordinate workforce development and economic development in the state. Minnesota is working hard this Labor Day to be the best place in the nation to work and do business.

District ponders levy referendum

■ Legislative changes entice districts to request additional funds through referendum

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

While one normally associates education with only three "R's," legislative changes in the way Minnesota schools are financed have forced a fourth "R"— referendum — onto current school district agendas.

Harry Nelson, business manager for Independent School District 564, proposed the possibility of a local referendum to the board of education at its August 27 meeting at the District Service Center.

Nelson explained to board members that while legislature shifted funding from property tax to the state general fund, it also opened the door for school districts to go back and ask for additional funds from the voters. Nelson also told the board about the attractive incentives the state offers districts that approve operating bond referendums and that proposing such a referendum would amount to good business sense for School District 564.

Nelson's presentation not only prompted discussion but brought groans from school board members who, all too well, remember the difficulties the board has faced in the past when trying to promote referendums to local taxpayers.

Regardless, however, of the popularity of the subject, Nelson reminded the board that it would need to make a decision at its next regular meeting September 10 about whether it would be propose a referendum to taxpayers during the November general election. The board of education agreed that it would continue its discussion of the subject at the special meeting that was scheduled for Wednesday, August 29.

• The board of education recognized the following: Hartz Foundation for its $12,500 grant to the BMX/Roller Park; Bridgeman's for donating ice cream and Hugo's and Super One for donations for the Back to School Inservice picnic; the following businesses that made contributions toward the 2001 Lincoln High School Costa Rico trip: Galaxy Twin, Avon-Lori Kennedy, Dr. Donald Goodrich, Lee Plumbing and Heating, Pennington Square and Main, Joppru Meats, VFW Post 2793, Northwest Beverage, Inc.; Thief River Linen, Inc.; Northern State Bank; Northwest Eye Clinic; Dr. John Seaverson; and Dr. Craig Mickelson.

• The school board meeting included several presentations. Cay and DeeJay Donlin provided the school board with information regarding a two- to three-week German exchange program between students from Lincoln High School and students from the Laurentius Gymnasium in Neuendettelsau, Bavaria. The program could involve approximately 30 students. German students would come to Thief River Falls in March 23-April 2, 2002, and Thief River Falls students would travel to Germany in March and/or April 2003.

Harriet Worker addressed the board of education with regard to the junior varsity girls hockey program and informed it that TRFHA would be sponsoring the JV team for the next two years.

District Curriculum Coordinator Carol Ihle also made a presentation to the school board, discussing the changes in the Grad Standards manual for the coming year and reviewing the Goals 2000 Project. Ihle also discussed MCA test results and talked about how test scores could be used more constructively.

• The school board heard reports from the following committees: Staff Development, Jean Larson and Carol Ihle; Negotiations, Carl Clark; and MEC Center.

Superintendent explains referendum

School District Superintendent Irv Peterson explains the request for a levy referendum in his column found on page 6 of this edition of The Times.

Superintendent Peterson explains that last year the legislature changed the school aid formula, and as a result, the Thief River Falls school district no longer has an excess levy referendum. For districts like Thief River Falls that did have a referendum on the books before the legislative changes, an additional category of funding called "equity revenue" was created two years ago.

-Superintendent Peterson explains what would happen to district funding without a referendum.

Hospital Association to hold meeting on Sept. 10

The regular (annual) meeting of the Northwest Medical Center (NWMC) membership will be held on Monday, September 10, at 7 p.m. in the Summit room of the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls. The purpose of the meeting is to conduct the annual meeting of the membership, elect new directors and approve changes to the bylaws adopted by the board of directors on August 27.

The primary business to be transacted at the meeting will be the election of three directors to serve three year terms on the Northwest Medical Center board of directors with those terms expiring in September 2004 and to approve changes the hospital board made to the bylaws.

The board of directors nominating committee is charged with the responsibility of nominating candidates who will most effectively serve the hospital and its mission of satisfying the community's health care needs now and into the future. The board's nominating committee placed the following names into nomination for three year terms to expire in September 2004: Robert D. Flynn, Thomas P. Kays and Gerald A. Wigness. Ashok Patel, M.D., has been nominated by the petition process outlined in the Association's bylaws, which allows any five association members to make nominations in addition to those made by the official nominating committee of the board.

Registration will begin at 5:30 p.m. in the corridor and swimming pool area adjacent to the Summit room. The polling booths will open at 5:30 p.m. and close on or about 7:15 p.m. There will be no absentee or proxy balloting allowed. You must be a member of the hospital association and you must vote in person.

Association members will also be asked to vote for bylaw amendments adopted by the Northwest

Council delights in bond rating

■ City's bond rating improves to Baa2 and cuts some costs

Tuesday, Moody's Investment Service notified the City Council of Thief River Falls that city has been assigned a Baa2 bond rating, which is an improvement from Baa3, a lower quality investment grade bond.

A representative from Moody's and Roger DeLap, city administrator, described the new rating as "very positive."

Thief River Falls' bond rating of Baa3 was established by Moody's Investors Service in 1997 as a result of demands for an expansion of their rating system that would make finer risk distinctions. Several factors played a role in rating the city at the low end of the investment grade bonds in 1997, but the primary reason had to do with a heavy debt load. Tuesday, the City Council was informed that the investor service the city utilizes, Moody's Investors Service, had assigned a Baa2 rating to the city.

The upgraded bond rating applies to the city's current bond issue of $2.7 million, which was approved Tuesday; and, it also applies to the city's $7.96 million in outstanding parity debt.

A portion of the current bond issuance will be used on refunding of four outstanding issues, which will result in an estimated net present value savings of $53,000. In addition, the upgraded bond rating resulted in competition for the bonds and a very low interest rate of 4.01 percent.

Several reasons were given for the Baa2 rating. Moody's believes that the city's above average debt burden will continue to moderate given the city's lack of future bonding, above average principal payout, and expected future tax base growth. The company also anticipates that Thief River Falls' financial position will remain satisfactory, despite recent budgetary pressures, and given current reserve levels that provide sufficient flexibility for contingencies and continued support from enterprise funds (liquor and electric). Moody's also expects that the city's limited economy will remain stable due to increased diversification. Although still limited in scope, the city's economy has shifted in recent years away from agriculture and agricultural-related business into a more diversified economy that includes manufacturing, health care, education and government.

Fireworks donation. The city council agreed to a $1,000 donation to the Pennington County Fair board that would be used to help pay for the cost of the fireworks display during the county fair.

The council approved the following items from the consent agenda: a salary progression raise for Charles Lindgren, patrol officer; a salary progression raise for Marty Semanko, fire fighter; and a salary progression raise for Shaun

Miss Minnesota Junior Teen is ordinary teenager

■ Hard work and lots of help pays off for Ashley Read of Thief River Falls

by David Hill
Editor

She's an ordinary teenager, as far as teenagers go, but she tends to be relatively neat, and is very organized and responsible, according to the mother of the new Miss Minnesota Junior Teen, Ashley Read.

Ashley worked very hard this summer. "Of course," said her mom, "we told her she had to if she wanted to participate in the Miss Junior Teen Pageant."

Fourteen-year-old Ashley Read, the daughter of Dr. Raymond and Cindy Allard of Thief River Falls, and Ronald and Joan Read of Marshfield, Mass., spent many hours this summer practicing walking around the house in heels, practicing poise and posture, rehearsing her speech until it was memorized, and spending hours working with her coach Darcy Reese.

The hard work paid off. Ashley was crowned Miss Minnesota Junior Teen at the 2001 Miss Minnesota American Co-ed Pageant, which was held at the Marriott Hotel in Minneapolis, July 26-29. She also won the Spirit Award, and a trophy for participating in at least three of the optional contests and came home with a first place trophy in acting, modeling and first runner-up in photogenic. She also won about $1,500 in awards and scholarships, and a $1,000 scholarship to a modeling school in Minneapolis.

What kind of girl is Ashley? Although she likes sports, her passions include singing and dancing, putting on variety shows for the elderly and community theater. When asked during the interview who she admired, Ashley said Shirley Temple because she was an ambassador to a country, and overcame breast cancer. Ashley then admitted that she has always wanted to be like Shirley Temple because of her dancing, singing and acting skills.

Ashley feels there is value to pageants. Participants learn a lot, especially about public speaking, and she said pageants build confidence and self-esteem. She plans to participate in other pageants in the future. Eventually, she wants to pursue a career in communications and performing arts. Pageants will help her achieve this goal.

Just like in the other major pageants, participants were required to have a platform and to perform community service. Ashley's dual platform is to encourage teens to share their lives and interests with elderly, and to encourage teenagers to follow their dreams.

This was Ashley's second experience with the pageant. She placed in the top 10 last year, and came home with the spirit award and runner-up in volunteer service and photogenic.

The purpose of the pageant is to recognize and reward outstanding young women for their past and present accomplishments and to encourage them to set and achieve high goals for the future. Each contestant, and there were about 100 in Ashley's junior teen division this year, were judged in three categories: evening gown, interview, and poise and appearance.

For the talent portion of the event, Ashley performed a dance and singing combination from "All

Rural economy continues to be challenge

"Changing places: shifting livelihoods of people and communities in rural Minnesota," the latest report in a series of publications examining issues facing rural Minnesota, was released recently by Minnesota Planning. The report compares rural and urban economies, traces the struggle of small communities to hold their own against larger cities, and explores policy choices facing rural Minnesota.

Small towns and rural areas play a large role in Minnesota culture. However, prospects for growth are limited, especially in heavily agricultural areas. Income lags behind that of urban areas, economies are less diversified and trade is diminishing.

"Minnesotans want rural areas to remain viable places to live," said Dean Barkley, director of Minnesota Planning. "We must create an environment in which communities and rural Minnesotans can take advantage of opportunities posed by changing rural economies."

Rural per capita income is only about 70 percent of that of metropolitan areas, and the economy is more dependent on transfer payments, such as Social Security. Although rural non-farm income nearly kept pace with that of metropolitan areas between 1972 and 1997, declining farm income weakened many rural areas.

"Changing Places" is available on the Internet at www.mnplan.state.mn.us or by calling Minnesota Planning at 651-296-3985. Minnesota Planning is a state agency that develops long-range plans for the state, stimulates public participation in Minnesota's future and coordinates activities among all levels of government.

Efforts to raise funds for auditory equipment at local school underway

Hearing is getting as much attention these days as lights, chalkboards, and books. Diedre Nordin, speech therapist, said a large percentage of learning is done through hearing. That's the impetus behind an effort to raise funds for the purchase of audio enhancement amplification equipment for each classroom at Challenger Elementary School.

According to research about classroom amplification, approximately 90 percent of a very young child's knowledge is attributed to incidental reception of conversation around them.

Nordin and Kathy Olson, another speech therapist, said they have noticed improvements in learning among children already in classrooms equipped with the new auditory equipment. Nordin added that research supports the conclusion that there will be fewer special education referrals with this system, and test scores will go up. (Thirty percent of all students diagnosed with learning disabilities have histories of chronic middle ear problem.)

Each system consists of four speakers in the ceiling and a teacher wearing an infrared microphone. Nordin said the district gets a discounted price for the system through Northwest Service Co-op. She said it costs approximately $1,500, with shipping and handling, to equip each classroom.

Four kindergarten rooms at the school are already equipped with the system. Nordin said they asked the school board to equip each classroom, but the cost (approximately $140,000) was too prohibitive. Parents and teachers were not deterred by this setback. They saw that the system would be a benefit to everyone in the school room regardless of whether they had a hearing disability, and began raising funds through a variety of efforts. Organizers have also visited with numerous local organizations about the importance of the auditory equipment.

The largest and first approved fund-raising event for the project, however, is the sale of a cookbook. Organizers collected over 1,400 recipes and compiled them in a book of approximately 400 pages. A total of 2,000 cookbooks were printed and will be sold for $13 or two for $25. The books were being sold during the Challenger Open House on August 30, but will also be on sale before and after the first week of school. Thereafter, the books will be available for purchase at the School District Service Center.

With this effort organizers hope to equip 14 classrooms with the audio enhancement equipment.

For years I have been awaiting the third volume of William Manchester's biography of Winston Churchill. Manchester's first two volumes were masterful, but the third volume was to encompass World War II, when Churchill truly shone.

Manchester's writing is informative, but also good and gossipy. He puts in all the juicy details. For instance, he devotes a whole chapter in his second volume to Churchill's odd habits.

Churchill started drinking when he awoke, at about noon, and didn't stop until he went to bed at four a.m. He wrote 56 books in his lifetime, penning nearly all of his dazzling prose between eleven p.m. and four a.m. During those hours, he generally switched from gin to champagne.

From age 16 on, Churchill's valet dressed him every morning. The same servant also toweled him off after his bath. He knew Churchill was done bathing when he heard the honorable gentleman turn a somersault in the bathtub, blowing bubbles as his head went under the water.

If you want more great gossip, find Manchester's biography in a bookstore and read the first chapter of the second volume. That chapter contains some of the finest historical writing I have ever run across.

Needless to say, I have been looking forward to reading Manchester's interpretation of Churchill's performance as British prime minister during the war. Churchill wrote his side of the story, over 3,000 pages worth of wonderful reading, but you have to take it with a grain of salt.

Well, I found out last week why Manchester has never completed the final volume of Churchill's biography. He had a stroke, after which he fully recovered his physical powers. But when Manchester tried to write again, he could not. The sentences did not come.

At age 79, after years of hoping his abilities would return, William Manchester, our greatest living historian, has been forced to give up on his most ambitious project. His biographies of H. L. Mencken, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and John F. Kennedy remain classics, but the Churchill biography was to have been his crowning achievement.

Manchester fought under MacArthur in the Pacific during World War II. However, the first biography he wrote upon his return from the war was of the great American writer and critic, H. L. Mencken. Mencken was Manchester's hero, and is one of my heroes as well.

Now the rest of the story: Soon after Manchester started his research, Mencken had a stroke which took away his ability to read and write. Young Manchester visited Mencken frequently. His purpose was to ask questions about Mencken's life. Mencken could still talk.

But soon young Manchester realized that Mencken longed more than anything for somebody to read to him. Manchester read aloud to Mencken for hundreds of hours over the space of several years, until the old curmudgeon finally died.

Now, through a sad twist of fate, Manchester finds himself in the same sorry state as Mencken in his last years.

Let's hope some young student is reading books aloud to old William Manchester. Sometimes its only right and good that what goes around comes around.

TRF Fire dept. responds to fires Aug. 31

On August 22, Thief River Falls Fire department responded to two fire calls, both of which involved motor vehicles.

One call involved a golf cart on fire. Fire department officials said they responded to the call at a Smiley township residence. The fire damaged the golf cart and siding on the house.

The second call involved a fire in the engine compartment of a 8820 John Deere combine at a location one-half mile east and one-half mile north of Thief River Falls in North Township.

There were no injuries in either fire.

Motivated by her own experience, Linda Wennberg of Thief River Falls, starts new cancer program.

"Hope does not necessarily take the form of excessive confidence: rather, it involves the simple willingness to take the next step — while holding God's hand."

One woman's experience provides motivation for program

by Kathi Carlson
Reporter

During the past 14 months, these words of hope have held a special meaning for Linda Wennberg, particularly after she added the last four words. Faith would certainly play its part as she staged her personal fight with breast cancer.

The treatment for Linda's cancer, which began during the first week of July in 2000, ended with her last radiation session on April 16, and while she knows she needs time to reflect on all she's experienced, she's currently busy coordinating a new program at Northwest Medical Center.

Tell a Friend

Tell A Friend is an intervention program of the American Cancer Society that involves trained volunteer callers contacting friends, family members and acquaintances and encouraging them to get mammograms.

Because the volunteers are contacting women much like themselves, the strategy is called "peer counseling"— a tested strategy that is shown to work.

The program is important because next to lung cancer, breast cancer is the second leading cause of cancer-related death among women in the United States and the most frequently diagnosed non-skin cancer among American women. Early detection is currently the best way of controlling the disease, and a mammogram can find cancer several years before it might be discovered by a woman or her physician.

Although these facts are known about breast cancer, many women age 40 and older have not ever had a mammogram, and many more do not get them every year as recommended by the American Cancer Society. These are the women who need the encouragement and support of a program such as Tell a Friend.

In its efforts to ensure that all women age 40 and older have regular mammograms, the American Cancer Society seeks organizations, groups and individuals to become partners to aid in spreading its message. Partners include church and religious organizations, service organizations, community action agencies, breast cancer advocacy groups, neighborhood organizations, tenant groups, women's clubs, senior centers, health professional organizations, television and radio stations, local businesses and industries and healthcare facilities such as Northwest Medical Center.

According to national statistics provided by the American Cancer Society, 154,542 women have been contracted by 31,474 volunteers from 3,934 partnering organizations since the onset of the program. The contacts have resulted in 24,113 women getting mammograms and approximately 184 diagnoses.

Getting Involved

As a local partnering organization, Northwest Medical Center encourages all women who realize the importance of mammograms to get involved in the program.

A registration deadline of Monday, September 10, has been set to enable organizers to plan training sessions and order volunteer kits and materials.

Three training sessions for Tuesday, October 2, are planned from 9 a.m. to noon, 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m., an appropriate kick-off for Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Regional American Cancer Society staff will lead the training sessions.

During the three-hour session, women will learn more about breast cancer and mammography which will help them feel more comfortable when talking to their friends.

While the telephone contact may mean a world of difference to a woman receiving a call, the procedure is simple for volunteers. Ideally, calls will be made Thursday, October 4, or within a few days of the training session. After a follow-up call is made about two weeks later, the provided tracking information is completed and turned in to a designated project coordinator.

To volunteer for the program, call Linda Wennberg at NWMC, 683-4327 or her home, 681-1218; Cathy Loe or Tricia Hoyt in the X-ray department at NWMC, 683-4477, or Gail Holland in the public relations department at NWMC, 683-4210.

A Natural for Linda

In her job as Performance Improvement Coordinator at NWMC, organizing the Tell a Friend program was a natural for Linda, especially when she says her job was so important in helping to sustain her through her own cancer treatment. Though her cancer was not detected through a mammogram, she appreciates its importance and usefulness in early detection.

Linda accidently discovered a fingertip-size lump in her breast while lying in bed on Sunday, June 25, 2000.

It was a busy week in the Wennberg household as Linda's husband, Dale, prepared for his 40th Lincoln High School class reunion festivities scheduled for that weekend.

Nonetheless, when Linda ran into Dr. Jerome Bray in the hallway at NWMC Wednesday, she mentioned the lump in her breast and the sore, swollen lymph nodes under her arm. Although, following a brief examination, Dr. Bray assured her that it was probably nothing to be concerned about, an ultrasound and mammogram were scheduled.

On Friday, July 7, Dr. Bray performed a lumpectomy and removed the lymph nodes from under her arm. As Linda rested over the weekend, Dale attended his class reunion events without her.

She remembers the moment clearly when on Monday, July 10, Dr. Bray told her that she had cancer. She recalls, too, the question she asked him, "Dr. Bray, will I be alive a year from today?"

Linda's stage II cancer was determined to be grade III or fast-growing. While stage II is considered to be an early stage of breast cancer, the disease has invaded nearby tissue and is described in one of the following ways: the tumor, in the breast is less than one inch across, and the cancer has spread to the lymph nodes under the arm; the tumor is between one and one inches with or without spread to the lymph nodes under the arm; or the tumor is larger than two inches but has not spread to the lymph nodes under the arm.

While as a registered nurse and hospital employee Linda was no stranger to cancer, she generally thought of it as "somebody else's" disease, and her medical background did not keep her from believing some of the frightening myths that surround breast cancer. She was forced to face her own mortality, and what was once clinical and routine became the center of her existence.

Linda and Dale's son, Paul, is a physician in Rochester, and an appointment at the Mayo Clinic was scheduled for Thursday, July 13. On Friday, she had surgery again, and while she was prepared for a mastectomy, surgeons rather went in and made sure everything was clean following the previous week's surgery.

After enduring two surgical procedures in a week's time, Linda was sent home Sunday, July 16, to recuperate from her ordeal and prepare for the next course of treatment.

Patients with stage II breast cancer may have breast-sparing surgery followed by radiation therapy as their primary local treatment, or they may have a mastectomy, with or without breast reconstruction. Sometimes radiation therapy is also given to the chest wall after mastectomy. While these approaches are considered equally effective in treating early stage breast cancer, the choice between breast-sparing surgery and a mastectomy depends mostly on the size and location of the tumor, the size of the woman's breast, certain features of the cancer and how the woman feels about preserving her breast. With both approaches, lymph nodes under the arm are usually removed. In addition to surgery or surgery and radiation, most women with stage II breast cancer also have chemotherapy and/or hormonal treatment. This treatment, called adjuvant therapy, is given in an attempt to destroy any remaining cancer cells and prevent the cancer from recurring.

Linda's chemotherapy treatment involved her participation in a phase III clinical study. Two approved drugs were administered to women in four groups. Half of the women received a large dosage every three weeks, and half were given a smaller dosage once a week.

Her treatment began in August with Linda among those who received the smaller weekly dosage. The first drug was administered twice in Rochester and twice in Thief River Falls. She received two treatments of the second cycle of drugs in Rochester and the last 12 treatments in Thief River Falls before completing treatment on February 2.

While the side effects of chemotherapy are considered short-term problems, that fact is of little comfort to those enduring the treatment.

Although side effects vary from person to person, anticancer drugs generally affect rapidly dividing cells, including the blood cells which fight infection, cause blood to clot and carry oxygen to various part of the body. When blood cells are affected, patients are more prone to infections, bruising or bleeding and may have less energy during and after treatment.

Because the cells in hair follicles and those that line the digestive tract also divide rapidly, patients may lose their hair and have other side effects such as loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea or mouth sores.

Linda received her chemotherapy treatments on Fridays so that she would have time to recover over the weekend and prior to the work week. While she says she missed some work, she also says it was her job that kept her going.

Linda experienced the usual nausea and feelings of fatigue that she says she is incapable of describing. During the course of treatment, she also lost 14 pounds from her already slight frame and experienced the heartbreaking loss of her hair.

An unusual side effect that Linda dealt with was the formation of steroidal cataracts caused by the antiemetic drugs she was given to combat nausea. The cataracts necessitated two additional surgeries.

Linda stayed with son Paul and his family during her six weeks of radiation therapy in Rochester. She completed her therapy on April 16.

The end of her treatment marked the beginning of the "wait and see" game that she and all breast cancer patients must participate in.

Currently, she says she is still experiencing some fatigue and has superficial thrombophlebitis in her arm for which she is taking a blood-thinning medication.

Because each breast cancer patient is different, it's impossible to predict the future. While statistics reflect the experience of a large group of patients, they can't be effectively used to predict what the future holds for a particular woman.

Comforting to Linda is the fact that age was the only factor that led to her breast cancer. According to 1999 ACS statistics, women in the 50- to 59-year-old age group accounted for 25.1 percent of all new breast cancer cases.

Also, comforting is the knowledge that as researchers continue to look for better ways to detect and treat breast cancer, the chances for survival keep improving.

Taking It In

Just as she says she never asked, "Why me?" Linda says she didn't want to do a "poor me" story.

It's hard to feel sympathy for a woman who so obviously isn't feeling sorry for herself.

Evident is her sense of humor when she tells of her Two Rules for Cancer Patients.

The first, Linda says, is to think of yourself first and get a good wig. The second rule is that those who wear wigs should be entitled to a handicap sticker for their car.

While she's got a great looking head of hair in the form of a wig, she has tales about trying to keep it on her head on windy days and when faced with a fan as the elevator door opens at the hospital.

More difficult, however, is learning to put herself first. Women, Linda says, are accustomed instead to caring for others. She was no different, and when her breast cancer was diagnosed, she was not only working full-time at the hospital but taking care of the books for Wennbergs. Friend Linda Goulet stepped in and took over her bookkeeping duties.

While her breast cancer experience is very personal, Linda recognizes the toll it has taken on others, particularly daughter Karin, who lives in Illinois. Not only was she far away and concerned about her mother, but forced to deal with the fact that breast cancer would become a part of her health history.

With faith an important aspect of her journey, Linda even says that her rare cataract complication was the result of God's intervention. All the while her eyesight worsened from week to week, she says she was thinking she looked pretty good. However, after one cataract was removed in Rochester, Linda says she was faced with the truth about her appearance and decided that the loss of vision had been God's way of protecting her from it.

Looking at the attractive woman today, one would never guess that breast cancer treatment is a part of her so recent past. Life has gone on, with moments of joy spurring her toward wellness recovery.

Recent family photographs include pictures of four handsome grandchildren, three grandsons and a new granddaughter whose baptismal rite was performed by a recently ordained nephew.

On Mother's Day, Linda participated in the 9th annual Komen Twin Cities Race for the Cure, a 5k run/walk that raises money for breast cancer. She was one of nearly 40,000 participants and a member of "Team Wennberg," a team organized by her godchild, Angelique Goulet. Linda says she was very touched by Angelique's gesture and found out about Team Wennberg only days before the race.

Linda's godchild's support is only an example of the many acts of kindness and support a grateful Linda has received her family, friends and co-workers.

Linda's participation in the Twin Cities Race for the Cure also serves as an example of her commitment of doing what she can to fight breast cancer. She also took part in Red Lake county's recent Relay for Life and says that heading up the Tell a Friend program goes hand and hand with her job as Performance Improvement Coordinator at NWMC.

While she knows she needs to take time to physically recover and mentally and emotionally absorb all that has happened to her in recent months, Linda says, "I want to make a difference."

UMC makes changes, launches new program

"It's all been a part of a strategic effort to attract and serve the kinds of students who traditionally do well at the college level," says Don Sargeant, chancellor of the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) "As a campus, we've made some policy and program changes that will have a very positive effect on our students' overall college experience," Sargeant says, referring to changes in academic policies that affect this fall's incoming students.

This year, the Crookston campus changed its admissions policy, moving the institution from open enrollment where the only requirement was a high school diploma or GED to what are considered to be more traditional college admissions requirements. UMC's updated policy requires incoming first-year students to have a high school rank within the top half of their graduating class or an ACT test score of 21 or higher.

In addition to the changes in admissions policy, UMC has refined its academic policies to more efficiently identify students who may need academic help. "We want students to succeed. We also understand that early identification of students who may need academic support and then working with those students is the key to that success," says Doug Knowlton, vice chancellor for academic affairs.

With that in mind, UMC inaugurates is First Year Experience (FYE) program this fall. The program is designed to deal more efficiently with student issues. Its goals are to offer greater support, encourage peer learning, reinforce interdisciplinary connections and involve faculty and staff more actively in students' lives.

As part of FYE, UMC is piloting the Living and Learning program, involving a group of first-year students who will live together on the same floor of a residence hall and take required courses together. Knowlton adds, "It's commonly known that students who find ways to fit in on campus from day one are much more likely to return each semester and ultimately graduate. While we already believe that the friendly, personalized atmosphere at UMC has historically been a reason students choose UMC, we do want to build on that and constantly improve."

Officials expected the academic changes, coupled with the declining number of high school graduates in the region, to lead to a slight dip in enrollment when fall's semester classes began Tuesday, August 28. Russ Kreager, director of enrollment management, predicted that UMC will have enrollment of approximately 1,120 full-time degree-seeking students, down about five percent as compared to last year.

Administrators, faculty and staff remain optimistic, however, viewing this as a short-term bump on the road of a long-term quest for improvement. "These initiatives will help us improve the quality of the services and academic programs offered to our students in nearly every aspect and will definitely move UMC toward the ultimate goal of becoming an exemplary polytechnic university," says Sargeant.

SPEAKING OF . . .

Sherry LaCoursiere

...How Do You Go To The Bathroom?

I told you I was going to babysit a couple of my grandchildren. Well, I did. And now I have some questions for you mothers and fathers.

Don't tell me that I should know all of this stuff because I had five children of my own. I think they are making kids different nowadays. I don't remember having all this trouble when mine were little. Today's children seem to be harder to raise, if you ask me.

First of all, how do you find time to go to the bathroom? The first time I tried to get into the bathroom, I left the door a open a little bit so they could find me in an emergency. That wasn't a good idea. I barely had time to get into the room and turn around and there were two little faces with four little eyes watching me. I realized this wouldn't work.

Then I decided I would announce to the kids where I was going and give the four-year-old the job of "babysitting" the two-year-old while I was otherwise occupied. Two seconds after I sat down in the little room, both of them were outside the door. Little hands knocked on the door. "Grandma, Grandma, are you done?" "Grandma, Grandma, when are you coming out?" Being interrupted and/or hurrying is not a good potty break for a grandmother of my age.

After a few uncomfortable hours, I found the best way to d[illegible] the kids busy with something really interesting and as safe as possible, like rolling play dough with their mother's good rolling pin, and I just hurriedly sneaked off without telling them. By that time I knew they would find me if they needed me. I just hoped it might take them a little longer before they were knocking at the door.

Is your dining area the busiest place in the house? I think we spent more time at the table than anywhere else in the house. Either we were preparing to eat, which included deciding what everyone wanted, finding the food, preparing the food, getting it to the table at the same time as the children, eating the food, or cleaning up afterward - cleaning everything - children, walls, floor, chairs, table, etc. By the time we finished all of that, it was usually time to get ready for the next meal.

I'd forgotten the length of time it takes for children to eat. My little granddaughter, who is two, spends most of her time at the table. She doesn't dawdle on purpose, or play with toys, or do anything that she shouldn't be doing. She just sits there smiling and popping a bit of food into her mouth whenever she feels like it. She does have quite a bit to say while she's eating, but that shouldn't interfere. It is a female thing, after all. Her hot food turns cold and her cold food turns hot long before she has finished her plate. But she eats it anyway, smiling all the time.

And what are these sippy cups? I'm beginning to think they are replacements for pacifiers and bottles. There were sippy cups all over the house, filled with various liquids. My daughter has a whole chunk of her cupboard filled with sippy cups, but I still found myself washing them constantly. I would find them in the strangest places in the house and I never knew what was in them. If I couldn't identify what was in it, I threw it away and washed the cup. And those sippy cups are different. I pulled out all the little innards and washed them well and let them air dry. Then, like puzzles, I had to try to figure out how to put them back together again. Some of them didn't get put back together at all.

Speaking of puzzles, what do people do with toys nowadays? I know kids are supposed to have educational toys, but it seems that those educational toys have so many pieces - all those puzzle pieces and letters and numbers. And of course you want to bring out the artist in them with crayons and chalk and paints and markers and chalkboards and coloring books and more. People need entire rooms filled with shelves to keep all the toys that children have. No wonder houses are getting bigger and bigger. (And isn't it true that their favorite toys are the one-pieces ones, like Woody from "Toy Story," or the little toy lawnmower or the little "Lambie" stuffed toy?)

Do you parents ever read an entire novel just for the fun of it? I don't mean you have to read it all in one sitting, but do you ever get one finished while you still have pre-schoolers? I had a book along. I think I read six pages of it. The only time I had to read was once I got into bed and before I fell asleep. And believe me, that wasn't a very long time after the days I had.

We watched some television. Do parents ever get to watch anything but cartoons? I got to know all of the characters on all of the cartoons. I got to enjoy the cartoons. I enjoyed them so much that once I realized I was sitting by myself in the living room watching cartoons while the kids disappeared into one of the bedrooms and got into mischief with their mother's jewelry box. I had been entirely engrossed in a "Thornberry" cartoon. Amazing! It's really a cute cartoon, by the way.

Being with preschoolers seems to be a world unto itself. Half the time I didn't know what day it was, I didn't know anything about what was happening in the world because I didn't have time to read the paper and, as I said, I watched a lot of cartoons and didn't see any news. Sometimes I had no idea what time it was.

The first thing I did when I got home was turn on the radio and read the paper - in the bathroom.

School News & Views

Irv Peterson, Superintendent
School District 564

Will the school board of ISD 564 ask the voters for an excess levy referendum? As reported in the news by Lee Richards after the August 27 school board meeting, that is a possibility. I'll try, in the next few paragraphs, to explain why.

The change in legislation for funding public schools in Minnesota is quite dramatic beginning with this fall's levy. Not only does the State of Minnesota take over complete funding for the general education formula in the general fund, alleviating the local property owners of funding that portion of K-12 education, it also took over the first $415 per pupil unit (ppu) of referendum revenue for all schools. Our local district had only a $336 ppu level of referendum, so that complete amount will also be taken off the local property taxes. The result is that local property taxes will be significantly less than last year for K-12 education.

It should also be noted at this time that this legislative change is a permanent change. We must remember that every time the legislature convenes, it likely will make some changes to education formulas, but this change is permanent, and all the referendums that schools had that were $415 ppu or less will be permanently taken off local property owners. The result is that the Thief River Falls district no longer has an excess levy referendum.

As state aid, this revenue will now dome to schools from a different pool of money. Rather than property taxes, this revenue is coming from income taxes and sales taxes. If school districts need additional revenue to continue to provide the programs they need for their local schools, they need to present new referendum elections to their voters. For districts that did not have referendums, this $415 ppu is new money for them. For districts that did have a referendum, it is only a shift of where the money came from.

For many districts, an additional category of funding has been equity revenue. Equity revenue is a new category of revenue started just two years ago. The amount of equity revenue districts received varied, depending on the size of their referendum and whether or not they received supplemental and transitional revenue. If a district did not have a referendum, they only qualified for $10 ppu of equity revenue. If they had a referendum, they qualified for substantially more equity revenue.

By wiping out the whole category of referendum revenue for many districts like Thief River Falls, they also wiped out the vast majority of the equity revenue we once received. For the year 2001-2002, our school district receives $119,466 in equity revenue. With the referendum wiped out for next year and our qualifying for only the $10 ppu of equity revenue, we are scheduled to receive only $24,104. I don't believe that was intentional by the legislature as it never was a topic that was presented to superintendents or school officials. It only became an issue in the past couple of weeks as CFL officials started doing the calculations for districts for the 2002-2003 school year.

That presents school districts with a window of time this fall to present referendum elections to their school district voters to not only increase their revenue through the referendum itself, but to reinstate that equity revenue which was taken from them. Equity revenue is based on a sliding scale and varies somewhat from year to year, but in a nutshell, the following is what this opportunity presents to the Thief River Falls School District regarding referendum and equity revenue and the tax impact on local property owners.

If we held an election for referendum revenue of $126 ppu, the local property tax impact would be about $81,150 for our property owners and $355,571 of state aid combined to bring us a total revenue in this area of $436,721. Of that $436,721, only 18.6 percent would be generated by local property taxes. That $81,150 represents a dramatic decrease from the current $247,160 of local property taxes for the referendum levy which was passed in 1997 in the Thief River Falls School District. That $247,160 no longer exists. The reason I mention $126 ppu is not because it is a round number, but that is the amount that receives the full equalization of state aid. Any higher amount would put a larger tax burden on local property owners.

Another issue regarding referendum tax impacts is that agricultural land is no longer taxed for school referendums. Only the value of the house, garage and one acre is taxed for school referendums from now on.

There are many more issues to be discussed if a referendum election is presented to the voters, but I wanted you to have a little information prior to the board's decision on September 10 as whether to proceed or not to proceed with the issue and present it to the public.

The News and Your Child

Today's children do not live in a vacuum. They are not only a part of our families and community, but with the communications system we have today, they are very much aware of our world.

To help a child understand all of these many messages and events in our world, it may be wise to try to share the news with him or her. This can be done through the newspapers or news magazines.

Encourage, help and assist the child in the clipping of various pictures that he or she can relate to. These may include people in our community whose pictures appear in the local paper, pictures of our president or pictures of children in other countries. They can be put on a bulletin board or attached to the refrigerator.

It is also wise to have a map to point out where these events are occurring in relationship to where you live. You may be surprised at a child's interest and knowledge.

PARENTING TIPS

Loving Without Smothering

It can be hard to be a parent. Sometimes all the advice from "experts" can make you worry that you're not doing enough. This guilt can make you over-protective of your child. Try to be alert to how your behavior affects your child without becoming anxious about it.

If you make mistakes, try to learn from them and then let go. The wonderful thing about young children is that you get a new chance with each moment. They don't hold resentments.

Give your child a chance to be her own person. Don't do things for her that she can do for herself. Don't protect her from the natural consequences of her own mistakes. Expect her to take responsibility for herself whenever possible.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

If you feel your child is able to hang her coat on a hook (for example) then tell her so. In a matter-of-fact voice, say, "I expect you to hang your coat on the hook when you take it off." And then let her do it. You may have to repeat your statement.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: A recent application of mine for disability was denied but in the meantime I believe that my medical condition has gotten worse. Would it be better to file a new application or use the appeal process to have the denial reviewed?

A: Use the appeals process. Using the appeals process keeps your application active and that is very important for items such as possible back payment if you are later found eligible. Remember to follow the specific timeframes as shown on your decision letter to request an appeal. The Social Security Administration has had an appeals system in place since the program began and it exists to be used if a claimant disagrees with a decision. Although most agency decisions can be appealed, nowadays the most common issue involves disability. It is not unusual for an initial denial to be reversed to an allowance during the appeals process because, as in your situation, the person's health becomes worse. Another reason is time. As time progresses, an originally optimistic medical evaluation by your doctors can be seen to change. Lastly, different stages of appeals process are handled in different ways. For example, at one level, called Reconsideration, there is a review of a case file and at another, called a Hearing, you have the opportunity to actually visit with the decision-maker. It is best to appear in person if you have the option to do so.

Q: How many children receive Social Security benefits?

A: In 1999 over three million children under age 18 and students aged 18-19 received Social Security because of a parents' retirement, disability or death. About half of the children received monthly benefits because of the death of a parent.

Q: I work for a school district that does not pay into the Social Security system but I worked long enough for a different employer to be covered for future SSA retirement benefits. Will I still have coverage for survivor or disability benefits? Will my future retirement be a lot less because I'm no longer paying into Social Security?

A: Once you have enough coverage to be insured for retirement, usually 40 quarters of coverage, that coverage will stay with you for both retirement and survivor benefit purposes even if you no longer are in SSA covered work. This is not true for disability coverage as that requires ongoing work covered by Social Security to stay in effect. Benefit amounts are based directly on your SSA earnings over many years. For example, 35 years of earnings are usually used to compute a retirement benefit. Given that your recent work history is zero for SSA purposes, any future retirement or survivor benefits will be lower than if you had continued to work in SSA covered work. You also need to remember that any pension you received based on government work, if that work is not covered by Social Security, will result in lower SSA benefits to you. Since your school district work is considered government work, and not covered by SSA, this will effect you. For more information, request free SSA Factsheets "A Pension From Work Not Covered by Social Security" (publication 05-10045) and "Government Pension Offset" (publication 05-10007). Both are available from the SSA Web site www.ssa.gov or any SSA office.

ROCKET SPEEDWAY

A nice car count and large crowd were on hand for the Rocket Speedway season finale Saturday night. Track conditions were good and the racing proved to be excellent as point titles were decided and the Super Tracks provided some extra action.

John Halvorson (Warren) won the Wissota Super Stocks feature, but not without a fight. Bob Shafer (Bemidji) passed Halvorson in Turn 2 on the final lap. Halvorson charged back to retake the lead coming out of Turn 4 to beat Shafer and third place finisher Paul Bergren (Karlstad) to the finish line by just a few feet. Mike McCaughan (St. Francis Xavier, Man.) finished fourth and captured the points title.

For the first time this season Kevin Sexton did not finish with a podium appearance. The Winnipeg, Man. Modifieds racer had the point title wrapped up entering Saturday night's action, and raced to a third place finish – his poorest feature finish this season at the Rocket. Dave Riopelle (Argyle) won the feature, with Rick Delaine (Stony Mt., Man.) third.

Robert Weleski (Lancaster) finished the Pure Stocks season with a feature win and the points championship. As always, the Pure Stocks provided a lot of fun for the fans. Weleski weaved through lap traffic to the finish line. While Weleski was out front, Jim Hilman (Lancaster), Steffan Snare (Hallock) and Casey Faken (Lancaster) jockeyed for second-through-fourth, and finished in that order.

Super Trucks made their third appearance of the year at the Rocket, and the results were the same for Lynn Lucken (Winger), who had won the previous two features and completed the sweep with a win Saturday. Lucken started eighth in the line-up and took the lead for good by Lap 6. Rick Johnson (Badger) made his Rocket debut and finished second in the feature. Johnson, starting ninth in the 10-truck line-up, was the only other American driver in the field.

The track also held a mechanics race following the regular racing program. Frank Noriekis won the Super Stocks race; Jordan Foss raced to a win in the Modifieds; and Jim Weleski drove to the win in the Pure Stocks.

The Saturday night show was concluded with an awards presentation and a late-night pork feed in the pit area of the track.

GREENBUSH RACE PARK

The 2001 race season came to an end at the Greenbush Race Park Friday night as the track hosted its Season Finale and awards presentations.

Entering the evening, Rod Peterson (Thief River Falls) had just a three-point lead over Dave Meyer (Thief River Falls) in the Street Stocks. Meyer would finish two spots ahead of Peterson in the heat, leading to a showdown for the feature race – with the winner taking the title. Meyer drove a flawless race, with Peterson on his rear bumper for most of it. Meyer would win the feature and claim the title by just a single point.

Steffan Snare (Hallock) passed Jim Hilman (Lancaster) on Lap 7 of the Pure Stocks feature to lead the final eight laps for the win. Hilman, who finished second in the feature, won the season point title.

It was a tough night in the Mini-Sprints, where Clay Sorteberg (Greenbush) took an early lead, but an opening-lap spin collected Dennis Rantanen and Robbi Peterson, who were running second and third. The incident ended the night for Sorteberg and Peterson, and left Rantanen out front to win the feature. Rantanen (Thief River Falls) claimed the points title.

Dean Wensloff (Roseau) ran flag-to-flag for the feature win in the Super Stocks. Wensloff was challenged by Paul Bergren (Karlstad) a couple of times during the 15-lap event, but was unable to get by, finishing second. Bryon Berger (Badger) was third, with points champion Gordie Lancaster (Bemidji) finishing fourth.

Nolan Olmstead (Badger) led the final 12 laps of the Modifieds feature to pick-up the win. Dean Forst (Thief River Falls) was second, with Dale Holtan (Newfolden) third. Points champion Dave Riopelle (Argyle) was a close fourth.

The Race Park concluded the evening by providing a free-late night lunch for racers, pit crews and fans. Points plaques and jackets were presented to the top three drivers in each division, with checks also issued to the top five drivers in both the Super Stocks and Modifieds.

Rookie of the Year award was presented to Justin Peterson (Lancaster), a racer in the Pure Stocks division.

The Race Park also drew from its kids registrants during the season for the Brodin Sheet Metal-Bryant Go-Cart, won by Josh Pietruszewski of Kennedy.

LHS students sponsored at Biz Blast

Joseph Haj and Aaron Field, students from Lincoln High School in Thief River Falls, attended Minnesota Business Venture (MBV) this summer at St. John's University and the College of St. Scholastica. Lee's Plumbing of Thief River Falls and Otter Tail Power awarded scholarships for the students to attend MBV.

MBV, a program of BestPrep, takes students out of the classroom and puts them into the world of business. Among other weekly activities, MBV students establish their own business, produce and present a business plan to a panel of real bankers, go through mock job interviews and learn how to invest in the stock market and actually trade commodities.

Students are separated into small groups called companies, and each company has a Resident Business Leader (RBL). RBLs volunteer a week to mentor students both at camp and after and come from Minnesota's top corporations, such as American Express, Lutheran Brotherhood, Xcel Energy and Ecolab.

During camp, students had the opportunity to learn about entrepreneurship from Leeann Chin, founder of the restaurant chain bearing her name, which now employs more than 1,600 people and Roger Schelper, founder of Davannie's Pizza and Hoagies. Dave Best, the marketing manager of Trix and Lucky Charms cereals shared behind the scenes information on how General Mills markets their famous cereals.

One of the camp's favorite speakers, however, was "Famous Dave" Anderson, founder of the "Famous Dave" BBQ restaurants. A self-made millionaire many times over, Famous Dave's unique blend of motivational speaking and real world examples of his own failures and success was one of the most inspiring moments at camp.

Minnesota Business Venture will be offered to high school students in grades 9-12 next summer at both St. John's University and the College of St. Scholastica. Correction

In the August 29 edition of The Times, the Pennington County Historical Society was inadvertently named as the recipient of a $5,000 Hertz Foundation grant. The Pennington County Humane Society is the grateful recipient of the grant which which is designated for its kennel fund. The Times regrets this error.

Humane society President Vicky Heckman also brought it to the attention of The Times that the initials "PCHS" should only be used when referring to the local historical society.

Ashley Read of Thief River Falls was recently crowned Miss Junior Teen of the American Co-ed Pageant. Ashley's nine-year-old sister enjoyed attending the pageant and giving Ashley pointers on how to prepare for the event. Ashley and her family refer to her as "the coach".

That Jazz" in the play Chicago. She also performed an additional dance number: "She Loves You, She Loves You Not" by Dream. In preparing these numbers, she received quite a bit of assistance from Deb Fontaine, her dance instructor, and Darey Reese.

Her speech was entitled "Touching Someone Else's Life."

"I was ecstatic when they announced my name for winning the title of actress and model, but I became numb when they called fourth runner up, third runner up, second, first and then . . . the Miss Minnesota Junior Teen Queen 2001, Ashley Read. It was the most exciting thing that has ever happened to me. I felt the rush of adrenaline and then my entire body went numb. My mom said I looked as though I was hyperventilating, but I was just shocked," said Ashley.

Ashley has worked with many people during the summer and wants to thank all of them for their support and confidence. "It makes me so happy to know that you have such faith in me."

In addition to working with Darey Reese, Ashley worked with Vanessa Anderson, Deb Fontaine, Miss Thief River Falls Rachael Mathson, and received the support of numerous sponsors including: Valley Home, Dakota Clinic, Kezar Music, Westside Motors, Freeman and Associates, Bergan Travel, Arctic Cat, Northern State Bank, Toi's Studio for Hair, and Sears.

As the winner of this year's state pageant, Ashley qualifies to participate in the national pageant for her age group in Florida at Walt Disney World, and will be competing for the National Title of Miss American Junior Teen for 2002 and more than $25,000 in cash awards, prizes and scholarships. The pageant will be held over Thanksgiving weekend. The event is organized and sponsored by the American Co-ed Pageants, Inc., of Florida.

Body pulled from Red Lake River

On September 3, at approximately 6:44 p.m., the Red Lake County Sheriff's department was contacted regarding a missing person who was last seen on the Red Lake River in Red Lake Falls.

Members of the Red Lake County Sheriff's department, along with the Red Lake Falls fire department and the Red Lake Falls ambulance began searching for the person in the river and the surrounding area. At approximately 9:31 p.m., the body of a 23-year-old male was pulled from the river. The identification of the male is being withheld, pending notification of relatives.

Chelsey Bottem and Katie Peterick display the rules Elks Lodge 1308 established for teen dances held at the club. Six dances were held at the club during the summer and there were very few problems and no property damage. Organizers were very pleased and commended the youth for their positive behavior. The rules simply ask that youth respect the alcohol, drug and tobacco free policy, respect their property, respect the volunteers, respect each other, and have fun.

State auditor releases report on county finances

The unreserved fund balances of Minnesota counties increased 22.1 percent between 1995 and 1999, according to a report released by State Auditor Judi Dutcher. The annual report, "Revenues, Expenditures and Debt of Minnesota Counties," presents a detailed analysis of the 1999 finances for counties. The report discusses five-year trends in county finances and includes a new section that identifies factors affecting county operations.

While county unreserved fund balances have increased, current expenditures have grown faster. The report presents unreserved fund balances as a percentage of total current expenditures for each county to show the ability of a county to meet necessary expenditures for the first half of the next year. The average of this ratio for all counties decreased from 46.3 percent in 1995 to 45.0 percent in 1999. Unreserved fund balances as a percent of total current expenditures for individual counties ranged from a low of 22.2 percent to a high of 443.4 percent.

Counties need to maintain a sufficient fund balance at year-end to cover expenditures during the first five months of the next year until the first property tax and state aid payments are received. Counties that maintain fund balances significantly greater than what is required to cover expenses during the first five months of the fiscal year may be collecting a greater amount of tax revenue than is needed. Conversely, counties that do not maintain sufficient reserves may be at risk of not having enough cash to meet current expenditures. The Office of the State Auditor recognizes that numerous factors can impact what an appropriate fund balance may be for any one county.

• Between 1998 and 1999, overall county spending grew 7.0 percent while revenues increased 4.0 percent. Current expenditures grew 4.7 percent, capital outlays grew 15.8 percent, and debt service expenditures grew 19.8 percent. Spending on human services accounted for the largest share of county expenditures, followed by public safety, and streets and highways.

• Between 1995 and 1999, total current expenditures grew faster than per capita personal income for three of the five years. Conversely, per capita personal income grew faster than governmental revenues for three of the five years.

• County long-term debt remained relatively flat increasing from $1.30 billion to $1.31 billion between 1995 and 1999. Capital spending for counties grew from $408.0 million in 1995 to $569.0 million in 1999.

Auditor Dutcher also released a companion report "Ranking of 1999 Per Capita Expenditures and Long-Term Debt of Counties." The per capita report ranks counties in 14 different categories of expenditures and debt. The report provides citizens and local government officials with a tool to compare their county's per capita expenditures with similarly sized counties.

In addition to these two reports, the Office of the State Auditor (OSA) maintains an interactive database containing several years of data that can be accessed through its Web site. The database allows users to customize the presentation of data to their individual needs. The results of a query can simply be viewed, or saved to file for downloading. The OSA Web site address is www.osa.state.mn.us.

Dan Almquist stepped around Albany defensive back Chris Rothstein on a six-yard carry during Thief River Falls' 2001 season-opening high school football game Friday. The Huskies beat the Prowlers 47-14 in the first-ever meeting between the two teams. Thief River Falls will make its Sea Range Conference debut Friday with a 5:15 p.m. game at Duluth Denfeld.

Albany is a 47-14 winner over TRF

■ Huskies show why they are one of the favorites in Class AAA

Albany reached the Class AAA state high school football playoff finals in 2000 with a team full of underclassmen. Many expect the Interstate 94 team located just north of St. Cloud to be back in the Metrodome for the 2001 version of the Prep Bowl. Count Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm among the believers after watching his AAAA team absorb a season-opening 47-14 Friday night thumping at the hands of the Huskies.

"That's a very good football team," said Mumm. "In my 17 years (as Thief River Falls coach), I don't know if we've ever played anybody better in an opening game. They're so quick off the ball. The way they come up to the ball and fire off the line is tremendous."

The winners scored on four of their five first half possessions and three of four second half drives before the Huskies' reserves stalled at midfield in a late-game appearance. Only non-scoring trips for the Albany starters ended with fumbles at the Thief River Falls 12 and 13-yard lines.

"We played a lot of inexperienced kids, and we've got a lot of work to do," acknowledged Mumm, "but overall, for our first game, I didn't think we played that bad. I think this team can do some good things; but they (Albany) just didn't give us a chance to show it."

Albany went 63 yards in seven plays after the opening kickoff to quickly establish dominance. A 38-yard gain off a quarterback keeper by Cory Schiffler that carried to the Thief River Falls 7-yard line was the big gainer on the drive. Curt Grabmeier stepped through the middle on the next play for the touchdown.

After a fumble ended a second Albany drive, the Huskies went 40 yards on six plays the next time they got their hands on the ball to take a 14-0 lead when Schiffler reached the end zone with a quarterback sneak on the first snap of the second quarter.

Albany linebacker Aaron Blackmore stepped in front of a Thief River Falls screen pass at the Huskies' 40 and returned the interception to the Prowlers' 4-yard line before being brought down from behind. On first down, Dan Hills went off left tackle for the touchdown and a 20-0 spread.

Another Thief River Falls turnover – a fumble at the Prowlers' 47 – was converted into a 10-play Albany scoring drive that ended with Schiffler scoring off a scramble on a roll to the left with 1:11 left in the first half.

The Albany offense did not miss a beat in the second half, covering 58 yards in six plays on their first possession for a 34-0 cushion when an 18-yard gain off a keeper by Schiffler set up a 1-yard touchdown dive by Hills.

It was 40-0 by quarter's end when Ben Grutsch went over the top on a snap from the one that capped a 10-play, 69-yard drive with just 12.8 seconds left.

Thief River Falls' offense got on the board on the ensuing possession – a 7-play, 63-yard effort that featured runs of 17 and 39 yards by Dan Almquist and a 5-yard touchdown by Jon Swanson, who was able to spin out of the arms of Albany defenders to score with 9:12 remaining in the game.

Final Albany touchdown was a 3-yard run through the middle by Todd Kohorst that ended an 11-play, 65-yard drive with 4:05 to play.

The Prowlers answered on the very next snap when Dane Kjono took an inside hand-off to the right corner of the end zone on a 57-yard breakaway with 3:41 on the clock.

Both Thief River Falls extra point kicks came from Stephan Hahn, a foreign exchange student from Germany.

Thief River Falls will be on the road again Friday for the first of three games against Duluth schools this fall – this one a 5:15 p.m. kickoff against Denfeld. The Prowlers' home opener will be Sept. 14 against East, and they will return to the Port City for a Sept. 28 matchup with Central.

Standing tall on the court Tuesday (Aug. 28) was 6-3 Crookston sophomore Lexi Scheer, who had a 10-kill, 8-block night against Thief River Falls in the 2001 high school volleyball opener for both teams. The Prowlers' Ann Marban (left) and Mendi Johnson lined up in front of Scheer on this service attempt by the visiting Pirates, who won 15-10, 15-9, 15-11.

NCTC home debut is Saturday vs. Raiders

Central Lakes will be the opponent Saturday when the Northland Community and Technical College football team makes its 2001 home debut. Kickoff at the Multi-Events Center is scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

If the series follows a recent trend, it could be an interesting match-up. Northland has won the last two meetings by a combined five points. A year ago the Pioneers pulled out a 17-14 overtime victory. In 1999 Northland edged the Brainerd-area school 28-26.

The Pioneers are coming off a season-opening 45-6 loss at the hands of defending state champion Rochester in the Aug. 24 Minnesota Community College Conference Kickoff Classic that was followed by a Week 2 bye.

In that game, the Yellowjackets out-gained the Pioneers 474-208 in total offensive yards – a 282-137 edge on the ground and a 192-71 difference in passing. Highly-regarded Rochester runningback Rod Malone finished with 166 yards on 16 carries that afternoon. He scored three touchdowns. Quarterback Ryan Hulke threw for two touchdowns and was intercepted twice.

Northland's offense was centered around halfback Maurice Johnson, who netted 51 yards on 10 carries, and fullback Steve Crummy, who rushed for 46 yards on 11 attempts.

Defensively, Philip Wilson led the Pioneers' first-game charts with three unassisted tackles and five assisted stops for 14 points (three for a solo tackle; one for an assist). Other Northland defender with double-figure point production were Aaron Schmitz (2-5–11) and Nate Sorvig (1-7–10).

Central Lakes is 0-2 after losing to Mesabi Range 46-7 in the Kickoff Classic, then falling to Vermilion 27-7 last week.

Northland will be on the road again Sept. 15 with a trip to Minnesota West. The Pioneers' homecoming game will be Sept. 22 vs Fergus Falls.

That will complete Northland's season-opening four-game schedule against MCCC Southern Division schools. The Pioneers' final five games will be Northern Division match-ups with Mesabi Range, Hibbing, Vermilion, Rainy River, and Itasca. Games within your division are worth two points in the MCCC standings; games against teams in the other division are one-point contests.

Games against Mesabi Range (Thursday, Sept. 27) and Rainy River (Tuesday, Oct. 16) will be played in Thief River Falls. The Pioneers' Northern Division road games will be played at Hibbing (Thursday, Oct. 4), Vermilion (Thursday, Oct. 11) and Itasca (Saturday, Oct. 20).

With Rainy River fielding a football team for the first time this fall, Northland will be playing its first nine-game regular season schedule since 1980. The Pioneers' program began in 1976. They have played an eight-game schedule every year except for 1979 and 1980.

Otters swim to early edge, top TRF 98-77

Fergus Falls built a big lead, then floated past Thief River Falls 98-77 Thursday in a girls high school swim dual.

The host Otters had winning times in the first eight swimming events, going 1-2 in six races and 1-2-3 in two of them. That produced a 98-42 scoreboard spread and prompted Fergus Falls to swim the final three events as exhibition races while conceding the points to the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls' lone breakthrough during the Fergus Falls domination came in diving, where reigning Class A state champion Chelsea Haviland was a winner.

While the score didn't show it, Thief River Falls coach Jill Buck said it was nevertheless a solid outing for the Prowlers in their second meet of the 2001 season. "Even though we didn't win, these girls did a great job," she said. "They had great times. I am proud of all of them."

The Prowlers' performances included 13 sectional-qualifying

Prowlers blank Otters, Lakers in double-dual

Thief River Falls girls recorded an impressive double-dual sweep over North Sub-Section 8AA high school tennis foes Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls Saturday, winning both matches 8-0.

The wins at Detroit Lakes doubled the early-season victory total for the 4-0 Prowlers.

"We played really well," said Thief River Falls coach Sylvia Sjoberg.

A highlight, noted Sjoberg, was a 6-3, 6-3 victory by Heather Hanson over Kim Lindblom of Fergus Falls at No. 1 singles. "Fergus Falls' No. 1 singles is a very good player," pointed out Sjoberg. "I think this is the first time Heather has beaten her."

Thief River Falls will be idle this week. The Prowlers return to action with a Monday double-dual in Crookston against the Pirates – their top North Sub-Section 8AA rival – and Moorhead.

Rainy River takes Pepsi title

Rainy River headed the field Thursday in the annual Pepsi Invitational volleyball tournament at Northland Community and Technical College.

The Voyageurs from International Falls went 3-0 in the four-team, round-robin format with three-game sweeps of Minnesota Community College Conference rivals Northland and Hibbing and Lake Region State College of Devils Lake, N.D.

Lake Region finished the day 2-1; Northland 1-2; and Hibbing 0-3.

In the 2-out-of-3-game rally point scoring to 30, Rainy River beat Northland 30-22, 30-25, 30-20 and Lake Region edged the Pioneers 23-30, 30-23, 17-30, 30-28.

Northland posted a 30-15, 30-24, 28-30, 30-17 win over Hibbing.

The results put the Pioneers at 5-3 for the year. According to head coach Mike Zachow, the team's play did not match the performance level shown during a season-opening Texas trip when the Pioneers finished 4-1 at the Richland Invitational in Dallas.

"We just didn't play very well," said Zachow. "I wasn't at all satisfied with our performance. Our passing was really bad. But the encouraging point is that we can play a lot better than that."

Rainy River was the top-rated team in the MCCC in preseason polls. The Voyageurs return virtually their entire roster from a team was was a regional runner-up last fall.

Northland will open its MCCC schedule this week with a match tonight (Wednesday) at home against Itasca that will be followed by a weekend trip to Mesabi Range Friday and Vermilion Saturday. The Itasca and Mesabi Range matches start at 6:30 p.m.; the Vermilion matinee will begin at noon.

Northland golf season under way

Back-to-back meets at Brainerd and Minneapolis opened the 2001 season for Northland Community and Technical College golfers.

Central Lakes men won both meets – a Wednesday triangular hosted by the Raiders and a seven-team Thursday invitational sponsored by Minneapolis Community College.

The Raiders are the defending Minnesota Community College Conference and National Junior College Athletic Association Region 13 champions. They return four of their top five golfers from a 2000 squad that finished third in the NJCAA Division III national tournament, including reigning NJCAA individual champion, Joe Sauer of St. Cloud.

Northland, after finishing behind both portions of a split Central Lakes squad in the triangular, wound up in a third place tie at Minneapolis. The Pioneers shot a 323 Wednesday and a 327 Thursday.

"I guess I thought we'd break 320, so we've got a ways to go," reported Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "But we're young. Shane Peterson (Thief River Falls) is the only golfer who was with us last year."

Brandon Carlson (Lake Park) turned in the Pioneers' top round both days, shooting a 75 at Brainerd and a 76 in the Minneapolis meet.

"Brandon played well," noted Nikunen. "I thought he was capable of shooting those kinds of scores, but maybe not this early in the season."

There were no complete women's teams at either meet.

Next outing for the Pioneers will be the Northland Invitational Sunday at the Thief River Golf Club.

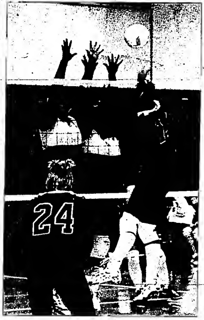
Championship honors in the boys seventh grade portion of the Crookston youth basketball 3-on-3 tournament played Aug. 18 went to a Thief River Falls squad that included, from left, Lee Peterson, Andrew BieckLance, Ajax Yaggie, and Jeremy Sich.



Kylie Rogalla beat a pair of Rainy River blockers on this play at the net for a Northland point during Friday's Pepsi Invitational volleyball tournament in Thief River Falls. The Pioneers' Jessica Spong looked on. Rainy River swept Northland 3-0.

Storm rolls over TRF in volleyball

Stephen-Argyle was a 3-0 winner over visiting Thief River Falls in high school volleyball Thursday.

The Storm won 15-9, 15-6, 15-6. It was the second loss of season in as many starts for the Prowlers, who were also shut out in the opener Tuesday by Crookston.

"We're struggling," admitted Thief River Falls co-head coach Erika Jensen. "We're having a tough time finding the right positions on the floor. We're having trouble with service rotations. It's tough to move on to the other things when you don't know where you're supposed to be. But we're working on it. And once we get that squared away, we should start rolling."

The Prowlers were scheduled to play Red Lake County Central Tuesday at Plummer. They will be at Bemidji Thursday and at the Ada-Borup Invitational Saturday.

Mike Hagen of Thief River Falls has signed a letter of intent to wrestle at Itasca Community College in Grand Rapids this winter. Hagen, who was 28-12 as a senior for the Prowlers in 2000-01 when he placed third in Section 8AA, will join a program that has finished in the top five nationally for the past eight years. The Vikings, who have eight regulars returning off a fourth place NJCAA Division III team of a year ago, expect Hagen to add strength to their lower weights.

New rules for goose stations

Hunters using the controlled hunting zone at the Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area located in Marshall County will see new rules governing the controlled hunt and goose blinds this fall.

The Controlled Hunting Zone at the Thief Lake WMA is an area where waterfowl hunters, primarily goose hunters, have access to 85 hunting stations (blinds). This area is managed to provide quality hunting for geese that regularly use Thief Lake.

Reduced hunting pressure has resulted in less competition for blinds in recent years. As a result, hunters will no longer be required to register for blinds and attend drawings and briefings at the headquarters each morning.

The rules governing the use of the controlled hunting zone this year:

■ Hunters must use designated hunting stations on a first-come, first-served basis.

■ Hunters are limited to one trip to the blinds before noon and one trip after noon, per day.

■ Hunters are limited to six shells in possession per trip.

■ Guns must be unloaded and cased except within 10 feet of the hunting station.

■ People may not park in, or otherwise occupy, any designated controlled hunting zone parking lot or occupy any hunting station from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m.

As in the past, waterfowl hunters are required to use the hunting stations while hunting in the controlled hunting zone throughout the waterfowl season. Small game hunters using the zone are subject to the same restrictions as waterfowl hunters, from the opening of waterfowl season through Oct. 22.

All rules will also apply to waterfowl hunters using the controlled hunting zone during the early season goose hunt Sept. 1-15, the December goose hunt, and on Youth Waterfowl Day Sept. 15. Selected blinds will be posted as closed during the early September season because of their proximity to surface water.

Twelve of the 85 blinds are accessible for hunters with disabilities. Signs in the parking areas indicate which blinds are reserved for hunters with disabilities. Hunters with qualifying disabilities are encouraged to contact the Thief Lake WMA headquarters to make arrangements for use of these blinds. These accessible blinds will be made available to the general hunting public if not occupied by shooting time on a given day.

For more information, contact Thief Lake WMA, 42280 240th Ave. NE, Middle River, MN 56737; or phone 218/222-3747.

DNR will provide fall color info

How will those forest tent caterpillars that chomped their way through northern Minnesota affect this year's fall colors? What about the wet spring and sweltering summer?

In general, a warm, moist summer followed by cool nights and sunny days favors good autumn tree color, while insects and other stress can reduce foliage quantity and cause colors to change early, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. Grasses and wildflowers are adapted to a spectrum of conditions, so whims of weather have little overall impact on the palette displayed by a healthy, diverse prairie, said Carmen Diestler of the DNR.

"Predicting color change, however, is a lot like predicting the weather," Diestler said. "Although we can make educated guesses, ultimately Ma Nature will do as she pleases."

Fall color reports are now available on the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us. The color reports on this site are gathered from information provided by color observers in state parks across Minnesota. Because it isn't only the trees that put on a colorful fall show in Minnesota, these reports include some extras.

Leaf Color and More

In addition to leaf color, the reports also include information about the changing fall colors among the native grasses and wildflowers, a listing of the berries, nuts and fruits that are ripe for harvesting, notes on the "critters" that are migrating or preparing for winter, and highlights about autumn events that are taking place in neighboring communities.

Web Site Photos

The fall color site will also include photos from parks and locations around the state that will give visitors a first-hand look at fall colors. This year, the public is invited to contribute color photographs. Photos, which must be current, can be uploaded to the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.mn.us/fall_colors/parkphotoupload.jsp

Fall color information can be accessed from the DNR home page by selecting "Fall Color Reports." Click on a region of the color report map to be linked to complete reports from state parks in that region. Color reports for individual state parks also appear at the top of their state park home page. These reports are updated twice a week on Mondays and Wednesdays (or more frequently as color changes occur) throughout the fall color season.

Color Predictions

Based on some prognostications gathered from DNR and University of Minnesota experts:

■ Prairies should be in fine fall form, with the reds and golds of grasses complemented by yellows and purples of wildflowers throughout the fall season.

■ Hardwoods in the south are generally in good shape; fall weather will likely be the biggest factor in how and when these trees show their stuff.

■ Across southern Minnesota, this summer's heat may produce early color in maples; cool nights would produce an average to spectacular fall display.

■ Twin Cities maples, ash and elms may turn early due to last fall's drought and winter injury.

■ Just north of the Twin Cities, the dearth of summer rain may mute the display a bit.

■ Central counties that escaped drought and forest tent caterpillar defoliation will likely show a good display of brilliant reds and yellows of northern hardwoods as well as the subtler auburns of oaks.

■ Golden hues of aspen and birch will likely be less intense in the north this year because of forest tent caterpillars. Insect damage may also cause some trees to turn early, but maples are in fine shape.

Peak Color Forecast

The bottom line? "Except for a bit less yellow up north and patchy early turning, if good fall conditions prevail, this year's color display should uphold autumn's right to top billing in Minnesota's theater of seasons," Diestler said.

Best guess is that colors will peak in northeastern Minnesota the last week in September or first weekend in October. The following weekend should bring peak colors in central Minnesota. By mid-October, northwestern Minnesota colors will reach peak. The southern and southeastern part of the state should have good color through the second and third week in October.

Those without Internet access may call the Minnesota Office of Tourism for a taped fall color status report. Tourism leaf hotline number is 1-800-657-3700 (toll free). For reports on the Internet address for the DNR Web site is www.dnr.state.mn.us.

Deer hunters will need to have straps for tags

Last year the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association produced and distributed 200,000 straps for use by hunters to attach their deer site-tags to harvested animals. However, this year the non-profit organization has decided to only produce 125,000, and will be providing them directly to their members in the fall edition of the organization magazine. The straps will not be distributed through license vendors as they were in 2000.

"Without a sponsor stepping forward to help defray the costs for the straps, we simply can't afford to produce enough for all Minnesota hunters," said MDHA Executive Director Mark Johnson. "Last year we stretched our budget as far as we could to produce what we did."

A new site-tag system and regulations went into effect in 2000 as a result of the new Electronic Licensing System implemented by the DNR. The Minnesota Deer Hunters Association quickly produced the easy to use straps last fall when they anticipated that many hunters were unaware that they had to provide their own mechanism for attaching the tag to the harvested animal under the new regulation.

The DNR agreed to pay about one-third of the production costs and all of the distribution costs in 2000, but MDHA carried the remainder of the burden. In 2001, MDHA has found no public or private entities willing to sponsor the program.

Johnson emphasizes that the MDHA strap is not mandatory, and he believes most hunters are now familiar with the regulations affecting the site-tags and will be prepared this season. However, the convenience of the devices produced by MDHA make them very popular.

"We are getting phone calls every day from people that want to know when they can get the straps this year," Johnson said. "I tell them, if you are an MDHA member they will be in the October magazine. If you aren't a member you will have to join, or find a member that has extras."

"We are providing these straps as a service to hunters, but since MDHA members are footing the bill through their dues we decided they should be the primary recipients," added Johnson. "If the demand for the straps is high, perhaps we can find a sponsor willing to help provide them next season."

Thursday is deadline for antlerless permit

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reminds hunters that the deadline for applying for antlerless deer permits and most special hunts is Thursday, Sept. 6. Applications must be made by that day through one of the 1,800 statewide Electronic Licensing System vendors or the DNR License Center in order to be eligible for drawings.

Previous antlerless deer permit customers were not be sent a postcard with the peel-off label, since they no longer need to mail in an antlerless postcard application; the antlerless application is made at the time of purchase.

In addition, deer hunters are reminded to check their licenses at the time of purchase to verify that they have the correct zone on the license and the correct antlerless permit area on the license receipt. The deer zone is printed along the side of the deer license. The antlerless permit area applied for will appear only on the license receipt.

Hunters also need to ensure that the agent updates their mailing address if necessary at the time of purchase, since antlerless permits will be mailed to the address listed on the license.

If a customer discovers the address on the license is incorrect or their driver's license number has changed (because of a name change), contact the DNR Information Center toll free at 1-888-MINNDNR (646-6367) to ensure that the license records are corrected, that the antlerless permit is mailed to the correct mailing address, and that the customer preference is maintained for the lottery drawing.

There are 284,210 antlerless permits available this year, a 22 percent increase from last year.

In addition, there are 33 special deer hunts in parks, refuges and other areas not normally open to hunting. Applications for these hunts must also be made through Electronic Licensing System vendors or the DNR License Center by the Sept. 6 deadline.

The end of summer is about here. Have a nice fall and enjoy the colors!

The following names should have been in the account last week about the Sunday company of Jerry and Carol Derardy. Howard and Margaret Greenwald, Annie Schumacher, Mary Ann Gagnor and Jim and Shirley Jaeger of St. Paul.

Percy Blair and Ray Lemke of Noche, N.D. were last Wednesday visitors of Edna Hyde.

Dorothy Myhra visited on Thursday with Ruth Wilkens.

Birthday for Avery

The birthday of Avery Erickson, 4 years old, was celebrated on Friday night at the home of his grandparents Lowell and Cindy Arlt. With him were his parents Dwight and Amy Erickson and his little sister, his great-grandparents Arnie and Wilma Arlt, Les and Mary Arlt, Dusty Arlt and a friend, Dary and Cindy Arlt, Ross and Nikke Arlt. Best wishes from all of us to a swell little guy!

Art and Dloria Fessum and Jonnie Ulestad of Mankato visited with Art and Avis Freitand on Friday. Jonnie had been spending a week in the area and visiting her sister, Martha Hamre, at Pioneer Nursing Home of Erskine. Both Jonnie and Martha are sisters of Alice Johnson, formerly of Plummer.

Rev. Dale Larson of Milwaukee visited his sister, Karen and Eldon Vigstol, on Saturday. He and his wife Diane, also with him at Karen's, had come north to attend his class reunion in Thief River Falls.

Dixie and Cannar Bosch of Fargo drove to Plummer to visit her parents Arlan and Dorda Koskela for the weekend. Her husband Brad, who is an assistant manager at Scheel's Sporting Goods store in Fargo, chose to join two of his colleagues at the store to make the trip by bicycle, trying out some of their high-powered bikes.

Immanuel's WELCA had their annual fall bazaar on Saturday morning, sharing garden produce, baked goods, craft work, rummage and lunches with the community. It was a good time to visit with neighbors and friends in the area and was a successful day. Thanks to all who helped in any way to make it that way.

Cindy and Gary Arlt took Arnie and Wilma Arlt to Fargo, N.D. last week where Arnie had a medical checkup at the VA Hospital.

Visiting Art and Dloria Fessum on Saturday was Jonnie Ulestad of Mankato.

Visitors of Frances Schiefert the past week were sons Sidney of Bloomington, Harley and daughter Danielle of Fargo, N.D., Vic and Jim of Plummer; daughters Marie Swenson of Thief River Falls, Connie Suke of St. Hilaire, and Sandy Osbjornson of Oklee; granddaughters Darby Trontvet with Cody and Kaytlin of Oklee, and Heather Schiefert, a student at Northland, Frances' brother Frank and Izzy Knott of Red Lake Falls. Frances loves company, as she resides at the CNC in TRF.

Kyle and Cody Adolphson of Bismarck, N.D. were Saturday afternoon visitors at the Byer home. They had come to spend the weekend at the Ray Vigstol home of Thief River Falls and to attend an Adolphson get-together.

Recent visitors of Lorona Westerlund have been Jim and Betty Engelstad of Thief River Falls, Korn, Alice and Anastasia Tillman, Howard and Margaret Greenwald, who were Sunday dinner guests.

Zachary Vidlund, son of Bonnie and Bob Vidlund of the Cities spent a week with his grandparents, Joe and Helen Fisher.

Immanuel and Ebenezer Lutheran churches held a joint service on Sunday at Immanuel with Pastor Lloyd Wallace as speaker. He wrapped up his excellent sermon by singing "He Touched Me," with his wife Linda accompanying. Thank you, Pastor! A potluck dinner was served by the local women, followed by an open house at the parsonage. This was built in 1954 and over the past year has undergone a complete renovation, resulting in a beautiful "new" house. Now we hope and pray for a resident pastor.

Albert and Evelyn Torve spent the weekend in New York Mills, and were overnight guests of her brother, Jim and Nancy Tumberg. They attended the Finn Creek Folk Festival held at the Finn Creek Museum. By going on Saturday, they could attend the Finnish church services on Sunday morning.

Eddy, Melvin and Fern Eskeli also attended the Folk Festival at the Finn Creek Museum on Sunday. The highlight of the festivities for Fern was the musical program put on by the Freiland family of Rochester. The parents and three children sang and played a variety of instruments – violins, guitars, banjo and a saw, and it was excellent. A tractor pull and other entertainment filled the day and, of course, plentiful food. Leonard Eskeli and daughter Dorothy of New York Mills joined them for the day.

Mary Blair of Walhalla, Bruce and Elsie Magnus, Malloah and Carmen of Langdon and son Ryan of Mankato visited Edna Hyde on Sunday.

Hazel Ollie and Sharon Iverson attended a birthday party for the 101st birthday of Jennie Norman of Red Lake Falls on Sunday. A niece, Ione Olson, came from Minneapolis and Jennie's son Norman of Red Lake Falls were there, also.

The Destiny Quartet of the Fargo area gave an outstanding performance at Immanuel Lutheran Church on Sunday evening, presenting an inspiring message in song. A good crowd attended with friends from Brooks, Thief River Falls and Oklee, as well as local residents enjoying the music. Lunch was served following the program.

Wavell Sorensen attended the funeral for Harriet Engen at Valley Home on Monday at the Abundant Life Lutheran Church of Thief River Falls. Later she visited with Frances and Cathy Opdahl in their home. In the evening she attended the prayer service for Keith Baune.

Penn Milligan was a Tuesday dinner guest of Effie and Bunnie Byer.

Edna Hyde underwent heart surgery on Tuesday in Fargo, having a quadruple bypass and some valve work done. She is recovering nicely but plans to stay on a while in Fargo.

In last week's story of the Greenwald's trip, the last place they visited was in Fargo at the Dust Craft home, formerly of Plummer, and now a resident at the Villa Maria Home.

Keith Baune

Sincere sympathy is extended to the Baune family on the tragic death of 25-year-old Keith, whose funeral was on Tuesday at the Zion Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls. He was the grandson of Norm and Shirley Baune, formerly of Plummer, and son of Bob Baune, of rural Thief River Falls. Zion Lutheran Church was filled to capacity for his funeral and the entire Baune family attended. Keep them in your prayers.

A good crowd was at the school library on Tuesday night for an Aid Association for Lutheran's Seminar on money matters. Marci DuChamp, local representative, introduced Rick Stark from Appleton, Wisc., who spoke eloquently with advice for retirement age members and visitors. Friends from Red Lake Falls joined the Plummer folks and lunch was served following the presentation.

Margie Miner of Grand Forks, N.D. was a Wednesday dinner guest of Uncle Art and Avis Frolland.

Howard and Margaret Greenwald visited at the Sharon and Rodney Wayne home on Sunday afternoon.

Albert and Evelyn Torve attended the funeral for Milton Mansigh of New York Mills on Wednesday. Albert served as a pallbearer for his old friend.

Construction disrupts more than just traffic

Maybe it's time to adopt different rules for projects

We trust our city officials and elected representatives to make sure that the Highway 59 project, and others like it, are absolutely necessary. I will agree that improvements to Highway 59 and infrastructure in downtown Thief River Falls probably were necessary. Additionally, I haven't found a business owner on Third Street (Highway 59) yet, who will tell me that it wasn't necessary. I also probably wouldn't find a business owner not willing to bear some of the cost and sacrifice of lost business for such an improvement. I wouldn't presume to try to tell someone else how to do their job, but this project is really beginning to hurt our economy because of its slow pace.

There is an additional cost that I and others object to. The cost to the community is particularly burdensome and onerous when it stretches on for four or more months during some of the most important months of the year. It disrupts established traffic patterns, which will be difficult to re-establish once traffic on the highway resumes. And, as one dollar turns over as much as seven times, the tidal wave of lost income spreads from these downtown businesses to other businesses.

Businesses in small towns like Thief River Falls can barely survive on the competitive field they are forced to play on now, let alone while handicapped further by a construction project.

It's important for the public to understand that the timeline for completion of a project can increase or reduce the cost of a project. A strict timeline can increase the cost of a project. Flexible timelines give contractors an opportunity to work on other projects, line up sub contractors, and complete necessary paperwork, so it generally reduces the cost of a project.

It is also important for the public to understand that other things could have been done in Thief River Falls to reduce the impact on business, such as opening half of the road to traffic as it finished a phase, but that may have increased the cost as well because the contractor would have to come in and repair any road surface damage caused during that time before paving. It could have required the contractor to pave a phase of the project before moving onto the next phase, and like several other people I was under the impression of that's what was going to take place. In any event that would have caused additional set up costs for the contractor and the state.

The Minnesota Department of Transportation needs to reassess its thinking on projects that would generally have a dramatic impact on a local economy

I will add one thing, which may detract from my overall complaint. During planning phases for the project, business owners were invited to attend and comment on the project. Frankly, very few did. But, to the credit and insistence of representatives for the Chamber of Commerce, signs were put up on the detour route that directed public to the stores, and urged patience by the public. Perhaps their input could have changed project specification, but only few hardened by experience could have foreseen that this project would have the impact on the community it has had.

Regardless, I think the Minnesota Department of Transportation is missing something. I think the Minnesota Department of Transportation needs to reassess its thinking on projects that would generally have a dramatic impact on a local economy. Lost business opportunities means less income for business owners, less income for employees, fewer stores, a smaller selection of goods, fewer visitors and shoppers, and fewer taxes for the state. The point here is that there's more to the cost of a project than construction costs.

Thief River Falls' economy, while an improvement over the economy of the 80's, is not bulletproof. Minnesota Department of Transportation should be as sensitive to the cost to business in a community, as it is to the cost of a project. Weighing these costs might result in re-examining whether it's all that important to allow lengthy completion timelines in contracts.

Plans currently call for paving to take place around September 17. The project is expected to be completed during the first part of October.

Although I don't like the fact that this project is dragging on, and causing such a huge economic impact on the community, I will also advise the public to remain patient and above all, drive safely while travelling through construction areas or on the detour route.

Target Market research shows campaign doing what intended

■ Survey of 1,014 Minnesota teens shows the campaign is doing what it has been designed to do

At the one-year mark of the teen anti-tobacco campaign known as Target Market, the results of a telephone survey of 1,014 Minnesota teens shows the campaign is doing precisely what it has been designed to do. The survey, conducted by Twin Cities-based Market Solutions, showed that 93 percent of Minnesota teens are aware of advertising about tobacco companies manipulating teens, Target Market's central message, and that 87 percent of Minnesota teens are aware of Target Market or TM.

Research highlights: Attitudes, Behavior. The survey results showed significant changes in teens' attitude about tobacco and tobacco companies since the start of the Target Market campaign in April 2000. Researchers believe these changes are an important precursor to behavior changes and lower youth smoking rates. According to the survey, 76 percent of the teens surveyed said that they did not want to be the target for big tobacco companies. More importantly, 68 percent of Minnesota teens 12-17 years old felt that now they have the power to fight back against the tobacco industry.

"That is the point of what we are doing," said Matt Novak, 17, co-chair of Target Market's Executive committee. "The industry has targeted teens for years. The difference is that now, through Target Market, we have a voice and the tools to take on the industry."

The fact that the message is reaching Minnesota teens is evidenced by significant increases on the attitudes about the campaign across gender and age categories. Specifically, teens reported the advertisements made them feel: "like you have the power to fight back" (86 percent); "that you learned something new" (68 percent); "motivated" (60 percent); "inspired" (59 percent); "like you wanted to do what the teens in the ads were doing" (57 percent).

The survey also showed significant increases in teen attitudes about the tobacco industry's marketing to youth. Sixty-six percent of teens believe that cigarette companies are trying to get young people to smoke, 63 percent are angered by how much money tobacco companies make from kids, and more than half (55 percent) of Minnesota teens, age 12-17, agree that cigarette companies are trying to cover up the bad things they've done.

The survey also gave indication that the Target Market message is having an impact on the tobacco use choices of Minnesota's youth. In the area of teen tobacco use, the results showed the number of teens who have used tobacco in the past 21 days dropped 25 percent since the pre-test survey done prior to the beginning of Target Market. The largest drop in tobacco usage is among 12-13 year olds (by two-thirds), which bodes well for the future, according to Target Market. This is important because it suggests a reversal in the trends of teen smoking rates overall, which saw a 36 percent increase over the last six years.

Target Market officials believe the results show that the number of teens labeled "susceptible" smokers dropped 16 percent, with a corresponding increase in the "committed non-smoker" category, a change in attitude that appears to be the result of teens being exposed to the notion of tobacco industry manipulation, the core message of Target Market.

Survey good indicator of Minnesota's progress.

"It has been many years since we have been able to report progress in the battle against teen smoking, and today we are very encouraged by the results of this survey," said Minnesota Commissioner of Health Jan Malcolm. "This interim evaluation is a good indication that Target Market and the entire Minnesota Youth Tobacco Prevention Initiative is being effective and this is the first of what we hope will be many more reports showing similar results."

According to the news release from Target Market, the survey also indicates that Target Market is doing pretty well in comparison to its counterpart in Florida. After two years, Florida's "Truth" campaign saw middle school and high school smoking rates drop by 40 percent and 19 percent respectively.

In the area of awareness of anti-tobacco messages, Minnesota's numbers rose 93 percent, essentially mirroring Florida's jump, which saw an increase in awareness from 54 to 91 percent in its first year. Florida's annual budget for its first two years of tobacco counter-marketing was $26.5 million, as compared to Minnesota's $5.5 million annual budget.

The national "truth" campaign, sponsored by the American Legacy Foundation, which launched in early 2000, recently placed its own brand awareness percentage at 77 percent.

Target Market Background, Program Milestones. The Target Market campaign got its start with 400 teens at the April 2000 Kick Ash Bash. Since then, membership in the anti-industry youth movement has topped 25,000. Radio, television, print and outdoor advertisements have featured Minnesota youth spreading the word about industry manipulation and showing teens fighting back against the industry. Last December five Target Market teens traveled to Louisville to meet with Brown and Williamson CEO Nick Brookes asking that his company stop advertising in youth magazines. Brookes declined but the footage filmed during the trip was subsequently made into a television ad.

Research Methodology, Research Background. Twin Cities-based Market Solutions conducted the survey of 1,104 youths from 12 to 17 years old. Market Solutions clients include the Star Tribune, General Mills and Target Corporation. The analysis of the post-wave survey was done by ergo international, a Twin Cities strategic planning and research company. The results were analyzed by ergo international, inc., a Twin Cities-based strategic planning and market research firm. ergo's president Steve Anthony is a 15-year veteran of the research field and has worked for such marketing powerhouses as Pillsbury, US West and General Mills. Sampling was done using a random digit dial telephone survey done in June of this year. The sample of 12 to 17-year-olds was representative of that population of Minnesotans in terms of age, gender and ethnicity. The survey has a margin of error of plus or minus three percent.

Target Market is part of the Minnesota Youth Tobacco Prevention Initiative being funded by the State of Minnesota's Youth Tobacco Endowment. The Endowment was created with about eight percent of the $6.1 billion Minnesota tobacco lawsuit settlement. No more than five percent of the $490 million endowment can be spent annually. The annual budget for the two-year marketing campaign is $5.5 million. Based on Federal Trade Commission reports, the tobacco industry spends an estimated $144 million marketing in Minnesota each year.

Students and teachers face many changes at schools

by Sen. Roger Moe

For many students and teachers, "back to school" this year includes a variety of changes as approved by the Legislature.

In northwestern Minnesota, some districts fared well for the new school year under the major 2001 legislative changes in school financing and property tax restructuring. In particular, schools that have no additional operating levy will benefit from new equity provisions.

However, structural changes in the financing system could potentially result in a significant public school funding shortfall in years to come, especially in rural areas.

Beyond the financial impact, several policy changes will be evident in the classroom for the new school year. Some of the policy changes are listed below.

Early Graduation for High School Seniors — Seniors graduating in 2003 and finishing all required courses and standards now have the option to graduate early if they obtain parental and school official approval. Under the new law, school districts will not lose funding for the graduating student and can now divert the aid toward all-day kindergarten programs.

Student Removal from Class — A law change spells out the circumstances for removing a student from the classroom, and makes removal easier. Additional new language requires parents to be notified and calls for scheduling a meeting if a child is removed from class more than 10 times in a school year.

Student Asthma Sufferers — Student asthma sufferers can breathe a sigh of relief after a bill allowing school students to possess and use asthma inhalers on school grounds was signed into law this session. Students can now self-administer asthma medication without having to go to the nurse's office to retrieve their inhaler.

Seventh-Grade Test to be Implemented — Another 2001 change provides funding for implementation of a new seventh-grade test required by the federal government.

Easing the Teacher Shortage — Two bills were passed this session to help ease the state's teacher shortage. The first brings flexibility to changes made in Minnesota's teacher licensure rules and delays implementation of new teacher training rules. The second change moves forward the licensing application, issuance and denial deadlines by 30 days. In a dire time of teacher shortages, both changes help school districts across the state as they prepare for the new school year.

Structural Balance — Compromise language was reached in an effort to ensure that school boards do not enter into collective bargaining agreements that cause "structural imbalance" in the district's budget. School boards must use "reasonable and comprehensive projections of ongoing revenues and expenditures to determine structural balance" for the period of the contract agreement. It is interesting to note that the average public school teacher salary in Minnesota is now below the national average after several decades of above-average teacher pay.

No Strike Deadline — For the first time in many years, no teacher strike deadline is in place due to one-time removal of the Jan. 15 contract settlement deadline for new contracts currently under negotiation.

To all students, parents, teachers and other school staff, best wishes for a great school year. Please e-mail me at sen.roger.moe@senate.leg.state.mn.us}sen.roger.moe@senate.leg.state.mn.us or call my office at 651-296-2577.

Hospital Board Studies Plans For Addition

"In a meeting held in the Northwestern Hospital building campaign headquarters last Wednesday evening, doctors and members of the board of directors met with Myron S. Burton, hospital consultant, to discuss plans for the proposed addition to the hospital. Although still in the formative stages, the new addition will include new operating rooms, new X-ray department, and two 32-bed nursing units. When completed, according to the tentative plan approved by the doctors of the medical staff and the hospital board, the new Northwestern Hospital wing and plant A (St. Luke's) will accommodate a normal load of 85 patients with expansion facilities to care for 110. The proposed site of the new building is the area directly north of the building formerly known as St. Luke's Hospital, extending north on LaBree avenue."

Jaycee Festival Set To Start October 5

M. Helm, chairman of the community on general arrangements.

"He added that the festival will have a Western theme with plaid shirts and blue jeans the fashion for the week. A variety of street events is being arranged with a dance in the auditorium Friday evening, October 5."

GOOD YIELD
Over 1,200 Bushels of Potatoes from Four Acres.

"The profit realized from four acres of land on the Langseth farm this year will be as great as some farmers will make off of a quarter section. This land was planted to potatoes this spring, and although little care was given them, they will yield over 1,200 bushels. As the price of potatoes will be between 50 cents and $1 in this city this fall, Mr. Langseth will make a handsome profit."

News Items

"A long time ago St. Hilaire had a band. The band would play on the streets sometimes and delight the hearts of the multitude with its sweet music. This was so long ago that the people have almost forgotten it but sometimes the questions are asked, "Where has it disappeared to? Why have those sweet noises ceased?" We don't know. They say that when G. A. (briel) Peterson toots his horn they don't respond, and we fear that some of them are so tardy that they won't respond to the call on resurrection day." [This is a very sarcastic piece, since the St. Hilaire band had been active nearly all summer in 1901 until a week or two before this item appeared in the paper.]

Construction disrupts more than just traffic

Maybe it's time to adopt different rules for projects

We trust our city officials and elected representatives to make sure that the Highway 59 project, and others like it, are absolutely necessary. I will agree that improvements to Highway 59 and infrastructure in downtown Thief River Falls probably were necessary. Additionally, I haven't found a business owner on Third Street (Highway 59) yet, who will tell me that it wasn't necessary. I also probably wouldn't find a business owner not willing to bear some of the cost and sacrifice of lost business for such an improvement. I wouldn't presume to try to tell someone else how to do their job, but this project is really beginning to hurt our economy because of its slow pace.

There is an additional cost that I and others object to. The cost to the community is particularly burdensome and onerous when it stretches on for four or more months during some of the most important months of the year. It disrupts established traffic patterns, which will be difficult to re-establish once traffic on the highway resumes. And, as one dollar turns over as much as seven times, the tidal wave of lost income spreads from these downtown businesses to other businesses.

Businesses in small towns like Thief River Falls can barely survive on the competitive field they are forced to play on now, let alone while handicapped further by a construction project.

It's important for the public to understand that the timeline for completion of a project can increase or reduce the cost of a project. A strict timeline can increase the cost of a project. Flexible timelines give contractors an opportunity to work on other projects, line up sub contractors, and complete necessary paperwork, so it generally reduces the cost of a project.

It is also important for the public to understand that other things could have been done in Thief River Falls to reduce the impact on business, such as opening half of the road, to traffic as it finished a phase, but that may have increased the cost as well because the contractor would have to come in and repair any road surface damage caused during that time before paving. It could have required the contractor to pave a phase of the project before moving onto the next phase, and like several other people I was under the impression of that's what was going to take place. In any event that would have caused additional set up costs for the contractor and the state.

I will add one thing, which may detract from my overall complaint. During planning phases for the project, business owners were invited to attend and comment on the project. Frankly, very few did. But, to the credit and insistence of representatives for the Chamber of Commerce, signs were put up on the detour route that directed public to the stores, and urged patience by the public. Perhaps their input could have changed project specification, but only few hardened by experience could have foreseen that this project would have the impact on the community it has had.

> The Minnesota Department of Transportation needs to reassess its thinking on projects that would generally have a dramatic impact on a local economy

Regardless, I think the Minnesota Department of Transportation is missing something. I think the Minnesota Department of Transportation needs to reassess its thinking on projects that would generally have a dramatic impact on a local economy. Lost business opportunities means less income for business owners, less income for employees, fewer stores, a smaller selection of goods, fewer visitors and shoppers, and fewer taxes for the state. The point here is that there's more to the cost of a project than construction costs.

Thief River Falls' economy, while an improvement over the economy of the 80's, is not bulletproof. Minnesota Department of Transportation should be as sensitive to the cost to business in a community, as it is to the cost of a project. Weighing these costs might result in re-examining whether it's all that important to allow lengthy completion timelines in contracts.

Plans currently call for paving to take place around September 17. The project is expected to be completed during the first part of October.

Although I don't like the fact that this project is dragging on, and causing such a huge economic impact on the community, I will also advise the public to remain patient and above all, drive safely while travelling through construction areas or on the detour route.

Target Market research shows campaign doing what intended

■ Survey of 1,014 Minnesota teens shows the campaign is doing what it has been designed to do

At the one-year mark of the teen anti-tobacco campaign known as Target Market, the results of a telephone survey of 1,014 Minnesota teens shows the campaign is doing precisely what it has been designed to do. The survey, conducted by Twin Cities-based Market Solutions, showed that 93 percent of Minnesota teens are aware of advertising about tobacco companies manipulating teens, Target Market's central message; and that 87 percent of Minnesota teens are aware of Target Market or TM.

Research highlights: Attitudes, Behavior. The survey results showed significant changes in teens' attitude about tobacco and tobacco companies since the start of the Target Market campaign in April 2000. Researchers believe these changes are an important precursor to behavior changes and lower youth smoking rates. According to the survey, 76 percent of the teens surveyed said that they did not want to be the target for big tobacco companies. More importantly, 68 percent of Minnesota teens 12-17 years old felt that now they have the power to fight back against the tobacco industry.

"That is the point of what we are doing," said Matt Novak, 17, co-chair of Target Market's Executive committee. "The industry has targeted teens for years. The difference is that now, through Target Market, we have a voice and the tools to take on the industry."

The fact that the message is reaching Minnesota teens is evidenced by significant increases on the attitudes about the campaign across gender and age categories. Specifically, teens reported the advertisements made them feel: "like you have the power to fight back" (86 percent); "that you learned something new" (68 percent); "motivated" (60 percent), "inspired" (59 percent); "like you wanted to do what the teens in the ads were doing" (57 percent).

The survey also showed significant increases in teen attitudes about the tobacco industry's marketing to youth. Sixty-six percent of teens believe that cigarette companies are trying to get young people to smoke, 63 percent are angered by how much money tobacco companies make from kids, and more than half (55 percent) of Minnesota teens, age 12-17, agree that cigarette companies are trying to cover up the bad things they've done

The survey also gave indication that the Target Market message is having an impact on the tobacco use choices of Minnesota's youth. In the area of teen tobacco use, the results showed the number of teens who have used tobacco in the past 21 days dropped 25 percent since the pre-test survey done prior to the beginning of Target Market. The largest drop in tobacco usage is among 12-13 year olds (by two-thirds), which bodes well for the future, according to Target Market. This is important because it suggests a reversal in the trends of teen smoking rates overall, which saw a 36 percent increase over the last six years.

Target Market officials believe the results show that the number of teens labeled "susceptible" smokers dropped 16 percent, with a corresponding increase in the "committed non-smoker" category, a change in attitude that appears to be the result of teens being exposed to the notion of tobacco industry manipulation, the core message of Target Market.

Survey good indicator of Minnesota's progress.

"It has been many years since we have been able to report progress in the battle against teen smoking, and today we are very encouraged by the results of this survey," said Minnesota Commissioner of Health Jan Malcolm. "This interim evaluation is a good indication that Target Market and the entire Minnesota Youth Tobacco Prevention Initiative is being effective and this is the first of what we hope will be many more reports showing similar results."

According to the news release from Target Market, the survey also indicates that Target Market is doing pretty well in comparison to its counterpart in Florida. After two years, Florida's "Truth" campaign saw middle school and high school smoking rates drop by 40 percent and 19 percent respectively.

In the area of awareness of anti-tobacco messages, Minnesota's numbers rose 93 percent, essentially mirroring Florida's jump, which saw an increase in awareness from 54 to 91 percent in its first year. Florida's annual budget for its first two years of tobacco counter-marketing was $26.5 million, as compared to Minnesota's $5.5 million annual budget.

The national "truth" campaign, sponsored by the American Legacy Foundation, which launched in early 2000, recently placed its own brand awareness percentage at 77 percent.

Target Market Background, Program Milestones. The Target Market campaign got its start with 400 teens at the April 2000 Kick Ash Bash. Since then, membership in the anti-industry youth movement has topped 25,000. Radio, television, print and outdoor advertisements have featured Minnesota youth spreading the word about industry manipulation and showing teens fighting back against the industry. Last December five Target Market teens traveled to Louisville to meet with Brown and Williamson CEO Nick Brookes asking that his company stop advertising in youth magazines. Brookes declined but the footage filmed during the trip was subsequently made into a television ad.

Research Methodology, Research Background. Twin Cities-based Market Solutions conducted the survey of 1,104 youths from 12 to 17 years old. Market Solutions clients include the Star Tribune, General Mills and Target Corporation. The analysis of the post-wave survey was done by ergo international, a Twin Cities strategic planning and research company. The results were analyzed by ergo international, inc., a Twin Cities-based strategic planning and market research firm. ergo's president Steve Anthony is a 15-year veteran of the research field and has worked for such marketing powerhouses as Pillsbury, US West and General Mills. Sampling was done using a random digit dial telephone survey done in June of this year. The sample of 12 to 17-year-olds was representative of that population of Minnesotans in terms of age, gender and ethnicity. The survey has a margin of error of plus or minus three percent.

Target Market is part of the Minnesota Youth Tobacco Prevention Initiative being funded by the State of Minnesota's Youth Tobacco Endowment. The Endowment was created with about eight percent of the $6.1 billion Minnesota tobacco lawsuit settlement. No more than five percent of the $490 million endowment can be spent annually. The annual budget for the two-year marketing campaign is $5.5 million. Based on Federal Trade Commission reports, the tobacco industry spends an estimated $144 million marketing in Minnesota each year.

Students and teachers face many changes at schools

by Sen. Roger Moe

For many students and teachers, "back to school" this year includes a variety of changes as approved by the Legislature.

In northwestern Minnesota, some districts fared well for the new school year under the major 2001 legislative changes in school financing and property tax restructuring. In particular, schools that have no additional operating levy will benefit from new equity provisions.

However, structural changes in the financing system could potentially result in a significant public school funding shortfall in years to come, especially in rural areas.

Beyond the financial impact, several policy changes will be evident in the classroom for the new school year. Some of the policy changes are listed below.

Early Graduation for High School Seniors — Seniors graduating in 2003 and finishing all required courses and standards now have the option to graduate early if they obtain parental and school official approval. Under the new law, school districts will not lose funding for the graduating student and can now divert the aid toward all-day kindergarten programs.

Student Removal from Class — A law change spells out the circumstances for removing a student from the classroom, and makes removal easier. Additional new language requires parents to be notified and calls for scheduling a meeting if a child is removed from class more than 10 times in a school year.

Student Asthma Sufferers — Student asthma sufferers can breathe a sigh of relief after a bill allowing school students to possess and use asthma inhalers on school grounds was signed into law this session. Students can now self-administer asthma medication without having to go to the nurse's office to retrieve their inhaler.

Seventh-Grade Test to be Implemented — Another 2001 change provides funding for implementation of a new seventh-grade test required by the federal government.

Easing the Teacher Shortage — Two bills were passed this session to help ease the state's teacher shortage. The first brings flexibility to changes made in Minnesota's teacher licensure rules and delays implementation of new teacher training rules. The second change moves forward the licensing application, issuance and denial deadlines by 30 days. In a dire time of teacher shortages, both changes help school districts across the state as they prepare for the new school year.

Structural Balance — Compromise language was reached in an effort to ensure that school boards do not enter into collective bargaining agreements that cause "structural imbalance" in the district's budget. School boards must use "reasonable and comprehensive projections of ongoing revenues and expenditures to determine structural balance" for the period of the contract agreement. It is interesting to note that the average public school teacher salary in Minnesota is now below the national average after several decades of above-average teacher pay.

No Strike Deadline — For the first time in many years, no teacher strike deadline is in place due to one-time removal of the Jan. 15 contract settlement deadline for new contracts currently under negotiation.

To all students, parents, teachers and other school staff, best wishes for a great school year. Please e-mail me at sen.roger.moe@senate.leg.state.mn.us}sen.roger.moe@senate.leg.state.mn.us or call my office at 651-296-2577.

News Items

"A long time ago St. Hilaire had a band. The band would play on the streets sometimes and delight the hearts of the multitude with its sweet music. This was so long ago that the people have almost forgotten it but sometimes the questions are asked, "Where has it disappeared to? Why have those sweet noises ceased?" We don't know. They say that when G. A. (briel) Peterson toots his horn they don't respond, and we fear that some of them are so tardy that they won't respond to the call on resurrection day." [This is a very sarcastic piece, since the St. Hilaire band had been active nearly all summer in 1901 until a week or two before this item appeared in the paper.]
